ETHIOPIA FEARS WAR WITH ITALY BY END OF JULY

Emperor Still Strives to Avoid Conflict.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 25 (Tuesday).—(AP)—A Daily Express dispatch from Addis Ababa said today the Italian legation had ordered all Italian subjects to leave Ethiopia within 10 days. The legation also was reported to have handed the government a note virtually accusing Ethiopia of "absorbing" the Sultanate of Jimma, which affects Italian interests.

[According to a dispatch from Addis Ababa, last night, Ethiopian officials maintain that Jimma has been from ancient times an integral part of the empire of Ethiopia. Abba Jifar, the governor of the province, died last year of old age, and a new governor, Dejaz Wolde Emmanuel, was appointed.]

BULLETIN.

ROME, June 24.—(AP)—Official quarters were unable to confirm tonight the report that Italian subjects had been ordered to leave Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, within 10 days. It was explained, however, that preparations for the evacuation of Italian subjects at Addis Ababa have been under way for some time. It was possible some move has been made without having yet been officially ordered from Rome.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, June 24.—In spite of efforts of the Ethiopian government to avoid war, close observers of the tense situation in east Africa believe that hostilities are likely to break out at the end of July. They believe Premier Mussolini of Italy will seize upon some new frontier incident to start fighting along the Somaliland border while the season is favorable and before Ethiopia has a chance to arm.

They may be wrong. They have little to go on except a careful study of the situation and a knowledge of the country. They point out there are no summer rains in that part of Somaliland within the borders of Ethiopia. Although it is terrifically hot, the Italian soldiers who have been stationed there since winter have had a chance to acclimate themselves. The rivers are full and rain is now falling on the western plateau to provide plenty of water for the Italians.

Both Sides Woo Tribes.

Both the Italians and Ethiopians admit that success depends a great deal on the attitude of the Somaliland border chiefs. The Italians claim they have bought them off. The Ethiopians, basing their statement on Emperor Haile Selassie's recent visit to Harrar, say the Somali chiefs remain loyal.

If the Italians invade Ethiopia they could take Ogaden province in the uplands, dig in and wait until October to start their push through the mountains of Tigre province from Eritrea to grasp Ethiopia between the jaws of a pincer.

The Ethiopian government is still putting faith in the league of nations. Nevertheless, it is feared here that Italy will reject the new Ethiopian offer to have a neutral observer scrutinize what is happening along the frontiers. According to neutral diplomats, Emperor Haile Selassie, who, even the Italians admit, has done much for his country in the last few years, is doing his utmost to avoid a conflict.

Ready to Resist Invasion.

As for the Ethiopians themselves, they are determined to resist the invader and take up arms if necessary to preserve their independence for the fourth time in the last seventy years. They beat off the Egyptians and the Egyptian Mahdists [Mohammedan fanatical believers in the coming of the Mahdi, which title has been assumed by several leaders of Moslem sects], who gave the British a run for their money in the Sudan. The British, under Sir Robert Napier, beat King Theodore at Magdala by buying the help of rival kings.

The Ethiopians defeated the Italians thirty-nine years ago and are confident they can do it again—more confident than their lack of modern weapons and ignorance of modern warfare and the change in Italy's fighting power warrant.

They are poorly armed. Officials of the Franco-Ethiopian railroad insist that reports of the importation of arms are greatly exaggerated. The rifles toted by the chiefs or wealthy persons are out of date.

Italy, Great Britain, and France, for business reasons, and other countries for sentimental reasons, have seen to

PIQUETT WILTS UNDER FIRE ON WITNESS STAND

His Own Story Used Against Him.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Attorney Louis Piquett spent a day on the witness stand yesterday which he will long remember.

As his second trial as chief conspirator in the plot to hide and conceal John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter during the summer of 1934 neared its close before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan, Piquett found himself confused and trapped by evidence that he himself had given at his first trial, in which he was acquitted.

The triumphant song of the Piquett clan that followed the acquittal in the first trial, which was on a charge of harboring Dillinger, may be turned into wailing in the Van Meter harboring case for which Piquett is now on trial. The very pleas and excuses which Piquett used so jauntily in that case were turned against him yesterday in a merciless cross-examination by Brien McMahon, special government prosecutor.

Piquett Confused on Stand.

The spectacle of the brisk and careless Piquett, who had made his way through gangland unscathed for many years, sinking and confused, pleading loss of memory, evading answers on the stand, made yesterday's court session unusual in many ways.

The courtroom was crowded all afternoon as word of the cross-examination flashed through the federal courthouse.

Both sides rested conditionally soon after Piquett was released from his ordeal. One surprise witness is hunted by the defense, Attorney Edwin Peifer told the court. Beyond possible rebuttal of this testimony the government lawyers are through, convinced that this time they have won a victory against Piquett in a case in which the attorney general wishes to set an example for all lawyers who interfere beyond the law with the government's war on crime.

Jury May Get Case Today.

Unless the defense produces its last mysterious witness, the closing arguments in the trial will begin this morning and the case will be in the hands of the jury some time during the afternoon.

Defense Attorney John Elliott Byrne, who sought to protect Piquett on the stand from the vigorous attack of the stocky, dark haired, pugnacious young prosecutor, tried to get before the jury on redirect examination that Piquett was not himself, that he had not slept since last Saturday, and was in a nervous and overwrought condition, due to the condition of his brother-in-law, Arch Draper, who is said to be dying in the County hospital.

Mr. McMahon objected to this as a brazen effort to get sympathy from the jury and the objection was sustained.

Piquett Loses His Memory.

Something has happened to the breezy and jovial Piquett. His voice was low and husky as he testified. He was reduced to "I don't remember" and "My mind is not clear" at many points in the interrogation.

He started out easily enough on his direct examination by Mr. Byrne. This was the same story he had told at the first trial, with some additional trimmings. He insisted he had nothing to do with face lifting and finger print blurring operations performed on Dillinger and Van Meter, though he was present as Dillinger's attorney in the house at 2509 North Crawford avenue, where the gangsters were hiding and where the operations took place.

Tells of Surrender Efforts.

He told of various efforts to have Dillinger, the most hunted man in the country in the summer of 1934, surrender. It had gone so far, he said, that prices had been mentioned for motion picture rights and for novelist rights to the Dillinger story. He became Dillinger's lawyer in January, 1934, he said, but did not see him for several weeks before the outlaw was killed in Chicago on July 22.

The surrender fell through, he said, because Dillinger wanted to help his sweetheart, Evelyn Frechette, who was convicted of having harbored him in St. Paul.

Piquett denied all knowledge of the Van Meter operation, admitting only that he saw Van Meter at the Crawford avenue house. He denied the story of Anna Patzke and denied any knowledge of the $500 which she said Piquett had given her to speed the flight of her "husband," Dr. Wilhelm Loeser, the ex-convict who performed

50 FRENCH VETS TOUR GERMANY; PLEAD FOR PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 24. — Scenes of Franco-German fraternity have marked the visit of fifty French war cripples who have been touring Wuerttemberg and Baden for a week as guests of the industrialist, Robert Bosch.

The leader of the French veterans today declared: "The old front fighters want peace because they want their children to live." The statement will be blazoned on the front page of tomorrow's Berliner Tageblatt.

The Frenchmen were taken on excursions through the Black Forest and were given an official reception by the town of Stuttgart and the Steel Helmet veterans. Telegrams were exchanged by this Franco-German group with British veterans to stress the "friendship with comrades from the opposite trench."

STONE CATHOLICS IN EDINBURGH RELIGIOUS RIOT

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 24.—(AP)—The worst sectarian riots in Scotland in many years took place tonight when hundreds of Catholic women and priests were attacked while holding an open air meeting in connection with a Eucharistic congress here. Cries were heard of "Down with the pope."

Men and women, singing hymns, hissing and booing, surrounded the Catholics and hurled missiles at automobiles and buses which were used to transport them to the meeting.

Mounted police were forced to make repeated charges before order was restored. Ten demonstrators were arrested.

Pet Fox Proves Too Foxy for Puffing Yard Crew

A little gray fox, evidently a pet, kept the night crew in the city construction yards on the west bank of the river at Chicago avenue in a dither last night. Harry J. McCormick, in charge of the night shift, said the fox would approach within ten feet of the men who were trying to catch it, and then scamper away. Latest reports were that the fox still had the run of the yards, despite all efforts to catch him. He was wearing a pet collar.

Voices Boom Out of House Loud Speaker

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—A public address system, installed without warning in the house chamber over the week-end, today startled congressmen, amused the galleries, and otherwise enlivened a day devoted to routine legislation.

Even Speaker Joseph W. Byrns was unaware of the possibilities of the small black microphone on his desk when the session opened. The statesmen were milling around as usual and the speaker brought his gavel down sharply. An explosive crash of sound came from the batteries of large horns attached to the ceiling over his head. For once the house was shocked into silence.

Thereafter, each mild admonition from the speaker concerning disorder on the floor was transformed by the electrically operated address system into a loud and ferocious warning which stunned the representatives.

Conversation Difficult.

Mutters of discontent began to come from some congressmen when it became apparent that private conversation was difficult with the new system working. Moreover, the microphones placed at various positions on the floor were likely to pick up such low-voiced suggestions as "how about coming over to my office for a snifter?" Spectators in the galleries, it was pointed out, might gain an unfavorable impression of the rigors of a congressional career.

Soon the house was divided into two schools of opinion. The orators with booming voices, such as Tom Blanton, Texas Democrat, were dead against the system which placed every member of the house on an equal basis so far as loudness and clearness of verbal delivery were concerned.

The loud speakers cracked and roared with such amazing effect when Representative Blanton sent his powerful voice into the microphone that he stopped at one point and inquired, querulously:

"I wonder who authorized this monkey business? I hope it was the house officials, because if not I'm going to protest?"

Nebraskan Is Responsible.

Much mystery developed when inquiries were made as to the sponsor of the broadcasting system. The responsibility was finally traced to Representative Karl Stefan, Nebraska Republican, an editor and radio announcer, who has been studying the acoustics in the lower house of congress.

He revealed that the system had been installed over the week-end without notice to any congressmen in order to test the general reaction. He planned, he said, after a fair trial to ask the house how it liked this form of local broadcasting.

With the new device he said there would be no opportunity to slip over legislation under cover of the usual hubbub in the house. Every word of the speaker, the clerk, and members will be audible.

To illustrate his point, Representative Stefan declared that a petition was being circulated on the floor of the house last week to obtain enough signatures to bring out on the floor a bill to pay Spanish-American war veterans a pension when sponsors of the petition became suddenly aware that the bill was not only before the congress but had been passed under the unanimous consent rule.

POLICE RESCUE MAN AND WIFE FROM MOB OF 400 IN OHIO CITY

Urbana, O., June 24.—(AP)—Police of Champaign and Miami counties late tonight rescued Willis Jenkins and his wife from a mob of 400 who threatened to lynch them at their home in Christiansburg, 15 miles west of here.

Jenkins had been released this afternoon by Champaign county authorities following an inquest into the death of John Brelsford, 62, Christiansburg, who died following an altercation with Jenkins last Thursday.

After the couple was speeded from the town by the authorities the mob continued to surround the Jenkins home and threatened to burn it in the morning.

Jenkins had admitted striking Brelsford with his fist during an argument over a $2.50 grocery bill, Coroner David H. Moore reported. Mrs. Jenkins testified at the inquest that Brelsford started the fight.

Movie Star and Famous Flyer Among Victims

Dead Are Listed.

The dead are reported to be:

Samper, Gardel, Mechanic Billy Foster, Henry Swartz, reported to have been the agent of film distributors; José Aguilar, José C. Moreno, Celedonio Palacios, all in Samper's plane and comprising Gardel's party; Pilot Hans Ulrich Thom, Co-Pilot Fuerst, Lester W. Straus, and four Colombians, all in the Scadta plane. Samper's plane was owned by the South American and Colombia air lines.

Among the injured were Alfredo Lopera, the movie actor's press representative, Angelde Riveral, Guillermo de Barbieri, Alphonso Azzaf, José P. Laja, and an American named Flynn. Three of the men in Gardel's plane were musicians who worked with him.

Riveral, interviewed in a hospital, said he felt a terrific impact and immediately was enveloped by roaring flames through which he saw Gardel vainly trying to break a window to get out of the cabin plane.

Physicians who attended the injured said the condition of all was extremely serious.

Planned to Go to U. S.

Gardel, who was bound for Cali, expected soon to return to the United States, where he is under option to the Paramount studios.

In 1932 Pilot Samper flew from Cartagena, Colombia, to Bogota in five hours and forty-five minutes, clipping two and a half hours from the time of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. The distance between the two points is approximately 400 miles. The air journey requires considerable climbing, as Cartagena is on the coast and Bogota is in a mountainous territory, 8,500 feet above the sea.

Samper was a member of a rich family of Bogota planters. He was educated at the Phillips Andover academy at Andover, Mass. Shortly after his graduation he married Miss Gladys Harris-Good of New York City.

Regarded as Excellent Pilot.

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Ernesto Samper, South American airman, who was killed piloting a passenger plane near Bogota, Colombia, today, was well known at Roosevelt field, where he was regarded as an excellent pilot.

He left Roosevelt field only a month ago, flying one of two Ford tri-motor planes which he and another pilot of the same line, an American, Stan Harvey, had flown to New York from Detroit, where they were purchased at the Ford plant.

LEADERS TOLD BY ROOSEVELT TO ACT IN 6 DAYS

White House Confab Decides Policy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today demanded that his radical share-the-wealth taxes be jammed through congress within the next six days, taking effect immediately.

If this bold and unexpected move fails congress must stay in session this summer until the new inheritance tax and the increased individual and corporate income taxes are written in the statute books, Mr. Roosevelt told congressional leaders at a White House conference this evening.

The President desires, however, that the new taxes for redistribution of wealth be enacted this week if possible. An attempt will be made, apparently at his suggestion, to tack the entire share-the-wealth tax scheme onto a pending resolution extending 500 million dollars in nuisance taxes which otherwise would expire Sunday, June 30.

New System in Week.

Since this resolution must be jammed through congress by Sunday midnight if the nuisance taxes are not to expire, the President's strategy necessarily contemplates the enactment of a new tax system remodeling the American social system within six days. Only if this plan breaks down under attacks or a filibuster will the administration consent to laying the new share-the-wealth taxes over until later this summer.

Congressional leaders who heard Mr. Roosevelt demand such speedy action on a revolutionary tax plan were almost breathless as they emerged from a 2½ hour conference at the White House. Those attending were Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the finance committee; Speaker Joseph Byrns, and Representative Robert Doughton, chairman of the ways and means committee.

Robinson Tells of Parley.

Senator Robinson, spokesman for the group, talked in jerky, breathless phrases as he announced the unheralded result of the conference.

"At the conference," Senator Robinson announced, "it was decided to press for action the recommendations of the President as to amendments of the tax law during the present session. The chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Harrison, will ask his committee to consider the subject with a view to proposing amendments to the joint resolution extending certain taxes and with a view to adding them to the joint resolution."

The decision to tack the radical share-the-wealth scheme on the resolution extending nuisance taxes was the surprise result of the conference. Congressional leaders had been expecting the President to ask for action at this session but evidently thought he would give them time to draft a separate tax bill and hold hearings on it.

Morgenthau to Appear.

Instead President Roosevelt apparently will send Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau before the senate finance committee at once to lay before congress the new inheritance tax and the increased income taxes which the New Dealers want congress to pass in order to redistribute wealth.

Secretary Morgenthau admitted today that he has the entire scheme worked out and ready, perhaps even drafted into the form of a bill which congress can pass.

"We have had our home work done for a long time," was Morgenthau's cryptic remark.

"If the policy is once agreed on, why have 50 people up before the committee to tell why such taxes ought to be levied or ought not be levied?"

Ready with Stop-Gaps.

Administration leaders will be ready with stop-gap legislation, however, if the new drive for speed breaks down and the nuisance tax resolution with the share-the-wealth plan added to it is not passed by June 30, expiration date of the nuisance taxes. In that event a resolution extending the nuisance taxes 60 or 90 days will be jammed through, giving congress a short time in which to consider and pass the inheritance and income taxes.

Much of Mr. Roosevelt's surprise drive for speed is believed to be planned to block any great shifting of wealth in anticipation of the new taxation. If the laws are enacted this week they would prevent rich persons transferring fortunes under existing estate taxes and dodging the new levies.

Certain portions of the President's complete plan, such as the taxation of tax exempt bonds, corporate surpluses, and holding companies will be

IRKED BY TVA CURB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt probably will read congress a sharp lecture because it dared to spank his pet project, the Tennessee Valley authority, for its highhanded and illegal methods of doing business, the White House indicated today.

Mr. Roosevelt may veto the amendments to the TVA law which now are pending in the house of representatives, and in doing so probably will chide congress for what it has done and lash his favorite bugbear, the "power trust." This was indicated today by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chairman, after a conference with the President.

"Worse Than Nothing."

"I think that's a pretty good guess," Dr. Morgan said when asked after the conference whether the President would veto the new TVA bill 'in its present form. "It is worse than nothing now. It looks as though it were written in a deliberate attempt to kill TVA."

Dr. Morgan, who was shown in a general exposé of TVA excesses to have overdrawn his salary by $1,1'', added, however, that administration forces in the house will seek to reshape the legislation in a manner acceptable to Mr. Roosevelt when it comes up for general discussion on the floor.

The administration draft of the bill passed the senate, but was revised drastically by the house military affairs committee when that body uncovered TVA mismanagement and waste.

Control Given to McCarl.

The house bill, which the President may veto, eliminated an extra 50 million dollar bond issuing power for TVA, put it under control of Controler General J. R. McCarl who exposed its waste, limited its power to absorb private utilities, reduced its authority to sell surplus power, and otherwise clipped its wings.

This action by the house military affairs committee came after that committee had discovered an audit of TVA by McCarl in which he charged the socialistic experiment with illegal spending and waste.

McCarl also showed that President Roosevelt's vaunted "yardstick" for power rates was rigged because TVA failed to provide for depreciation. All three directors overdrew their salaries, made unauthorized expenditures for "expenses," let contracts in illegal ways, paid $1,000 a head for cattle offered to TVA for $200, and otherwise mismanaged the project, McCarl showed.

Utility Bill on Program.

Besides the TVA amendments the house this week will consider the Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill and the Bland-Copeland ship subsidy bill. The administration also has voiced displeasure with the unexpected independence shown by the house in taking liberties with the utility bill, from which the interstate commerce committee has eliminated the death sentence for holding companies.

The committee change, which is causing house leaders much distress, authorizes the Securities and Exchange commission to require simplifications in holding company structures but there is no mandatory requirement for liquidation, such as the senate provided for all holding companies beyond the first degree.

FOUR METHODS ARE OUTLINED FOR RELIEF JOBS

Washington, June 24.—(AP)—Regulations under which the work relief projects will be carried out were prescribed today in an executive order issued by President Roosevelt.

All projects are to be prosecuted under one of four methods—force contract, fixed price contract, limited price contract and management contract.

The order, however, contains an exception, under which Administrator Harry L. Hopkins gives final approval to the method to be used or is allowed to designate "another method."

It was assumed that the projects would be carried on under the wage rate range of $19 to $94, covering all classes of workers from unskilled labor to professional workers.

Several of the methods under the regulations provide for supply of material by the government. Discussion of details up to now have involved mention of about 1½ billions for material, to be used out of the 4 billion work fund.

The announcement of the regulations came a few hours after the allotments committee recommended only $16,017,025 in new projects to Mr. Roosevelt. The total was raised to $131,017,025 by recommendation of $115,000,000 to carry out direct relief during July.

Hen Is Sharing Her Nest with Cat with Kittens

Springville, Utah, June 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Breezoff's hen moved over today—and that's hot news in Springville. The hen and a black cat with kittens had disputed possession of the nest since the cat moved in to give birth to her brood Saturday when the hen left her "setting" of one egg for a stroll. With surprising valor, the hen came back and routed the cat. Today, however, the hen relented. Now she has her egg in one half. The cat has her kittens in the other.

70 YACHTS BURN IN FLORIDA; ONE MAN IS MISSING

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., June 24.—(AP)—One man was believed to have been killed, another was injured seriously and dozens of yachts were destroyed today as fire swept Pilkington Yacht basin near here.

The loss was estimated unofficially at $1,000,000 by firemen who responded with all the fire fighting apparatus in the city.

The fire destroyed approximately 70 craft as it spread rapidly along the waterfront. It followed an explosion aboard the houseboat Seminole, owned by the J. S. Phipps estate of Palm Beach.

Flames Destroy Mansion.

Deal, N. J., June 24.—(AP)—Fire today destroyed the mansion of the 54 acre seashore estate of William P. Ahnelt, retired president of a magazine publishing company.

Flames swept the 55 room brick and wood building for more than four hours, leaving the house a leveled mass of charred timbers and collapsed brick walls. Mr. Ahnelt said the loss was $450,000.

SADDLE HORSE LENT BY GIRL TO ROOSEVELT'S SON

Beverly, Mass., June 24.—(AP)—John Roosevelt, son of the President, probably will have 17 year old Louise Barbour often in mind while she is away in the wilds of Africa this summer with her parents, for Louise has lent her cherished Irish hunter, Quentin, to John.

A United States army horse van in charge of an officer and three enlisted men came to Beverly today and trundled Quentin off to Hyde Park, N. Y.

Louise is the daughter of Prof. Thomas H. Barbour of Harvard. She often has accompanied her father on trips of exploration. The Barbours are summer residents of the Beverly farms section and John several times has been a week-end guest.

The girl is an out of door enthusiast. She is at present en route to Africa with her parents.

Daughter of Elisha Case Reported Safe and Well

Mrs. Edna Case Ver Maas, 65 years old, daughter of the late Elisha W. Case, founder of the old Case & Martin pie company, was reported last night to have notified friends that she was well and safe. Her nephew, Stanley Case, 411 Ontario street, Oak Park, with whom she lived, informed police Sunday that his aunt had been missing since Wednesday morning.

For Troops Abroad

Volunteers of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross now are engaged in preparing Christmas gifts to be sent to American soldiers, sailors and marines who will be on foreign duty during the next holidays. Shipment of these Red Cross bags often is made as early as August in order that they will be assured of reaching their distant destinations by Christmas

Robbery Suspect Escapes Under Fire of 3 Police

Three policemen from the Morton Grove county highway station went to Archer and Ashland avenues last night to arrest Peter J. Sobczak, 22 years old, 2925 Keeley street, for beating a man near the CCC camp at Glenview two weeks ago and robbing him of $200. They took him from a sandlot baseball game, but Sobczak broke away and escaped, although several shots were fired at him. Sobczak had been discharged from the camp, the policemen said. Three other youths who took part in the assault have been held to the grand jury.

LACK OF MONEY CURBS PROGRAM OF BRAIN TRUST

Land Resettlement Plans Are Scaled Down.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's gigantic land resettlement and conservation program is being scaled down for lack of money to finance it.

The 5 billion dollars voted by congress for work relief is not enough by half, it appears, to carry into effect the plans of the brain trust for the "more abundant life" and the President is being compelled to curtail the program all along the line.

Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 brain truster, was placed in charge of the resettlement program which called for the expenditure of close to 1 billion dollars. The President earmarked a preliminary 100 millions of the 5 billion fund for the Tugwell undertakings. Whether the professor will get any more than that amount, if that much, is now problematical.

Must Sacrifice Some.

The President informed Dr. Tugwell that he would be compelled to sacrifice some of the undertakings, at least until congress loosens up with some more billions. Mr. Roosevelt and the professor discussed the situation today and Dr. Tugwell departed from the White House in a most thoughtful and uncommunicative state of mind.

The subsistence homestead project, which was absorbed into Dr. Tugwell's resettlement administration, already has been found impractical because of the failure to locate industries in the homestead communities, and nearly half of the 65 settlements located are being abandoned. The subsistence homesteaders are now to be brought to the industries and located in suburban communities.

Prof. Tugwell, in an article in Today, the Roosevelt administration organ, said that the objective is "a land utilization policy which will retire unfit lands from production and turn back to sod and tree the soil which should never have been brought under the plow or which has been destroyed by ignorant, shortsighted or greedy methods of agriculture."

Begin Purchasing Land.

The government has begun purchase of submarginal land, deemed unfit for cultivation, and is removing the farmers to better land.

"If all these projects could be carried out as planned," said Dr. Tugwell, "it would mean the acquisition of some 20 million acres of land at a cost of approximately $77,000,000. At this writing voluntary agreements to sell have been secured from the owners of approximately 7,600,000 acres at a cost of $33,000,000. Four federal agencies have been associated in the field work of this program and in planning the ultimate development and use of the areas now being acquired.

"One of the purposes in purchasing poor lands is to correct low standards of living, exhausted public finances and depletion of natural resources, but there is a positive use in mind for each of these purchase projects. Chief among these uses are forestry, grazing, recreation, wild life and watershed protection. A recent analysis of projects showed 15,099,756 acres planned for agricultural projects, 832,293 acres for migratory waterfowl, 925,279 for recreation areas, 2,010,598 for Indian reservations."

Paternalism in Scheme.

"The federal government will, I believe," he said in a speech in 1933, "perform two functions with respect to our land in the future. It will directly hold and administer, as public forests, parks, game preserves, grazing ranges, recreation centers and the like, all areas which cannot at the time be effectively operated under private ownership.

"And it will control the private use of the areas held by individuals to whatever extent is found necessary for maintaining continuous productivity. It is only by conceiving the government in this double active and supervisory rôle that we can expect to attain a permanent system of agriculture."

In the same speech Dr. Tugwell said that one method of controling the total volume of farm products "would be for the government to limit the area available for production, by itself acquiring and devoting to other uses all the land in excess of that needed for production.

Would End Restriction.

"It would then be unnecessary to restrict the total output on areas remaining in use, although it might still be desirable to furnish a certain amount of guidance in the selection of crops. The area of land in production would be sufficiently limited so that it could be operated at its utmost efficiency without flooding markets and destroying exchange ability.

"Such a system would envisage a commercial agriculture made up of the most efficient farmers operating the best of our lands, with the remaining lands being used in other ways, and the remaining farmers devoting their time to other occupations. Something of this sort seems more reasonable than the present emergency plan of blanket reductions."

Pointing out that even before the depression "we had too many commercial farmers," Dr. Tugwell suggested that with proper agricultural technique "we could probably raise all the farm products we need with half our present farmers, or twelve and one-half per cent of our total working population."

Many Prefer Farming.

But, he admitted, there are many who prefer farming as a way of life, "persons who are happier in a simple existence, living largely through their own efforts in a self-sufficient way.

"The peasant homes of Europe are evidence that simplicity of this sort is satisfactory. We had it once in America, and there are those who feel that we lost something valuable in our departure from it."

Billion Dollar Farm Tenant Bill Passed by Senate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—The senate this afternoon passed the billion dollar Bankhead farm tenant bill, which will put the federal government in the landlord business and, it is hoped, relieve some of the distress caused by the Bankhead cotton reduction bill. The vote on the bill, which now goes to the house, was 45 to 32.

The measure authorizes the creation of a farmers' home corporation, with a mandatory capital stock of $50,000,000, to be subscribed by the President from the 4 billion dollar work relief fund, and the board may issue up to 1 billion dollars in fully guaranteed bonds. None of these may be issued, however, within one year and not more than 300 million dollars of them may be issued within three years.

This limitation was placed in the bill by the agriculture committee after the bill was recommitted for further study earlier in the session.

Grants Are Authorized.

The corporation is authorized "to enter into contracts, make loans of grants, or both," and to acquire, by purchase or otherwise, real or personal property, which it may develop, maintain, sell, or lease. The leasing provision was inserted by Senator La Follette [Radical, Wis.] without objection today, although the senate originally had stricken it. The leases may not run for more than five years, but there is nothing to prohibit renewals.

The corporation is authorized not only to sell farms to tenants, share croppers, and others it may deem worthy of assistance, but to make loans for improvements and farm equipment. Interest charges are to be limited to 3½ per cent and the period of repayment may extend up to 60 years.

The bill has been denounced as a landlords' measure, designed to enable land poor plantation owners of the south to unload their properties upon the federal government and, incidentally, contribute to the political fortunes of certain southern senators who are up for reëlection next year.

Robinson Among Supporters.

The most vehement supporters of the bill were Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], the majority leader, and John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.], whose cotton act of 1933 threw several hundred thousand tenant farmers off the land and onto the relief rolls.

Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] and Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] argued today that the measure followed the socialistic trend of most New Deal legislation and was headed for the same failure that has ended all known socialistic experiments in history.

Senator Alva B. Adams [Dem., Colo.] contended that the government was assuming an obligation, that of providing tenants with farms, and entering upon a program that could not be stopped.

PRESS FREEDOM STRICKEN FROM LABOR MEASURE

Conferees Say Clause Is Superfluous.

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Senate and house conferees on the Wagner labor disputes bill agreed today to eliminate a last minute amendment added by the house which provided that nothing in the bill was to be construed as interfering with freedom of the press.

The amendment was adopted by the house last week when it was submitted by William P. Connery [Dem., Mass.], chairman of the labor committee. He explained later that the amendment had been suggested by the White House.

It was interpreted at the time as expressing the intentions of the President not to alarm publishers by New Deal legislation. The AAA amendments have been attacked as containing provisions which may give the secretary of agriculture power to restrict advertising.

Conferees Favor Labor.

The conferees, a majority of whom are known as enthusiastic supporters of labor, knocked out the freedom of the press amendment because, they said, they regarded it as superfluous. In addition, they declared, publishers might use the amendment as a prelude to argue that newspapers were exempt from the provisions of the Wagner bill insuring the right of collective bargaining to employés.

The situation recalled the fight made against a similar amendment in the newspaper NRA code. At that time President Roosevelt asserted that such an amendment was unnecessary, because freedom of the press was guaranteed under the constitution.

Unit Provision Assailed.

The conference on the labor bill will continue tomorrow with arguments centered about the house amendment providing that units of employés engaged in collective bargaining shall not contain the employés of more than one employer.

This amendment was bitterly contested by Connery and he has predicted that it will be struck out of the bill by the conference. He asserted that the amendment would weaken the bill, especially in disputes involving coal miners and their employers.

ALASKA FARMING PROJECT OF NEW DEAL DENOUNCED

Colonists Said to Be in Grave Danger.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—The New Deal's rural rehabilitation scheme in the mosquito infested Mantanuska valley of Alaska was denounced on the senate floor today as "a complete commune under the American flag" by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep, Mich.].

Senator Vandenberg, speaking for the second time in connection with his resolution demanding a report from Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins on the Alaskan venture, predicted "a major tragedy" unless something is done soon to get the 2,000 colonists back to civilization.

Conditions Called Deplorable.

The senate passed the resolution last Friday, but Hopkins has not made his report. Senator Vandenberg offered no criticism, saying there had not been much time, but urged the importance of getting the information as quickly as possible. He read into the record press dispatches from Seattle quoting returning temporary workers as saying the conditions in the colony were deplorable.

"It has been stated that the pending bill [Bankhead farm tenant bill] is the first proposal ever made for the federal government to provide all the initial capital and all the working capital for farmers, with the net result that they will be 100 per cent in debt with no credit facilities for future operations" said Senator Vandenberg. "That is the precise basis upon which this crazy Alaskan adventure nas been undertaken."

Contract Is Read.

He then read two provisions of the contract entered into by the settlers, under which they agree to abide by all corporation administration regulations, including control of crop production, processing, marketing, distribution, crop rotation, soil management, and sanitation, etc., and the corporation agrees to provide such educational, cultural, health, work, and business centers as the welfare of the community may require.

"In other words, there is no one single element in the life and livelihood of this community which is not contracted into the exclusive jurisdiction of the Alaskan Eural Rehabilitation corporation, which puts up this amazing experiment," Senator Vandenberg said.

"So we have in ne essence a complete commune under the American flag. Under the terms of the contract these poor people are provided with transportation to Palmer, Alaska, but there is absolutely no way for them to get back, and that, in itself, adds to the challenge of the moment, in view of the charge that this colony of 2,000 people is disease infested and contagion threatened.

"Mr. President, if something is not done promptly to return these people to the continental United States, or at least to civilization, there will be a major calamity and a major tragedy under the ægis of this amazing governmental experiment."

Find Little Discontent.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, June 24.—(AP)—Four hundred Anchorage residents joined in an excursion to Palmer, headquarters for the Matanuska colonists, yesterday and found little discontent among the settlers.

Virtually all the settlers are content with their lot, Anchorage residents said, adding the chief anxiety expressed concerned construction of adequate houses before winter comes.

Gardens all have been planted and crops are already beginning to sprout rapidly in the warm summer sun.

Timbers have been hid for less than a dozen homes so far and construction will have to be rushed, the settlers asserted.

Four Menace Widow; Get Empty Safe; Miss Gems

Four men yesterday morning invaded the cottage of Mrs. Anna Daley, 55 years old, a widow who operates a summer resort on the Fox river north of St. Charles, and by threatening her with a revolver tried to force her to reveal her money. When Mrs. Daley protested that she had no money the robbers drove away with a safe. Mrs. Daley said diamonds valued at $700 were hidden in the cottage, but declared the safe contained only papers.

YOUTH HE NEVER KNEW SAYS HE'S SON OF MAYOR

Minneapolis, Minn., June 24.—(AP)—Possible existence of a son he never has known was laid before Mayor Elect Thomas E. Latimer of Minneapolis today in the appearance of a young man who claimed to be his kinsman by a short lived marriage nearly thirty years ago.

The young man, who said his name was Ira H. Latimer, of Chicago, brought incomplete records to the new mayor, hoping to establish his identity as a son whom Latimer has believed dead.

His story, the mayor said, harks back to a marriage in 1905 between Latimer and a May Helser at Columbus, O.

"We didn't hit it off very well, and after about three months we separated," the mayor elect related. "Some time later I heard that a child had been born, but I was given to understand it died.

"I am checking with friends in Columbus to see if the young man's story can be verified," he continued. "I fail to find any resemblance between him and either myself or my first wife, and the records he brought with him were not very convincing. They were documents that could be obtained from the public records, such as a copy of a birth certificate. He didn't seem to be seeking anything, however, so I decided to investigate thoroughly."

LEHMAN ORDERS VICE INQUIRY IN NEW YORK CITY

Albany, N. Y., June 24.—[Special.]—Acting on the recommendation of the New York March grand jury, Gov. Herbert Lehman today ordered District Attorney William C. Dodge of New York to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate organized crime and vice.

The governor directed that the head of the inquiry be chosen by Dodge from a list of four lawyers he selected and warned that if the New York prosecutor did not accept his plan, he would direct the attorney general to supersede the district attorney. It was left to Dodge to decide which of the alternatives he preferred.

The governor's designees are all Republicans and prominent members of the New York bar. They are Charles Evans Hughes Jr., son of chief justice of the Supreme court, George Z. Medalie, former United States attorney, Thomas D. Thacher, former United States solicitor general and president of the association of the bar of the city of New York, and Charles H. Tuttle, also a former federal prosecutor.

Widow Seeks Money

New York, June 24.—[Special]—Supreme Court Justice John L. Walsh ruled today that Jeanette MacDonald, film actress, must submit to a preliminary examination in the $20,000 suit brought against her by Mrs. Lucinda M. Reichenbach, widow of Harry L. Reichenbach, press agent.

Mrs. Reichenbach, suing as executrix of the estate of her husband, contends that he had an agreement with Miss MacDonald whereby he was to receive 10 per cent of her earnings 1929, to Sept. 1, 1931. This was in return for publicity services, Mrs. Reichenbach asserts.

Miss MacDonald must appear in Supreme court within the next six months, the court ruled, to be examined regarding the alleged contract. She is to be asked whether she made the agreement with Reichenbach in April, 1929, and whether her income for the two year period was $200,000.

HULL, 5 OTHERS RECEIVE DEGREES AT WISCONSIN U.

Madison, Wis., June 24.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Cordell Hull and five other Americans, outstanding in their own fields, were awarded honorary degrees today at the graduation exercises of the University of Wisconsin. More than 1,500 students received their diplomas.

Gov. La Follette delivered the commencement address to the students and an audience of friends and relatives, which numbered 7,000. He and President Glenn Frank of the university, who also spoke, urged the graduates to face the future with courage and brains, eager to help the nation on its forward course.

The others receiving honorary degrees beside Mr. Hull, who was made a doctor of laws, were: Arthur Hale Curtis, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, Northwestern university, doctor of laws; Gilbert Ames Bliss, professor of mathematics, University of Chicago, doctor of science; Thomas Day Thatcher, New York Lawyer, doctor of laws; James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard university, doctor of science; and Frederic Logan Paxson, professor of history, University of California, doctor of letters.

Cordell Hull Pauses Here on Way Back to Capital

Secretary of State Cordell Hull passed through Chicago last night en route to Washington from Madison, Wis., where he attended commencement exercises Sunday and received the degree of doctor of laws. Mr. Hull arrived in the Union station on the Hiawatha Limited of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad and left thirty minutes later on the Pennsylvania Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad.

PREDICTS VOTE NEXT APRIL ON UNIFIED TRANSIT

Mayor Says Plan Will Be Ready at Primary Time.

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that the city expects to complete a unified transit ordinance for submission to the voters at the regular election the second Tuesday of next April. At the same time the voters will decide whether to accept the utility home rule measure passed by the general assembly last Thursday.

"It will be easily possible to hold the referendums on the utility measure and on the car ordinance vote concurrently with the general primary," the mayor pointed out. "This action would save the city the cost of special elections otherwise necessary.

Plenty of Work Ahead.

"Although the car ordinance will not go before the voters for another nine months, it does not mean that the city is going to mark time. Studies to guide us in the drafting of the ordinance are now under way and I understand that the Chicago Surface lines has its own committee working on unification plans.

"It will require most of the time between now and April to complete the mass of technical work necessary before an ordinance can be completed.

"At this time I wish to repeat my pledge that the transit ordinance will be one the people will want. It will be a popular ordinance and I predict that it will be completely acceptable to at least 90 per cent of the voters.

Prospects Under Home Rule.

"The approval of the home rule bill by the legislature puts the city council in a new position. It can now tell the transportation companies what to do. It will be a case of the dog wagging the tail for a change."

Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the council's committee on local transportation, said yesterday that one of the first steps toward the drafting of a unified transit ordinance would be to complete an evaluation of the physical properties of the transportation companies.

He pointed out that while the home rule bill does not give the city any rate making powers, the evaluation is necessary as a basis for drafting the service provisions of the unified transit ordinance and for determining the proper share the city should receive from transit income.

MAYOR TO PUSH FAIR AND AIRPORT BILLS AT CAPITAL

Mayor Kelly will return to Springfield tonight to watch the progress of the lake front bills which would create authorities empowered to build an island airport and launch a permanent Chicago fair, and to press legislation which would authorize the city to issue $60,000,000 of bonds for the construction of three filtration plants.

"I consider passage of the bills most necessary to the welfare of Chicago," the mayor said. "The filtration plants are badly needed, especially one planned for the south side. I am also interested in the effort to keep the Illinois Emergency Relief administration set up as it now is. Relief has not been in politics, and I am anxious to see that it continues to be protected from political influence."

Mayor Kelly said that he believed that the measure authorizing licensed handbooks in Chicago, approved by the legislature and now before Gov. Horner for his signature, would be found constitutional.

Bailifs Hunt Mrs. Dahlberg and Mrs. Dahlberg Chapin

Deputy Municipal court bailifs have sought vainly for Mrs. Gilda Krieger Dahlberg, wife of Bror G. Dahlberg, wealthy head of the Celotex company, and Mrs. Mary Dahlberg Chapin, his former wife, they reported yesterday. A judgement for $4,500 has been obtained against Mrs. Dahlberg by Attorney Martin Ansorge of New York. The deputy bailifs have a summons against Mrs. Chapin in a $1,700 suit brought by the American Historical society for geneological research work.

LEAGUE REVEALS RISE IN BILL FOR ARMING WORLD

Costs for Defense Leap by Half Billion.

GENEVA, June 24.—(AP)—Nations of the world spent half a billion dollars more for national defense in 1934 than they did in 1933, the armaments year book of the league of natiens disclosed today.

Outstanding in the publication was the fact that soviet Russia has an army of nearly a million strong, far larger than those of other powers.

At the end of 1934 the strength of the Red army was 940,000 men, but this figure does not include reserve and nonterritorial forces. In 1933 the soviet had 504,000 men and 30,300 officers in uniform.

137,679 Men in U. S. Army.

The United States army, the book said, on June 30, 1934, comprised 137,679 men. National Guard and reserve forces brought the number up to 439,240. American naval effectives, including the marine corps, totaled 109,255.

The army of France last year was given as 360,496 in home territory with a total, including overseas forces, of 550,678.

The year book gives Germany's old armament figures, placing the army at 102,000 as of Jan. 1, 1934, and says nothing about the new army and navy which the reich is now creating.

Italy Has Army of 390,000.

Italy's average conscript army was given as 390,000. This figure has been vastly increased during the past few months, due to the calling up of several classes for possible war against Ethiopia.

Britain's land forces, exclusive of India but including general colonial and naval troops, were placed at 460,620.

Total world warship tonnage in 1934 was estimated at 5,830,000 tons, as against 6,900,000 in 1913, on the eve of the outbreak of the world war.

The book said world expenditure for national defense last year was 4 billion 900 million dollars, compared to 4 billion 400 million dollars on the old parity of the gold dollar. In 1925 the total cost was 3 billion 500 million dollars.

LIFE TERMS SET ASIDE FOR 2 BOY KIDNAPERS OF SHERIF IN INDIANA

Jasper, Ind., June 24.—[Special.]—Unable to find a place to incarcerate the two boys he sentenced last week to life imprisonment for kidnaping, Judge John L. Sumner today set aside the life terms and sentenced them on lesser charges.

Bascum Ray Jr., 14, youngest of the two, was sentenced to the Indiana Boys' school on his plea of guilty to a charge of auto banditry, but the sentence was suspended and he was paroled to his parents.

The other boy, Maurice Sheridan, 17, of Huntington, W. Va., was sentenced to one to ten years in the reformatory on his plea of guilty to the same charge.

The boys previously had pleaded guilty of kidnaping Sherif Ed Leugers of Dubois county, whom they "snatched" from in front of his jail here last Monday after he had arrested them for possession of a stolen car and illegal possession of liquor.

Judge Sumner sentenced the boys to life terms in the Pendleton reformatory, but Supt. A. F. Miles of that institution refused to accept them.

FIRE IN FOREST KILLS HUNDREDS OF YOUNG BIRDS

Beaufort, N. C., June 24.—[Special.]—Thousands of young herons were cooked alive today in a forest fire which swept through the Lenoxville rookery three miles east of here, near the shores of Core sound. Parent birds by the hundreds, perched in trees ahead of the flames, flew into the smoke over the swamp looking for their young.

Capt. Dave Godwin, retired mariner and carpenter, who has been receiving a salary from the Audubon society as warden of the rookery looked at the billows of smoke as he nailed shingles on the roof of a nearby house. There was nothing he could do. The blaze had gotten far beyond the control of one man.

Capt. Godwin estimated that of some 10,000 herons in the rookery, approximately 7,500 were anywhere from the hatching age to that of just before flying.

PROBATIONER IN STOLEN CAR.

Stanley Jezior, 20 years old, 3019 Poplar street, who was placed on probation on an automobile larceny charge on June 3, was arrested in a stolen automobile at Bonfield and Archer avenues yesterday.

Beginning next Monday, July 1, an amount approximately equivalent to 3% will be added to the prices of our merchandise on account of an increase in the Illinois Retailers' Occupation Tax. The additional charge until that date is 2%.

PIQUETT WILTS UNDER FIRE ON WITNESS STAND

the operations. All these things were merely denied. Piquett admitted having received $3,000 of the $7,000 which was paid out by Dillinger at the time of the operations, but insisted that this was for his fees as a lawyer.

Mr. McMahon approached Piquett for the cross-examination with menacing tone and springing steps. He first got Piquett to say that he did not know anything about face lifting and finger print operations, and then he dug up some of Piquett's previous testimony in which the attorney had said that he had been asked by Dr. Harold Cassidy [Loeser's assistant] whether it was against the law to perform such an operation.

Previous Testimony Used Again.

Again, on the question of whether Piquett knew that Van Meter was a fugitive from justice, McMahon used the defendant's previous testimony with telling effect. The question was whether Piquett had been in court in St. Paul during the Frechette case and had heard read an indictment which named Van Meter, then a fugitive. Several government witnesses have testified that Piquett had heard the indictment.

Piquett, under McMahon's questioning, admitted he had been in the St. Paul court but denied having heard the indictment read. His previous testimony on this point was dug out of the government's mountain of evidence by McMahon, and Piquett began to admit that his memory was hazy on some points, that perhaps he had heard the indictment read.

"You didn't tell the truth before, then?" McMahon asked.

Van Meter's Threat Told.

At another point he said that Van Meter had threatened "the whole mob" after his operation, which had not satisfied him.

"And you were in the mob?" asked the prosecutor.

"I was there," said Piquett.

"Dillinger was just a client, there were a lot more of that kind," he said wearily at one time. He referred to Dr. Loeser as an operator of bootleg drug stores when he first knew him. The late James Probasco, who owned the Crawford avenue house, was "something of a horse doctor," Piquett said. It was Probasco who went to him first with the operation suggestion.

"I advised against it," said Piquett. "I told him the house might be surrounded and he would be killed."

A Visit to Probasco.

Piquett could not explain, however, why he took Arthur O'Leary, then his assistant, to see Probasco soon after this.

He spoke once of "arranging a meet" over the telephone.

"Is that gangland language?" asked Prosecutor McMahon.

Piquett asked the court to protect him and his attorney later had him explain that this was a common term that every one understood.

"Did O'Leary tell you he wanted to see Probasco?" was a puzzling question from McMahon. First Piquett said "no" and then he said he "couldn't remember." He became confused over questions which he himself had put to O'Leary on cross examination of that young man, who has testified for the government.

[Piquett's contention throughout both trials has been that it was O'Leary who arranged the Crawford avenue hideout and the operations for Dillinger and Van Meter, that he himself had no connection with all this, having acted only as attorney for the gangsters. The mysterious witness whom the defense said yesterday it was seeking is supposed to be able to support this version. O'Leary's story ties Piquett more closely into the conspiracy. O'Leary has testified that he acted directly for Piquett in the arrangements.]

Finds Another Question Hard.

Another hard question for Piquett to answer was why he had gone to see Dr. Loeser at the home of Anna Patzke in Oak Park at the time the storm was breaking over the heads of all these conspirators. He had admitted that he had told "the doc" to "take a long walk."

"Is it your conception of duty, when you know the government is seeking a man, to proceed to his house and tell him to vanish?" McMahon asked. There was no answer.

Q.—What prompted you to go to Loeser? A.—I didn't see him.

Q.—Why did you tell him to take a long walk? A.—Because I knew he was likely to get into trouble.

Q.—Because you were about to become involved in it, too? A.—No, that is not true.

The prosecutor held up the package of $10 bills which made up the $500 that Piquett gave to Anna Patzke, according to her own testimony in both trials. Piquett said he had never seen it except in court.

"Do you think it was planted? Where do you think it came from?" McMahon asked. There was no answer.

Vague About the $7,000.

"Did you know that $7,000 had been paid to O'Leary for these operations?"

"There was something said about operations, I believe. It was a long time ago."

Piquett admitted that he had met Dr. Loeser on the street near the doctor's house, and that the doctor had wanted to borrow money.

"Did he want $500 as the balance of the operation money?"

"No, I don't think so, I don't remember."

"Was this the $500 you took to his house to satisfy him and get him to leave town?"

The money was again flourished before the crouching Piquett and the interested jurors.

BROKER IS HUNTED FOR QUIZ CONCERNING INVESTMENT SCHEMES

New York, June 24.—(AP)—Testimony revealing a one man "investment service" which operated from coast to coast and which promised investitorys profits as high as 1,860 per cent was presented today to the grand jury investigating the business affairs of William F. Peterson, missing New York stock broker.

Department of justice agents conferred with Assistant General Ambrose V. McCall, who obtained a court order requiring Peterson's appearance and submission of the books and records of the Isco Service corporation, allegedly operated by Peterson.

McCall said that from his information at least a hundred persons, from New York to California, dealt with Peterson in sums ranging from $1,000 to $100,000.

FIND NO CHICAGO DEALS.

The state's attorney informed New York authorities yesterday, in response to an inquiry, that no record could be found of any brokerage transactions Peterson had in Chicago. On his frequent visits here, however, Peterson was a guest of the Hamilton club, where he was a nonresident member.

BRIBE DEMAND CHARGE DENIED BY SEC EX-AID

Counts Against Others Are Predicted.

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—William A. Rabell, formerly an assistant chief investigator for the federal Securities and Exchange commission, pleaded not guilty today to a charge of soliciting a bribe from J. Edward Jones, oil royalties dealer, and was held in $1,500 bail by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter for trial July 9.

Jones, who accused Rabell of seeking a bribe of $27,500 to "fix things up" in a case affecting Jones, predicted further developments after he conferred with Chief Assistant United States Attorney Charles T. Murphy.

"I have evidence which will put in the same boat with Raybell four or five other persons," Jones said.

Stenographic Record Made.

Rabell was arrested yesterday in the Jones home, where, it was said, he accepted $250 in marked bills. A stenographic record of the conversation between the former SEC investigator and Jones was made and authorities say they have a phonographic record of the negotiations

Jones, at odds with the Roosevelt administration since the inception of the New Deal, is president of the Consolidated American Royalty corporation and the Petroleum Rights corporation.

Last February Federal Judge Patterson signed an order which temporarily restrained Jones from dealing in securities. It was the government's contention that his securities were not properly listed with the commission. Rabell's entrance into the case came after he was assigned by the commission to report whether the injunction was to be made permanent.

Quit Post Last Week.

Last Thursday the agent's connection with the commission was terminated by his resignation.

Friday, Jones says, he was approached by Rabell with the offer that the case could be fixed for $50,000. Jones protested that $50,000 was too much and Rabell is said to have agreed to accept $27,500.

No decision was reached Friday and a second meeting was arranged for yesterday. At this meeting, it is alleged, he accepted a package of marked bills. As he started to leave two federal agents arrested him.

SERGIUS P. GRACE, 59, BELL TELEPHONE AID, KILLS SELF IN EAST

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Sergius P. Grace, 59, assistant vice president of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., and widely known for his demonstration lectures of scentific developments, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his apartment at Rye, N. Y., the Westchester county medical examiner's office reported today.

Mr. Grace was born in Farmington, Mich. His service with the Bell system dated from 1896, when he was graduated from the University of Michigan as an electrical engineer.

He worked first for the Detroit Telephone company, where he made important technical contributions to the solution of the problem of corrosion in underground cable sheaths.

Later he became chief engineer and operating manager of the People's Independent Telephone company of New Orleans, where one of his outstanding accomplishments was the construction of an underground telephone plant below the level of the Mississippi river.

Arresting officers said Miss MacIvor objected so strenuously to arrest that she kicked both of them. On the arrest slips Desmond gave his age as 57 and his wife's as 33.

SINGING LESSONS WITH TANG GIVEN BY MARY GARDEN

Diva Starts New Career in Best Form.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Mary Garden began her career as teacher yesterday and displayed all the fire which has been associated with her colorful personality since she made her debut with the Opera Comique in Paris in 1900.

Before her new class of pupils in opera, stage deportment, and dramatic song under auspices of the Chicago Musical college, Miss Garden tore her bright yellow hair, snapped her fingers, clapped her hands, stamped her foot, and flung her arms about any singer who pleased her, using pet diminutives such as "dear" and "darling" freely.

First of 18 Lessons.

The class, held in the Sonotone theater adjoining the college at 64 East Van Buren street, was the first of 18 to be held over a six weeks' period. Tuition is $150. Some 30 attended yesterday. This is half of the number registered, explained her business manager, Horace Kiser. They are continuing to register from various parts of the country, he said.

"I love the way she plucks at her hair; she's so inspiring," sighed one young woman as the singers emerged from the theater.

"I'm in love with her already," explained a young man. "That final catch of her voice when she sings the simplest phrase has gotten me."

Miss Garden wore a white sports dress accentuating the youthful lines of her figure and short enough to reveal her pretty ankles. Around her neck was a string of pearls. Mrs. Charles H. Swift, the former Claire Dux, attended the class, in which Miss Janet Fairbank is a pupil and sang as Melisande yesterday. Afterwards Mrs. Swift and Miss Garden drove away in the Swift car.

Mr. Kiser alluded to the necklace when a reporter ventured a question as to whether Miss Garden were teaching because she needed money.

"Hardly," he replied. "That string of pearl she wore is worth a quarter of a million dollars. She just made a great deal of money singing over the radio and will return to it this fall.

An Eye to the Future.

"Besides, Miss Garden was a shrewd investor. She has been a good business woman. She is teaching this course only because she has wanted to do something for American opera and those training for it for a long time."

Mr. Kiser, asked if Miss Garden might become director of the Chicago company again, replied: "They've asked her. But she won't as conditions now are."

Among the scholarship pupils who appeared for their first instruction under the engaging Miss Garden was an ex-prize fighter.

After she heard him sing in the contest which decided scholarship winners Saturday she wrote after his name, "Splendid." He is Will Blalock, 29, son of a Baptist minister, formerly of Texas. He is now in charge of ushers in Orchestra hall. He played half back on the Memphis Tigers in 1929 and for three years barnstormed over the south as a lightweight boxer.

Other scholarship winners announced yesterday were: Hazel Meisterling, 850 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park; Robert Long, 74 East Elm street; Marjorie Livingston, 18 East Chestnut street; Margot Gibbon, 52 East Elm street; Leola Aikman, 817 North Dearborn street, and Lola Fletcher, 842 Galt avenue.

PLAN MENTAL TESTS FOR MAID CONFESSING 'SLAYING' OF BROKER

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—District Attorney Martin W. Littleton of Nassau county said today that he would call a psychiatrist to examine Dorothea Kassady, 20, housemaid charged with first degree manslaughter in connection with the death of John L. Burness of Sea Cliff, L. I., who was found dead Saturday morning near the garage of William Brown of Atlantic Beach, L. I., where Miss Kassady was employed.

Irene Brozovico, 19, also a maid and friend of Miss Kassady, is being held in bail of $5,000 as a material witness.

Officials were checking Miss Kassaday's story that she struck Burness, a broker and nephew of Mrs. Sam Harris, with a hammer and left him to die of carbon monoxide poisoning. Littleton admitted himself puzzled, saying that Miss Kassady's story and the facts "just don't add up."

MENASHA MAYOR IS CHARGED WITH MALFEASANCE

Oshkosh, Wis., June 24.—[Special.]—Mayor Frank O. Heckrodt of Menasha was charged with alleged malfeasance in public office in Municipal court here today. The complaint charged Heckrodt had a pecuniary interest in the sale of property to the city of Menasha.

District Attorney R. C. Laus alleged in the complaint that Heckrodt was formerly president and secretary of the Onward Manufacturing company, and general manager in November when the sale of the glass factory of the company to the city of Menasha was consummated.

The mayor is reported to have told authorities he transferred his stock in the company to his daughter before becoming mayor in 1934. A John Doe hearing was held on the case recently.

The investigation has been carried on for several months.

SLAYING SUSPECT DIES VICTIM OF KENTUCKY FEUD

Manchester, Ky., June 24.—(AP)—Earl Porter, for whom a warrant had been issued for the killing last week of James Cupp, was shot to death in the hills of feud harried Clay county today.

Porter, third within a week to die "with his boots on" in this county, was ambushed near his home.

News of the killing came as five county officials here were drafting a call upon Kentucky's Chief Justice William Rogers Clay for aid in obtaining a special term of Clay Circuit court to investigate the assassination of Bobbie Baker here Saturday. Baker, who came from Indiana to his native haunts last week for a visit, met the same fate as his father, grandfather, a brother, and a nephew.

The nephew, Commonwealth's Attorney Frank H. Baker, and a companion, John Brockman, were slain by slugs fired from the court house three years ago. Another brother, Tom Baker, is wanted for the assassination of Police Judge C. P. Stivers here in the spring of 1933.

Slemp Wins $13,333 Suit Over Campaign Expenses

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—C. Bascom Slemp, secretary of President Coolidge and former Republican national committeeman from Virginia, won a judgment for $13,333 today in Supreme court here against Claudius H. Huston, former Republican national chairman. The judgment was filed by default, as Mr. Huston had not put in an answer to Mr. Slemp's suit. Mr. Slemp sued to collect, with interest, $10,000 spent in the 1929 Virginia campaign.

FINDS TOIL TOO HARD A WAY TO MAKE A LIVING

Patrick Murphy, 35 years old, of New Orleans, who has served two prison terms, sat in a cell at the detective bureau last night and explained his philosophy to policemen.

"I'll carry no lunch pail and work in a factory," said he. "There are much easier ways of making money."

Murphy's build attests to the material success of his way of life. Nevertheless, Murphy submits to endless inconvenience. Today, for instance, he will be turned over to the federal government on charges of impersonating a sailor. Since 1917 when [he says] he served in the navy, Murphy has lived by cashing fraudulent checks and money orders. He always wore a sailor's uniform. On Monday police arrested him in an Evanston department store while he was trying to cash a check.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, June 24.—Officers of the 15th United States infantry stationed here, as well as American consular officials and legation officials in Peiping, regard the Roerich botanical expedition as "distinctly unusual" it was learned today.

This is in view of the fact that not American citizens, but White Russians with French citizenship, Prof. Nicholas Roerich and his son, George, are leading the group which is hunting drouth resisting grass in Asia for United States Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace. Moreover, the expedition is operating in an area which is a hotbed of Russian, Japanese, and Mongolian intrigue. The expedition was compelled to leave Manchukuo due to the opposition of the Japanese military.

Obtain Army Rifles.

Headquarters' records of the 15th infantry disclosed that Prof. Roerich applied last Nov. 30 to Col. Reynolds J. Burt, commander, for arms and ammunition.

The Roerichs presented credentials signed by Secretary Wallace, but Col. Burt refused to meet the request without orders from Secretary of War George H. Dern and cabled both the war department and Secretary Wallace for authorization. This was given Dec. 8 through Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Philippines department. Gen. Parker's telegram stated that funds for payment had been transferred from the agriculture department to the war department in Washington.

Col. Burt then detailed an officer who took the arms to Peiping and delivered them to the Roerichs.

Turned Back by Mongols.

According to information at Peiping, the Roerichs departed from Kalgan about two months ago with an original party consisting of six which since has been augmented by White Russian Cossack guards. Prof. Roerich left as his agent at Peiping A. P. Friedlander, another White Russian, who today admitted that the Japanese are watching the Roerichs' activities with extreme interest.

The Roerichs first proceeded to the headquarters of Prince Teh Wang, leader of the young Mongols, but Teh Wang became suspicious and refused permission for them to establish camp in his preserves. As a result, the Roerich expedition went to Tempe, a village of Panshing about 150 miles north of Kalgan, where they established camp on the property of Frans August Larson, a Swedish-American pony dealer and rancher popularly known as the "duke of Mongolia."

Larson has since supplied the Roerichs with provisions and also sold them one motor car. Last week Larson delivered to them a new truck which was purchased at Tientsin on Prof. Roerich's orders.

Send Sample of Seed.

The American born Mrs. Larson, visiting in Kalgan, today said she knew little about the activities of the expedition except "they are heavy eaters and seem always busy.

Prof. Roerich's agent, Friedlander, in Peiping stated that the Roerichs recently sent a small sample of grass seed which they stated was directed to Wallace. He added that Prof. Roerich has written him of discovering plants which are likely to help the United States combat the drouth problem in middle western states. He expects to push into the Gobi desert, returning about November.

SEES U. S., JAPAN DRAWN INTO WAR OVER FAR EAST

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—There is a serious danger of war in China which may involve the United States and Japan, Kan Ju Kato, chairman of the General Council of Trades Unions of Japan, warned tonight in an address here.

"The danger of war in China is spreading," Kato declared. "The war spirit has been inspired by imperialists and is being nourished carefully by them. Unless checked, it will lead to war and both your country and mine will be drawn into it.

"The imperialistic policy of the United States and the far eastern policy of Japan cannot be reconciled. They meet in direct conflict in China. England gradually is fading into the background, so that the chief conflict of interests is developing between the United States and Japan."

The Japanese labor leader maintained that Japanese labor is opposed to war. The workers' movement in Japan is essentially a peace movement but is being drawn into the militarist drive of "the ruling, capitalist class" under the guise of patriotism.

JAP DOMINATION GRANTED IN NEW CHINESE TRUCE

Chahar Province to Be Demilitarized.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, June 24.—The Japanese terms for settlement of their complaints against Chahar province have clinched Japan's domination of the province, it was declared in Chinese circles today.

The train of events began two weeks ago with the "Changpei incident." Four Japanese officers traveling without passports were questioned and detained overnight by the local Chinese magistrate. Japanese Kwanlung army officers announced yesterday the conclusion of the incident.

Army Is Expelled.

1. Withdrawal of Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan's 49th army to some point south of Kalgan.

2. Assurance that Chinese troops will not reoccupy the vacated area. All Chahar districts adjoining Jehol are to be patrolled only by police.

3. Complete suspension of anti-Japanese education and the introduction of a type of education advocating Chinese-Japanese friendship.

4. Cessation of all anti-Japanese movements and the exertion of sincere efforts for Chinese-Japanese economic coöperation.

5. Punishment of the officers responsible for the Changhei incident.

6. Japan reserves the right to compel the Chinese to shoulder the responsibility for consequences resulting from violation of the Chinese pledge.

7. The Japanese army will be allowed to establish an airdrome at Kalgan. [Chinese military officials at Kalgan say this airdrome already has been built.]

General Resigns.

The presentation of the foregoing demands was responsible for the resignation of Chin Teh-chuan, Chahar civil official, who assumed the governorship following Gen. Sung's resignation. Maj. Tan Takahashi, Japanese military attaché at Peiping, declared the Japanese army refused to recognize Chin's resignation, and still holds him responsible for peace and order in Chahar province, despite the fact that Chin is remaining at Peiping.

A dozen Chinese custom officers stationed at Shanhaikwan were dismissed today, due to alleged discourtesies to Japanese travelers.

Finds She Is Not Divorced; Second Marriage Annulled

Mrs. Louise Malley Jennings, 28 years old, 117 West Erie street, was granted an annulment of her marriage in 1932 to Earl Jennings by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday on the ground that she did not know until recently that her first husband, Max Malley, was deceiving her when he said he had divorced her.

Asks Quarter Million

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Horace E. Dodge, Detroit boat manufacturer, is defendant in three suits brought against him here by his second wife, Mrs. Muriel S. Dodge. The actions were disclosed today when Supreme Court Justice John L. Walsh signed an order permitting service of the complaints three days after the legal time had expired.

It was said that two of the actions involved a separation agreement made Aug. 4, 1933, providing for the payment of $50,000 a year. Mrs. Dodge's petition for the filing of the delayed complaints stated that they involved "substantial sums on several causes of action." It was stated that the third was based on "the rights of the plaintif against the defendant arising out of the financial relationship and dealings between them and others." The total involved in the actions is $250,000.

Counsel for Mrs. Dodge declined to discuss the suits, while Mr. Dodge's attorney said he was awaiting the service of the complaints to provide him with the details of the actions. Dodge sailed Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. Hugh Dillman, in England.

GIRL'S MOTIVE IN ENDING LIFE STILL MYSTERY

The motive for the suicide of Miss Ida Karonsky, 25 years old, 1409 North Rockwell street, which marred a wedding party in the home of her brother, Louis, at 1139 North Francisco avenue, on Sunday, remained a mystery yesterday.

An inquest into her death was opened by Deputy Coroner Daniel Motherway and was continued until July 11 pending a chemical analysis to determine what poison killed the girl.

Miss Karonsky's father, Max, testified that she was engaged to marry Jack Schreiber of Philadelphia. Neither he nor the young woman's brothers, Louis and Maurice, could explain the suicide. Officials of the company by whom Miss Karonsky had been employed said she recently asked to be transferred to Pennsylvania.

Miss Karonsky appeared at Louis Karonsky's home shortly before Fay and Tillie Robinson, nieces of Louis by marriage, were married to Morris Ruthman and Abraham Dorfman. She told the party she had taken poison and she died an hour later in the Norwegian American hospital.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 24.—The Chilean military aviation service is receiving new planes from Eupropean manufacturing plants, it was announced today. The government outlined a reorganization scheme to place the air services on an up to date footing. Twenty British planes have just been received and eleven more are coming. The national airline places an extension to Magallanes and is considering buying planes in the United States to cover the route to the south.

Robbers Ply Trade Up to Gates of Scotland Yard

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—Scotland Yard was mystified today by a series of week-end burglaries in Whitehall street, three blocks from the famous police headquarters. Most surprising of the robberies was that of a set of false teeth, 300 years old, from a dentist's office. At that point the burglars left their tools behind.

RED AMBASSADOR TALKS TO 2,500 AT U. OF CHICAGO

Russia Guided by Desire for Peace, He Says.

The foreign policy of the Russian government is based on a desire for world peace—a "dream of fraternity for all peoples"—Alexander A. Troyanovsky, ambassador to the United States from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, declared last night. He spoke at Mandel hall on the campus of the University of Chicago, opening the eleventh annual institute conducted by the Norman Walt Harris Memorial foundation.

More than 2,500 people, including faculty members and students, heard Troyanovsky's address. The crowd packed the auditorium and gathered about amplifiers set up on the campus.

The ambassador said that the soviet ideal in international relationships is "neighborship"—a nuance beyond neighborliness. He asserted that Russia has no acquisitive policies looking toward foreign conquest, but wants to maintain its territorial integrity and develop social reorganization within its own borders.

No Wish to Force Others.

"I hope you people will believe me," Troyanovsky said, "when I say that the soviet has no desire to force other countries to accept its socialistic form of government at the point of the bayonet. But there is a feeling existing in Russia that the failure of the new social order we are trying to build would have a worldwide effect.

"We are not pacifists at any price. Hence, to reduce our armaments is not possible at this time."

Troyanovsky emphasized that the soviet has no desire for isolation, but seeks instead the fullest exchange of goods and services with other nations and also scientific and cultural exchanges.

"We like to cherish," he said, "the dream of a world of free states, each self-determinant, each preserving its own structure, habits, and culture, but all linked together in coöperation for all peaceful development. Within our own limitations we have tried to provide a model, just as you in America have given an example in your own states.

Peace Policy Stimulated.

"The soviet union came into existence in repudiation of imperialism and imperialistic war. Our growth in self-reliance has tended to stimulate our policy for peace. Our increasing strength has added weight to that policy.

"Our policy does not lead to foreign conquest. We have all the materials for a new social society within our own boundaries."

Troyanovsky then reviewed the diplomatic negotiations of the soviet régime since its inception in 1917.

Treaties of friendship and non-aggression pacts have been signed with several countries, he said. Mutual assistance pacts have also been concluded.

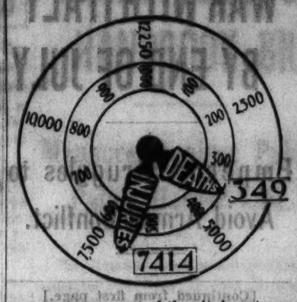
The Harris institute session, which is devoted this year to the "soviet and world problems," will end Friday. Round table discussions will be held throughout the week. Four other public lectures will be given at Mandel hall. The speakers will be Ivan V. Boyer, chairman of the board of the Amtorg Trading corporation; Vladimir Romm, special correspondent of the Moscow Isvestia; Hans Kohn, professor of modern history at Smith college, and Malbone W. Graham, professor of political science at the University of California.

N. Y. Schools Ease Rules on Mathematics, Science

New York, June 24.—[Secial.]—Mathematics, science, and foreign languages, traditional stumbling blocks for many pupils, have been dropped from the list of subjects required for high school graduation by the board of superintendents. Students will have the choice of electing the liberalized curriculum and receiving a "general" diploma at the end of four years or pursuing the regular course of study with an "academic" diploma. School officials pointed out, however, that the former would find themselves ineligible for college entrance.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

DRIVER FATALLY HURT AS MOTOR TRUCKS COLLIDE

Meyer Pollock, 22 years old, 3824 North Kedzie avenue, died in the Danish American hospital of injuries incurred yesterday when the truck he was driving collided with another at Schubert and Kilpatrick avenues. Dino Pierini, 23 years old, 3317 Sheffield avenue, driver of the other truck, was not injured.

This death and one other increased the 1935 trafic toll for Cook county to 435. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 349 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 7,414 had been injured. The other victim:

William Williams, 32 years old, 210 East 46th street, colored. Died in the County hospital of injuries incurred June 22 when he was struck by a truck driven by Nathan Bryant, 32 years old, 6510 St. Lawrence avenue, also colored, in front of 4546 South Wabash avenue.

Keith Yates, 25 years old, 1925 South 4th avenue, Maywood, was seriously injured yesterday when he drove his automobile into the path of a Chicago bound electric train of the Chicago and North Shore railroad. The accident occurred where a private road crossed the tracks near Roundout in Lake county. Yates was taken to the Condell Memorial hospital in Libertyville.

The body of a man killed Saturday night by an automobile at 49th and Rockwell streets was identified yesterday as that of William Zardingauskas, 3503 South Maplewood avenue. Howard Swats, 6128 Maryland avenue, driver of the car that struck him, was not held.

DODGES A TRUCK, BUT PLOWS INTO GROCERY WINDOW

Frank Sena, 719 Loomis street, was driving his automobile south in Racine avenue yesterday when he saw a northbound truck coming directly at him. Panic stricken, he lost control of his car. It went over the curb and crashed through a plate glass display window into the grocery of Mrs. Anna De Luna, at 704 South Racine avenue. Mrs. De Luna became so frightened that she fell from her chair and severely injured a shoulder. Sena, who was unhurt, was questioned by Maxwell street police, then released. About $400 damage was done.

Courtney. The state's attorney's campaign against auto thieves was started in the fall of 1933. Mr. Courtney credited the reduction to the work of Judge Joseph A. Graber of the special automobile court and to the special automobile detail of his office in charge of Gus Bartels, chief investigator.

IL DUCE DEMANDS RIGHT TO GOVERN AFRICAN EMPIRE

Ethiopia's Expulsion from League Also Asked.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

ROME, June 24.—Benito Mussolini, usually well informed sources said tonight, apparently intends to demand establishment of an Italian protectorate over Ethiopia and the African kingdom's expulsion from the league of nations, regardless of Great Britain's stand.

This report arose during the first day of conversations between Capt. Anthony Eden, England's traveling diplomat, and Il Duce, although it was said the Ethioplian question was not brought up.

Demands "Complete Solution."

Informed quarters said Mussolini was determined to stand fast for a "complete solution" of his quarrel with Ethiopia, the "solution" meaning a protectorate, backed by military occupation, and Ethiopia's expulsion from Geneva.

Both Italian and British official circles said it was certain Eden would attempt to raise the Ethiopian problem tomorrow.

Italian official sources made no bones of the fact that if the young British diplomat places the problem on the carpet Mussolini will refuse all attempts at a compromise or a partial solution on the basis of a territorial or economic concession.

Territorial concessions, said a government spokesman, cannot be accepted for two reasons.

First—Such an agreement would give the Ethiopians reason to believe the Italians are afraid of them and would make relations between the two countries increasingly difficult.

Second—The settlement would still leave Italian colonies with borders on Ethiopia and they would have even "less than a chance of security" than they have now. The spokesman said Italy would have to maintain a huge military force in the colonies, all out of proportion to the gains which would be realized through a concession of territories.

Charge Slavery Still Exists.

Italian newspapers are preparing the public for a demand that Ethiopia be expelled from the league. In many front page editorials they have examined the African empire's position at Geneva and declared she has violated the condition under which she was admitted, namely, abolition of slavery.

Mussolini expressed resentment today at the manner in which England had reached a naval pact with Germany without consulting France or Italy. He also reserved Italy's right to demand a larger ratio for her battleships.

Eden parried with the argument that if the agreements had not been reached Germany would have built a much larger navy and also that England is willing to attend a conference of other powers, which might revive Mussolini's idea of a four-power pact including Germany.

ITALO-ETHIOPIAN EXPERTS RENEW PEACE EFFORTS

Four Conciliators Meet Today in Holland.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SCHEVENINGEN, Holland, June 24.—Premier Mussolini's experts on Ethiopian affairs began arriving tonight for the second meeting tomorrow of the conciliation committee attempting to find a peaceful settlement of border disputes in accordance with the terms of the treaty of 1928 between the Ethiopians and Italians.

The committee, consisting of Count Aldrovandi and Rafaele Montagna for Mussolini, and the American, Prof. Benjamin Potter, and the French jurist, Albert Delapradelle for Ethiopia, met first on June 6 in Milan and drew up the mode of procedure and list of documents required for their work here. They adjourned for the present meeting in Holland in order to carry on their work in a quiet and neutral atmosphere.

Italians Arrive Late.

Mussolini's envoys already have been laying down a barrage of secrecy. Until noon today not even the Dutch foreign office knew whether there would even be any meeting of the conciliators. Count Aldrovandi arrived tonight. Montagna is expected tomorrow, accompanied by Sig. Guarnascalchi, chief of the east African section of the Italian foreign office.

Whether there is war or peace between the 10 million Ethiopians and 40 million Italians next fall will depend somewhat on the outcome of this encounter in Holland. Observers, however, are considering this as largely a sideshow with the real success or failure in settlement of the question more likely to be the outcome of talks in Rome between Mussolini and Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league of nations affairs.

Length of Parley Uncertain.

The impression seems to be gaining ground that Mussolini is hauling in his horns before the increasing difficulties of his African campaign and would be glad of any way out if he could save his face.

Nothing can be learned about the duration of the conciliation meetings. The Italian legation in Holland thought they would be short. Any conciliation arrangements must be effected by July 25. After that the treaty provides that the difficulties be arbitrated. The whole affair failing of settlement, it will again be reviewed at the next session of the league of nations council at the end of August.

ETHIOPIA CLAIMS DETHRONED KING IS STILL LIVING

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, June 24.—(AP)—Government circles, denying Paris reports that Lij Yasu, dethroned emperor of Ethiopia, died in a lonely mountain top prison, asserted today he is alive and being confined in a villa at Garamulta.

Since his escape and recapture in 1932, after being confined to a single cell for 12 years, Yasu has been placed in the custody of the present emperor, Haile Selassie. Government circles said the prisoner is living in a specially built villa equipped with modern comforts and enjoys amusements, exercise, and a certain amount of freedom.

Emperor Struggles to Avoid Armed Conflict.

ft that Ethiopia was unable to get arms easily.

Against a lack of weapons they have the country—rugged mountains, sun and rains—with them, and their natural pride and sturdy patriotism. They intend to fight if they have to and are drilling. I saw forty hotel servants learning the manual of arms, but they had no rifles.

Frontier incidents crop out frequently. The latest occurred a week ago. The Italian flag was ripped off an Italian attaché's car outside a movie theater. The offender entered the theater's cloakroom and ripped the coat of the attaché's wife. The Italians claimed it was a deliberate "insult." The chauffeur of the car told the police the offender was drunk. He said the Ethiopian grabbed the flag on the mudguard and snapped it off as he was trying to pick himself out of the gutter.

Ethiopia Conducts Probe.

The foreign ministry today said the Italians seemed inclined to accept the explanation. The Ethiopian government conducted an inquiry into the incident in the presence of an official interpreter of the Italian legation.

Now for the country and the capital where THE TRIBUNE correspondent arrived yesterday afternoon after a three day journey by train from Djibouti, French Somaliland.

It is a rich, fertile country and a great prize for whoever can take and hold it. Once the wastes of the Somaliland area and desert are left behind after a day's run, the weather is agreeable. Throughout the rest of the 500 mile journey grassy uplands mount toward the west. Then come farms with rich black earth that yield three crops a year by the primitive scratching of soil and careless sowing of grain.

Cotton grows almost wild in spite of the weeds which choke the roots. Grains grow thick and the crops yield more than the Ethiopsans can eat. Farming methods have not changed since the time the queen of Sheba had a son by King Solomon. The crops grow in spite of man's laziness or ignorance.

On the second day of the trainride wooded grazing lands cheer the eye, on the third day the plateau is reached. There the villages are numerous, the cattle fat and sleek, and sugar cane, cotton, wheat, and millet grow in abundance.

The absence of trees, until one has reached the thick woods of Addis Abeba, startles the traveler. East Ethiopia is a scene of sheer desolation. There is sand in every direction, dotted with rocks, boulders and black lava. The weather of the African empire ranges from hot to cold.

Built Palace 40 Years Ago.

Addis Ababa? It means new flower in the Ethiopian language. Emperor Menelik built his palace here 40 years ago, 8,500 feet high, and the town grew.

A Frenchman planted a forest of eucalyptus trees which hide the houses, the color of mud, and perfume the air—which is not unnecessary where cows, goats, donkeys, and horses roam the streets and lawns.

The capital is built on the slope of a steep hill down which water rushes with tremendous speed while donkeys struggle under giant loads and barefooted men and women slip on the ground.

All kinds of houses have been built. There are French, Italian, and English villas standing beside round, windowless huts made of slats and mud with conical and thatched roofs.

The best hotel looks like a Chinese pagoda, the growth of which was stunted. The emperor's palace lies across the valley which is filled with deep blue mist. It is Byzantine and suggests the Arabian Nights.

DEMAND RETURN OF KING'S EX-WIFE TO EDUCATE SON

BUCHAREST, June 24.—(AP)—Opposition to the government of King Carol appeared today to be steadily growing.

Members of the political party of former Premier Alexandru Averescu in a meeting at Cluj demanded that Carol's divorced wife, Princess Helen, be allowed to return to Rumania to supervise the moral education of her son, Crown Prince Mihai, and prepare him for the throne.

Marshal Averescu, a world war hero, declared it was imperative that Helen return to clear the "atmosphere" in Rumania caused by the influence of Carol's intimate friend, the red haired Magda Lupescu.

Speaking on behalf of several million peasants at a huge political meeting at Jassy, Jon Mihalache, president of the National Peasant party, declared if Carol refused to allow the Peasant party to come into power the party would take matters into its own hands and use force if necessary to obtain its "rights." The situation, he said, is intolerable. This sentiment was loudly applauded by 40,000 peasants. Other speakers said the peasants might resort to revolution unless changes are made.

SPAIN CONDEMNS 4 TO DEATH FOR RADICAL REVOLT

OVIEDO, Spain, June 24.—(AP)—A trial arising from the October revolution ended today with the military tribunal's announcement that four of the 63 defendants must die.

Thirty-six were sentenced to life imprisonment and seven to twelve years and a day. The other 16 defendants were acquitted for lack of evidence.

The defendants were accused of being chief actors in the extremist revolt, directly causing the deaths of eighteen persons, including eight monks and one priest. Precautions were taken by the government in view of extremist threats to launch a general strike in protest against the sentences.

HOUSE APPROVES ELECTION MERGER FOR COOK COUNTY

Measures Provide Voting Second Tuesday in April.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 25 [Tuesday].—[Special.]—Election consolidation for Cook county country towns was voted by the house of representatives early this morning. The vote was 98 to nothing. The measures now go to the senate. The house then adjourned until 9 a. m.

By this move, and like action by the senate, more than $200,000 would be saved to the country town voters. The bills—a series of six—provide for the holding of municipal, school, and park board elections on the same day—the second Tuesday in April. At present the three elections are held on separate days.

Encounters No Opposition.

The bill passed this morning was sponsored by the Chicago election board and was handled in the house by Majority Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago]. Adamowski encountered no opposition when he called the bill. The action came after the house had devoted several hours to tiresome concurrence in senate amendment to house appropriation bills. He explained the election bill briefly and after the key bill had been passed unanimously the others were adopted on the same roll call.

The slow going was interrupted by passage of an amendment by W. O. Edwards [Dem., Danville] which would raise the state distributive school fund from 11¼ to 13 million dollars annually. The action was accompanied by protests from Horner administration followers, but the house rode rough shod over them.

Relief to Rouse Battle.

Extension of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission probably will bring the biggest battle in the house this week. Action on the Williams senate bill is scheduled for late tonight or tomorrow. Inasmuch as the house has led in taking pot shots at the relief administration in past months, the fight will be measurably more bitter there than in the senate, which passed the Horner administration bill without much trouble. Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Libertyville] attacked former Chairman Robert J. Dunham of the commission last Thursday night when the bill was called for passage, but since Dunham has been superseded by John C. Martin of Salem, former state treasurer, the probabilities of prolonged attacks are not great.

Democrats in the house caucused two weeks ago and seventy of the eighty-four partisans agreed to support the extension bill. Thus its passage seems assured, even though there will be shoals encountered by Republican opposition. Enough of the latter group are expected to join the Democrats to win eventual favor for the measure.

Insurance Code to Win.

The senate faces its biggest fight on the insurance code which hung suspended in the house for several weeks while enemies and proponents strove to pass or defeat it. It finally came through with flying colors by a big vote, but a test of strength in the senate last week yielded only twenty of the twenty-six necessary votes. Director of Insurance Ernest Palmer has been especially active during the week-end, explaining various provisions which did not find favor in the senate on the roll call.

Eventual victory for the code is predicted.

In addition the senate must vote on concurrence on amendments adopted to two important bills passed by the house last week. First is the utility sales tax bill which, as passed by the senate, would have assessed the 3 per cent sales tax upon all utilities. In the house it was amended to exclude sales of gas and electricity used for power. This must be approved by the upper chamber.

Calendars Are Loaded.

Mayor Kelly's bill to place local transportation companies under control of the Chicago city council also has been passed in a different form than it was approved by the senate. As originally written this measure would have applied to all utilities; the house amended it to apply only to the traction companies.

The calendars of both houses are loaded with measures which members will make desperate efforts to pass before adjournment. Meanwhile they will be facing the inevitable motions to kill many bills dear to the hearts of their sponsors. This execution probably will be started tomorrow.

LAWYER ON TRIAL

Nicholas Radis, 10734 South Michigan avenue, an undertaker's assistant, pleaded guilty yesterday of forgery and conspiracy in an alleged plot to obtain the fortune of more than $100,000 left by James Thoman [Miser] Kelly, and was called as the state's first witness against Attorney Julius P. Waitches, the first of the remaining six defendants in the conspiracy to be brought to trial.

Radis, who was employed by John J. Bagdonis, undertaker at 2506 West 63d street, told a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller that at the direction of Mrs. Bella Butman, another of the defendants, he obtained the signatures of the "Rev." Paul Peter Zalink and John Dallyde to the "will" of the West Madison street "flophouse" resident. Radis was given the instrument to take to Zalink and Dallyde in the office of his employer, Radis said, in the presence of Attorney Waitches. Later he took this to Attorney Waitches' office, he related.

Two others in the alleged plot also are expected to plead guilty and to testify for the state, which will close its case today. The other defendant is Thomas Butman, son of Mrs. Butman.

LA GUARDIA OFF TO WASHINGTON AFTER U. S. CASH

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—As Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia sped off to Washington today in quest of more federal funds for public works in New York, Democratic leaders here took it as a foregone conclusion that a definite political alliance has been established between the President and the mayor which supersedes Tammany hall and the old-line leaders.

The mayor is expected to deliver, in a big way on the federal spending program. More than that, however, he is expected to deliver politically next year by supporting President Roosevelt. The Democracy of New York, cold toward Roosevelt and James A. Farley, national and state chairman, is convinced that the President looks to the radical vote in the metropolis as stronger than the organization vote.

This setup is placing Farley in an embarrassing, if not impossible, position, it is asserted. The President obviously is going over Farley's head in making the new alliance with the anti-Tammany and radical elements.

The state chairman and political manager for the Roosevelt administration has not been able to make good on patronage promises and obligations due the local organization. The applications and recommendations for jobs are on file in Washington and the jobs are still held down by Republican holdovers and McKee Democrats.

Vatican Sees No Cause to Discipline Fr. Coughlin

VATICAN CITY, June 24.—(AP)—Prelates were on record today as saying any intervention by the Vatican regarding activities by the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin was extremely unlikely. They said the holy see had been informed of no violations of canon law by the "radio priest" and pointed out that the pope rarely intervened to discipline a parish priest since a bishop is considered to be the nearly absolute ecclesiastical ruler of a diocese.

ALL HOPE FADES FOR REDUCTION IN TAX ON GASOLINE

Bill to License Drivers Still Has Chance.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—As the 55th general assembly convened here tonight for its final week, all hopes for any reduction of the gasoline tax or of the automobile license fee were lost. A dozen or so bills aiming at such a tax cut were opposed by Gov. Horner and are now safely pigeonholed in the house roads and bridges committee headed by Representative A. B. Lager [Dem., Carlyle].

A drivers' license bill still has a chance of passage, but it's a parliamentary race with the adjournment deadline next Saturday night. The senate last week approved such an act, but the bill, now before the house for concurrence, faces a barrage of 17 proposed amendments.

Another Measure Would Fail.

If a drivers' license fails to pass this will automatically kill a proposed financial responsibility law. The financial responsibility act, designed to ban the reckless and judgment proof motorists from the highways, would revoke the drivers' license of a motorist found guilty in a civil damage suit until the judgment was paid and an insurance policy posted to protect the public against any future accident his carelessness might cause.

The main benefits from this 59th general assembly from the viewpoint of automobile operation may come from the repeal of the 45 mile an hour speed law, the enactment of a muffler requirement, and the further suppression of unnecessary motor transportation noises by a curb on loud and unusual sounds from horns.

A bill requiring all vehicles to be equipped with an adequate muffler in constant operation has passed the house and is pending in the senate. A similar provision is incorporated in the administration's redraft of Illinois trafic laws that has passed the senate and is pending in the house.

House Repeals 45 Mile Act.

The house has passed a repeal of the 45 mile an hour prima facie speed limit, favorite weapon of speed trap operators and shakedown cops. The administration's proposed new trafic code retains this antiquated speed limit, but Representative John R. McSweeney [Dem., Chicago] announced tonight that he will introduce an amendment to kill this feature.

A detail of the administration's proposals that is winning support for the bill is its restriction on the use of excessively loud horns or peculiarly sounding alarms.

Many horns, standard equipment on new automobiles, are louder than necessary for a polite warning, but even worse than these are blasts, whistles and musical tooters that some smart alecks buy as special accessories.

PLUMBERS SHOW GLORIFIED BATHS AT CONVENTION

Latest developments in chemistry, metallurgy and allied sciences for the glorification of the American bathroom and kitchen went on display yesterday in the $2,000,000 exhibit of the National Association of Master Plumbers and associated trades at the Stevens hotel. Business sessions of the four day convention will start today with Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war as the principal speaker at the morning session.

Among new masterpieces in functional designing on display is a round portable stove in enamel and chromium which may be rolled between sink and table at the housewife's convenience.

All the bathtub manufacturers show products with new trends toward safety. One manufacturer has eliminated all slippery curves in a tub. Another tub is lightly grooved in the bottom. Another has a flat side which serves as a seat.

Mayor Kelly has designated today as Chicago health day in compliment to the plumbers' convention opening.

PETITION FOR OUSTER OF HUEY LONG AND OVERTON IS STUDIED

Washington, D. C., June 24.—(AP)—Senate leaders today considered whether to accept in its present form and language a petition charging it with "whitewashing" demands for the ouster of Senators Huey Long and John H. Overton of Louisiana.

The petition by the women's committee of Louisiana was delivered to the senate Friday by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond of New Orleans. Mrs. Hammond handed it to a page to give to Vice President Garner, then on the senate rostrum.

Garner told reporters today he had referred the petition to Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] of the elections and privileges committee to determine whether the petition was receivable.

The Vice President said that if George decided in the affirmative he would then present the petition to the senate and refer it to the committee for further consideration.

The women's committee last year brought charges to the senate door that the two Louisiana senators should be expelled on grounds that Overton, with the aid of Long's political organization, was elected fraudulently.

4 Agitators Deprived of Belgian Nationality

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, June 24.—Four inhabitants of the Malmedy district were deprived today of the Belgian nationality by the Court of Appeals of Liege in the application of a law passed last year for having taken active part in anti-Beligan agitation in two former German districts that were attached to Belgium after the world war. The four supported a movement for revision of the treaty of Versailles so as to return Eupen and Malmedy to Germany.

HOLDUP VICTIM WOUNDED.

George E. Stephenson, colored, owner of a poultry market at 224 East 61st street, was shot in the abdomen and seriously wounded yesterday when two colored bandits fired at him when he pursued them after they had obtained $250 in a robbery of the place.

CITIZENS' GROUP URGES VETO OF HANDBOOK BILL

Measure Against Public Policy, Horner Told.

The Citizens' Association of Chicago appealed yesterday to Gov. Horner to veto the bill which would legalize handbook gambling here and permit the city government to license and regulate it.

The bill, which passed the state legislature last week, is now in the governor's hands. He may sign it, veto it, or allow it to become law on July 1 without his signature.

The Citizens' association appeal was in the form of a letter over the signature of Attorney Francis E. Broomell, president. On the letterhead also were the names of Shelby Singleton, Henry P. Chandler, Bertram J. Cahn, Stanley P. Farwell, Charles R. Holden, George W. Rossetter, Robert I. Randolph, and other officials of the association.

"Contrary to Public Policy."

"In our opinion," said the letter, "this proposed legislation, which is without precedent in this country, is contrary to public policy, in that it would legalize an occupation that is inherently vicious and opposed to the public welfare. It is plainly anti-social and will give aid and comfort only to parasites."

The letter cited the drive made in 1905 by the association and the state's attorney against race track bookmaking, which resulted in the closing of all race tracks in the county in that year and which kept them closed until 1920. During those fifteen years, Mr. Broomell wrote, the city was more nearly free from public gambling than any other large American city ever was.

Handbook odds, said the letter, are so manipulated that the habitual better in the long run will always lose. The handbooks themselves cater principally to the wage earner class, which is least fitted to contribute to the millions of dollars which are taken every month by the professional gamblers, according to the letter.

Terms of Bill Assailed.

"Under the terms of this bill," it went on, "one-half of the net proceeds derived from handbook licenses are to be paid into the school fund and the other half into the general fund, presumably for increasing the police force. It seems to us a ghastly plan to provide more money for the schools out of the misery of children, who are the chief sufferers from the poverty and demoralization caused by gambling, and we believe it is farcical for the city to enter into a partnership with crime in order to get more policemen."

The association also maintained that the bill would bring legalized handbooks under political domination and make them a potent force of any political machine. It would act as an entering wedge for the legalizing of other forms of vice, the letter said.

"That such a compromise with these lawbreakers is unnecessary," it concluded, "is proved by the fact that the police department has shown its ability to suppress the handbooks by closing them overnight and keeping them closed for the last month by orders from the mayor and the state's attorney."

Harriet Vittum Assumes Housing Chairman Duties

Miss Harriet Vittum, for the last thirty years head of the Northwestern University settlement, 1400 Augusta street, became chairman yesterday of the women's division of the new Chicago Association of Better Housing committees at 134 North La Salle street. Miss Vittum, who was appointed by Mayor Kelly, said her duties would be to reorganize the women's group to promote interest in the national housing act. She announced that by fall she would have a chairman in every neighborhood. Gael Sullivan is administrative secretary of the association, of which Mayor Kelly is chairman.

SHADOWED LIKE A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

—this famous tire lived up to its reputation for 43% longer non-skid mileage!

Santa Fe, New Mexico. Joseph A. Faurot (right) noted detective and Chief of the Department of Identification, Commercial Crime Commission, gets the record of another "G-3" All-Weather

IT WAS a daring idea, but Goodyear wanted the unvarnished truth.

Imagine hiring a famous detective to shadow the "G-3" All-Weather—Goodyear's own tire—to get the cold-turkey records of its performance.

Imagine sending Joseph A. Faurot—pioneer fingerprint expert—out to cross-examine motorists—prowl around parking lots, tourist camps, highways and byways, quiz "grease monkeys" at gas stations—to bare the private lives of the greatest tires Goodyear ever built.

How it started

That tire first made its reputation on the test fleet. Day and night that rubber-wrecking drive went on. Speed up to 50—jam on the brakes. Speed up to 50—jam on the brakes. Grind them down if you can.

Out of that punishment came unimpeachable evidence that the "G-3" kept its grip 43% longer than its famous predecessor—twice as long as other makes of tires tested against it.

But that still left one vital question unanswered. How would these tires stand up on the wheels of average drivers—how would they live up to their reputation out on the road?

"Police blotter" records

Just as he'd written the pedigrees of mobsters, bank robbers, kidnappers, and gunmen into the police department records, Inspector Faurot gathered the evidence of how these tires were performing from coast to coast.

And through it all ran this verdict, repeated again and again: "G-3" All-Weathers are beating their own test-fleet figures—delivering more than 43% longer non-skid mileage on owners' cars.

There isn't room to print the whole record here—but here are some typical cases, briefed straight from that noted detective's notebooks:

At Bar-B-Que stands, in tourist camps, around parking lots, on highways and byways, that famous sleuth carried on his search for evidence

Owner admits he likes to burn up the road—travels mostly gravel and unpaved highways. Better by 50% than non-skid record of previous tires.

Case No. 114—Kansas City paint salesman. Mileage of tire 19,916, plenty of grip still remains in center of tread. Tires giving considerably better than 43% longer non-skid mileage.

Case No. 211—Chatsworth, California. Owner is projectionist, piled up 11,711 miles in four months. ⅞ of non-skid tread still remains—so much better than former tires that accurate percentage is impossible.

Case No. 22—Mt. Holly, N. C. Owner in charge of electrical installations in 6 textile mills, drives constantly on Carolina roads. Tread worn smooth, mileage 47,666. Non-skid grip lasted at least 50% longer than that on former tires.

What better evidence could we offer that "G-3" All-Weathers are the tires for your car?

To their bonus of safety—their extra mileage of non-skid grip—they add another feature. In every ply they give you the extra resilience, extra endurance of patented Supertwist Cord—and no tire can give you greater protection from blowouts than this famous ply material.

One thing more you'll want to know—how about cost? And the answer to that is, "G-3" All-Weathers do not cost an extra cent to buy—which means they cost you less per mile for the safety they deliver.

DENIES REPORT U. S. IS OVERRUN BY ALIEN HORDE

Statistics prepared by Col. D. W. MacCormack, commissioner of immigration and naturalization, which tend to refute reports that the United States is overrun by a large unnaturalized alien population were made public yesterday by Fred D. Schlotfeldt, district immigration officer in Chicago.

Col. MacCormack's figures, based on the report of the United States bureau of the census and surveys prepared by the department of labor under both the present and past administration, were submitted to a joint committee of the senate and house of representatives in Washington last week.

Instead of an alien population estimated at from 6 to 20 million persons, Col. MacCormack reported, the number is actually about 4,922,000. Of this number, he said, 1,500,000 have taken out first papers.

In reply to declarations that from three and a half to ten million aliens are in this country illegally, Col. MacCormack estimated that less than 100,000 deportable aliens are in the United States.

JUST ONE PEST AFTER ANOTHER PLAGUES FARMER

This Year's Affliction—Army Worms.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Midwest farmers are again waging their everlasting battle with bugs and worms. Despite the ceaseless efforts of federal scientists, such pests as army worms, chinch bugs, grasshoppers, cut worms, and boll weevil still are here in great numbers and must be fought each year to save the crops. They have entomologists bluffed; nature seems to favor the pest.

Although the extermination of these pests is impossible under methods developed up to the present time, entomologists have made great progress with measures which farmers can use effectively in keeping pests under control. But methods must be changed to handle the different plagues—one year it is chinch bugs, the next year it may be an entirely different kind of pest.

New Enemies This Year.

Last year, for example, chinch bugs and the drouth were two enemies of the corn belt farmer. This year there are comparatively few chinch bugs. But in many sections heavy rains have caused flood damage and favored the development of such pests as army worms and Hessian flies. Both of these pests are damaging crops in Nebraska.

Army worms are now causing trouble in Illinois and other central west states. Outbreaks of this pest have occurred in 30 counties north of East St. Louis, according to W. P. Flint, chief entomologist of the state natural history survey and the agricultural experiment station, Urbana, Ill.

He reports that army worms were hatching out in central Illinois counties between Quincy and Champaign last week. This week eggs of the army worm moth are expected to hatch in counties farther north, including La Salle, Bureau, Henry, and Rock Island.

How to Use Baits.

Mr. Flint says that Illinois farmers generally have been successful in using poison bran baits as a cheap means of controling army worms this season. He says an oil bait has been quite successfully used this year. It is effective and cheaper than the so-called molasses bait.

Oil bait is made by mixing one pound of paris green or white arsenic with 25 pounds of bran. Then add two quarts of a light grade lubricating oil of an S. A. E. of 20 viscosity. No water or molasses is added. The bait should be thoroughly mixed so that oil gets on every particle of bran. Broadcast this bait in the field at the rate of 10 pounds to the acre of infested land. If the worms are on the move, Mr. Flint recommends sowing the bait for a strip 100 feet wide across their line of march.

The bait is broadcast with an end gate oats seeder, or scattered by a man on horseback with boxes of bait attached to the side of the saddle. If carefully spread the bait may be used on cattle pasture without danger to live stock, according to Mr. Flint.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

June 24, 1935.

When the ground is dry enough to work the cultivators are in the fields from sunup to sundown. When all the cultivators are in use they are able to plow approximately 85 acres of corn a day. They are running three two-row cultivators with teams, a four-row with a large rubber tired tractor and a two-row with a small tractor.

Fields plowed late in the spring have fewer weeds and grass than those broken in the fall or earlier in the spring, according to Clarence Thurow, farm manager.

Oats at the Yorkville place are nearly waist high and beginning to head out. Indications are for a heavy crop. The plants are higher in the oat fields now than they were at cutting time last year. There has been no evidence of chinch bugs since the heavy rains of last week.

Thirty-five acres of soy beans are being planted at the farm. Twenty acres will be planted with a special hay mixture consisting of five varieties—Illini, Manchu, Wilson, Ebony and Virginia. Wilson and Virginia are of the vine type of soybeans. The Illini and Manchu are large upright beans, the "bean" type of soybeans. The Ebony is a smaller upright type. The three upright varieties serve as "stakes" to support the vine type plants.

This hay mixture of soybeans was used successfully in tests made in central Illinois last year. In addition to the tests at the Yorkville place, it is being tried out on several neighboring farms. One local elevator reports that it has sold about 500 bushels of seed of this special mixture of soybeans this spring to northern Illinois farmers.

TRIBUNE experimental farms are seeking information from other farmers on, methods of eradicating or controling morning glories, a weed that causes trouble every year on the Yorkville farm. The farms are successful in keeping burdock and quackgrass under control by grazing them down with sheep. Thistles are held in check by growing a thick crop of alfalfa, but the morning glory still has them bluffed.

On the Wheaton farm sheep kept quackgrass grazed down in a thin field for six years. Last fall this field was plowed and the sheep were kept in it during the winter and spring, keeping the quackgrass under control. This spring the fall plowed ground was disked, harrowed with a spring tooth harrow, which pulled out many of the roots, and then planted to corn. By planting the corn on a thoroughly prepared seed bed there are few weeds, although it has been too wet to work the field since it was planted.

Today's question: What is your most practical method of eradicating or controling morning glories?

DEATH PENALTY WILL BE ASKED AT KIDNAP TRIAL

Holland Facing Jury for Luer Abduction.

Edwardsville, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—The death penalty will be sought in the case of Walter Holland, alias Irish O'Malley, on trial here for the kidnaping of August Luer, wealthy Alton, Ill., banker and meat packer.

Announcement of the state's intention was made today by State's Attorney M. L. Geers as jury selection in the case began. Two former pals of Holland, the "finger woman," Mrs. Lillian Chessen, and Eugene Randolph Norvell, driver of the kidnap automobile, are to testify against their one time leader. Both are now serving life terms.

The jury was completed late today. Presentation of evidence will begin tomorrow.

Holland was captured last month in a Kansas City apartment after a two year search. Department of justice agents trapped him as he entered the rooms he had rented. The agents also named him as the leader of a gang responsible for numerous middle western bank robberies.

Kidnaped Two Years Ago.

Luer was kidnaped in July, 1933, by three persons who entered his home on the pretext of wanting to use the telephone. They struck down the aged banker's wife and dragged Luer to a waiting automobile. He was held five days in a farm cellar before being released when the kidnapers despaired of collecting the $100,000 ransom they had demanded.

Holland is accused of being one of the three abductors. The others were Percy Fitzgerald, convicted and serving life imprisonment, and Mrs. Grace Chase, the only fugitive in the case.

Woman Kidnaper's Trial Set.

Tacoma, Wash., June 24.—[Special.]—Federal Judge E. E. Cushman today set July 5 as the date of trial for Mrs. Margaret Waley on charges of kidnaping and conspiracy in the $200,000 abduction of 9 year old George Weyerhaeuser. The judge said, however, that actual taking of testimony would not begin until July 9.

Former Mayor John F. Dore of Seattle, attorney for Mrs. Waley, said her husband, Harmon M. Waley, will be summoned from his cell at McNeil Island prison to make a full confession exonerating his 19 year old wife. Before he was sentenced to serve 45 years for his part in the kidnaping Waley desperately pleaded for leniency for his young wife.

Mrs. Waley was not in court today. She spent the week-end in the Thurston county jail. It was said she has been extremely nervous since her two requests to plead guilty in the case were refused by Judge Cushman because of her husband's declaration she knew nothing of the kidnaping until two days after the boy was seized.

LONDON, June 24.—The sale of the famous collection of miniatures of the late J. Pierpont Morgan began at Christie's auction rooms in London today.

The most famous piece of the collection, the "Armada Jewel"—a gift from Queen Elizabeth to one of her ministers, Sir Thomas Heneage, for his services in resisting the attempted Spanish invasion with the famed Spanish armada—brought $14,175. It was purchased for the nation by Lord Wakefield, oil magnate. Thirty-three years ago Morgan paid $26,250 for the miniature at Christie's.

Hans Holbein's famous "Portrait of Mrs. Pemblerton," which was painted on the back of a playing card during the reign of Henry VIII., was sold to Lord Duveen for $30,975. The bidding opened at $2,625. Thirty years ago the miniature cost Morgan $13,750.

CHICAGO DOCTOR FINDS FIVE MALE SEX CHEMICALS

Minneapolis, Minn., June 24.—(AP)—The first traces of several new male personality chemicals were reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today.

These personality chemicals are hormones, products of ductless glands, which account for the low pitched voice, strong muscles, burly shape, and all the traits which contrast with femininity.

It used to be thought that only one, the male sex hormone, or possibly two of them, made the differences in personality, but evidence that there are probably five and possibly more was given by Dr. F. C. Koch of the University of Chicago.

These hormones are the foundations of the differences between men and women. They are not exclusive patents of the male either. Women have them, too, but in probably different proportions.

Dr. Koch and his assistant, Dr. T. F. Gallagher, were among the first scientists to prove the personality effects of the original male hormones.

Today Dr. Koch announced that in Germany a second male sex hormone has just been crystalized in pure form, clinching recent work of himself and other scientists of definite isolation of two of these chemicals.

RAILROAD TO STAGE A SMASH HIT NEXT SUNDAY: 2 ENGINES

La Salle, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—Two locomotives are going to bump at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon a mile north of Magnolia, on state route 89.

That was the prediction made yesterday by J. R. Cox, president of the Milwaukee, Rockford and South Western railroad in Granville. His prediction is likely to be correct, moreover, since the locomotives are owned by the railroad of Mr. Cox, who has chosen this spectacular way of junking them.

The scene of the expected collision is a siding of the railroad adjoining a large field which spectators must pay to enter. The two 100 ton "iron horses" will be abandoned with their throttles wide open and are expected to be traveling at the rate of 50 miles an hour when they meet head-on.

"The result of this meeting of two irresistible forces," Mr. Cox said, "should be a lot of interesting by-products."

Eight German Balloonists Are Released by France

METZ, France, June 24.—(AP)—A party of eight Nazi balloonists who landed yesterday near the French frontier fortifications was released today after its photographic apparatus was confiscated. Authorities said the balloon was occupied by four residents of Munich, two engineers, an architect, and the latter's wife.

CO-EDS RESCUED AFTER 7 HOURS ON TIPPED CANOE

Spencer, Ia., June 24.—[Special.]—Two college girls were in a serious condition today following their rescue this morning after they had clung for seven hours to the bottom of a canoe which had overturned in Spirit lake near Templar Park.

Eddie Wenner of Waterloo, one of two youths who went canoeing with them, drowned when he tried to swim to shore for help. The other youth, Jack Firth, swam to shore shortly before midnight, but the two survivors could not be found on the darkened waters until morning.

The girls, Jean Dunkelberg of Waterloo and Dor Bell Merkeley of Sac City were clinging to each other across the bottom of the canoe, which had been overturned by a sudden gust of wind. They were taken to the Templar Park hospital suffering from exposure. The four young persons were employed at the park, summer playground of Iowa Knights Templar.

Fear Son of Noted British Painter Lost Life in Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—Henry John, 23 years old, son of the famous painter, Augustus John, was believed today to have lost his life in the sea. Searchers hunting for him at New Quay, Cornwall, found the missing man's automobile on the edge of a cliff with a small terrier barking at the cliff's edge. There was no trace of the young man. It was believed he went for a swim and was carried away by strong currents.

FACTORY OUTPUT, JOBS, PAY ROLLS DECLINE IN MAY

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special]—A further slight decline in industrial production and in factory employment and pay rolls in May was reported today by the federal reserve board in its monthly summary of business conditions.

As measured by the reserve board's seasonally adjusted index, the volume of industrial production declined in May to 85 per cent of the 1923-1925 average, as compared with 86 per cent in April. This was the fourth consecutive drop from the January high level of 90.

Decreases in employment were reported between mid-April and mid-May for the automobile, radio, lumber, clothing, cotton, silk, and shoe industries. Woolen mill employment increased. In many other lines little change was reported.

"Value of construction contracts awarded, as reported by the F. W. Dodge corporation, was about the same in May as in April," said the report. "Residential work continued in excess of a year ago, while the volume of contracts for public projects was smaller than in the corresponding month of 1934."

A more encouraging picture was given by department store sales, which, measured by the board's seasonally adjusted index, increased from 73 per cent of the 1923-25 average in April to 76 per cent in May, and were near the level of a year ago.

U.S. PROTESTS AGAINST FRENCH LAW DRIVING OUT FOREIGN DOCTORS

PARIS, June 24.—(AP)—The United States, England and Switzerland made representations to France today against a pending anti-foreign medical bill which would drive out foreign physicians and dentists unless they became naturalized.

Several other countries are expected to join the movement. The foreign office promised to use its influence to get the senate to amend the bill so as to eliminate its retroactive effect. Unless the bill, which has passed the chamber of deputies, is amended it would compel 35 American doctors either to become naturalized Frenchmen or abandon their practices.

Lawyers told the doctors there was no legal objection to the bill because some states in the United States make similar requirements. The measure has been pending for a year and was passed under the pressure of student demonstrations. Students said foreigners were overcrowding the medical profession.

Holland Announces a

YEAR-ROUND FURNACE!

WORKS ON AMAZING NEW AIR-CONDITIONING PRINCIPLE

Heats, Filters, and Circulates Properly Humidified Air in Winter

Circulates Freshly Filtered Air in Summer

Costs Surprisingly Little... Operates With Any Fuel... Effects Remarkable Savings

Now you can banish stale, stagnant air from your home forever! You can be sure of even room temperatures, even in your hardest-to-heat room — end cold, drafty floors, cold corners, "register hugging"!

The new Holland will do this and more. It completely controls the air you breathe, and gives year-round comfort beyond anything you've ever dreamed.

New Principle Explained

In the usual type of warm-air furnace, gravity does the work. The furnace must get so hot that it will warm the air sufficiently to force it up to the registers.

To perfect a method that would control the supply of warm air for each room, Holland engineers developed a powered-air principle that actually forces the air up to the different rooms, and yet actually operates the furnace at a much lower temperature.

The old gravity systems operated on temperatures of 400 to 600 degrees. With the Holland Type A Air Conditioner, the furnace operates at 150 to 200 degrees. And you get quick, positive warm-air temperature control in your home. The saving in fuel costs is astonishing, and your furnace will last years longer. In summertime the same principle circulates filtered air and gives more comfort than an electric fan in each room!

Idea Sweeping The Nation—More Than 100,000 Units Already Installed

Just think of it! Here's an idea that lets you manufacture your own weather, at lower operating costs than old methods required . . . that gives you year-round use of your furnace and comfort unheard of before. And the cost is so low every home can afford it!

See how this new Holland Furnace works. Perhaps by simply adding the Powered-Air Unit to your present warm-air system, you can give your furnace a totally new lease on life. Check the many features illustrated here. Then be sure to get the whole story.

FRANCE SPEEDS UP BUILDING OF NEW WARSHIPS

Aims to Keep Ahead of Germans in Naval Race.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 24.—France's real answer to the recent Anglo-German naval accord was made known today.

It consists of a series of measures which THE TRIBUNE understands the government has decided upon in order to accelerate France's naval building program. The main object of these measures is to lose no time in laying the keel of the first of two new 35,000 ton battleships which parliament has authorized.

Speed Work in Dreadnaught.

Originally it was not planned to start construction on the new dreadnaughts until the beginning of 1936. At the present, no docks are available for the work because the only ones which are big enough—those at Brest and St. Nazaire—are respectively occupied by the Dunkerque and the Strasbourg, 26,000 ton warships intended as replacements for two obsolete dreadnaughts. The Strasbourg is not very far advanced, but the navy department hopes the work can be speeded up on the Dunkerque so as to launch her in November, thus making room for a new 35,000 ton vessel.

That the government really means business when it talks of accelerating the naval program is proved by the fact that a special appropriation of about 13 million dollars will be asked so that the material necessary to start work on the new dreadnaught can be purchased now so as to be on hand the moment the Dunkerque leaves drydock.

Thirteen million dollars will be earmarked for the navy out of emergency national defense appropriations which are being studied by the finance committee of the chamber of deputies.

Deputies Are Agitated.

When the announcement of the Anglo-German pact first was made the government calmed down the deputies by telling them to wait until Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league of nations affairs, had come to Paris and given Premier Pierre Laval a complete report on the situtions. How unsatisfactory Eden's report was is evident from the spurt in the naval program.

While the government is painstakngly trying to maintain discreet silence, the deputies interested in naval affairs make no attempt to conceal their agitation. They consider that the navy which the British accorded Germany is in violation of the treaty of Versailles and constitutes a grave menance to France's sea communications in time of war.

The decision to lose no time in the construction of the two 35,000 ton warships France is entitled to build under the Washington treaty was motivated chiefly by a natural desire to keep ahead of the Germans in the naval race.

Jap Naval Attachés to Meet.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—The Japanese naval attaché in London issued a circular to all his colleagues attached to the embassies in Europe today. He suggested that they meet in London or Brussels after Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league of nations affairs, returns from the continent and reports to the British government.

It is said the chief annoyance of the Japanese is that in future international naval discussions western powers may attempt to induce the Japanese to accept their standards regarding new naval tonnage along the lines of the Anglo-German negotiations. As this is not acceptable to the Japanese, their naval attachés in Europe will assemble and collate information for the benefit of the Tokio government.

POLICE SEARCH GYPSY CAMP FOR MISSING GIRL

Twenty policemen, the majority of them from Chicago, surrounded and raided a gypsy camp near Harlem and Ogden avenues early today on the theory that they might there find Myrtle Schneider, 19 years old, who disappeared from her home at 4838 Kentucky avenue on Saturday.

After Miss Schneider's description had been broadcast over a radio station police were informed that a girl answering the description had been seen in the gypsy camp. After the search, however, police were satisfied that the report had been erroneous. Miss Schneider, said to be a singer of considerable ability, left her home Saturday to go to the grocery store and has not been seen since that time.

Dog That Bit Evanston Woman Found to Be Rabid

A dog that bit Mrs. Lillian Lundahl, custodian of the Evanston dog pound, on Sunday, died yesterday of rabies, according to a report from the suburb's health department. Since Mrs. Lundahl submitted to the Pasteur antirabies treatments soon after she was bitten, no fears for her safety were felt. Six dogbite cases in two days prompted Chief of Police William O. Freeman yesterday to warn Evanstonians to keep their pets muzzled. Last night Mayor Charles Bartlett told the city council police will be directed to shoot all unmuzzled dogs found at large.

The annual convention of the National Inventors' congress opened yesterday in the exhibition hall of the Sherman hotel. On display are hundreds of gadgets, designed to do everything from shine shoes to cut your own hair and tune in the radio. In addition, such larger items as lathes, refrigerators and radios are on display.

Simultaneously with the opening of the show Albert Burns of Oakland, Cal., president of the congress, was named in a $50,000 libel suit filed in Circuit court here by the Chartered Institute of American Inventors. The suit charges that Burns, who edits the magazine, The Inventor, imputed racketeering to the plaintif organization, in an article in the magazine.

According to the attorney filing the petition, Harry S. Harned, it was impossible to get service on Burns in a similar suit filed in Oakland.

3 CIGAR MAKERS SUE TO STOP AAA PROCESSING TAX

Three small Chicago cigar manufacturers brought suit yesterday in the federal court attacking the Agricultural Adjustment administration and seeking to prevent the collection of processing taxes from them. The suit is directed against Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue.

The complainants are Stanley M. Walsh & Son, W. Karczewski, and Stephen Babich. The suit alleges that their costs have been "materially and artificially" increased through the provisions of the AAA act which made the secretary of agriculture "a virtual dictator." The act, the bill declares, is unconstitutional since it unlawfully delegates powers of congress, is class legislation, makes an attempt at price fixing, and creates an unapportioned direct tax.

The suit has been assigned to Federal Judge William H. Holly.

RELIEF GARDENS WILL BE READY LATE THIS WEEK

Plowing and seeding of 927 acres of land to be cultivated by clients of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission will be completed by the end of this week weather permitting, Patrick J. O'Malley, director of subsistence gardens for Cook county, announced yesterday.

Heavy rains during the last two weeks have retarded the program which will provide subsistence garden plots for 8,971 families. The plowing will be rushed to completion on the garden plots, scattered throughout the county, with six tractor crews, donated by the International Harvester company, working day and night. A portion of the crops raised on the subsistence gardens is returned to the IERC for distribution through the transient relief shelters next winter.

Charles A. Jardine Replies to Wife's Annulment Suit

In an answer filed yesterday to the suit of his estranged wife, Mrs. Dorothy Jardine, for annulment of their marriage, Charles A. Jardine, an accountant living at the Allerton hotel, charged that his wife "is a woman to whom the bonds of matrimony are but feeble and inconsequential fetters to be donned or cast off with as little feeling as she would wear or discard an inexpensive wrap." The answer says that Mrs. Jardine, daughter of the late Charles Ferguson, Rogers Park real estate operator, has been divorced three times. Mrs. Jardine in her suit alleges that her husband divorced his previous wife by fraud.

30 Children Watch

On information received from the prosecuting attorney of Princeton, W. Va., Detectives Edward Allman and James Zegar went to 117 West Huron street yesterday to arrest Mack D. Hyatt, 32 years old, who is wanted in Princeton for burglary.

Allman remained outside while Zegar went to the third floor apartment. Hyatt, his wife, their daughter, Louise, 9 years old, and a friend, Mrs. Ethel Judd, were there when Zegar entered and placed Hyatt under arrest.

Snatching up a coat, Hyatt burst out the door, and fled to the street. Allman drew his revolver, shouted to the fugitive to halt, then chased him west to La Salle street and north to Superior street. The policeman fired several shots in the air, and in front of St. Vincent's Orphanage, where 30 children and 4 nurses were taking the air, Allman shot Hyatt in the right arm and leg. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

SHOT TO DEATH IN STREET; SEIZE MAN WITH PISTOL

A man believed to be Frank Notto, 40 years old, address unknown, was shot to death early today in front of the Norge inn, 901 South Halsted street. Sergt. Sal Corsi of the Maxwell street police was some two blocks away from the scene when he heard shots fired. Leaping into his automobile he drove there and arrested Nate Treger, 35 years old, of the firm of Spak, Trobe & Treger, Inc., furriers at 214 South Franklin street.

Treger was standing in the doorway of the tavern holding a revolver from which six shots had been fired. At the station Treger denied shooting Notto. He said the shooting was done by two men who fled through a rear door of the tavern. Treger could not account for the pistol he was holding in his hand when captured.

Gypsy Takes $500 on Trip of Magic; Still Has It

Mrs. Bertha Benson, 10012 Yale avenue, was visited yesterday by a gypsy woman who offered to help her remove a "neighbor's curse." Mrs. Benson placed $500 in a bowl, and the gypsy wrapped the container up in one of Mr. Benson's new shirts. "Now I'll take this and walk across the intersection of three crossroads and be right back," said the gypsy. Mrs. Benson later asked the police to watch all triple intersections for a gypsy and the gravy boat.

CHIAPPE IS MADE MAYOR OF PARIS; DRUMS UP DUEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 24.—Jean Chiappe, fiery little Corsican whose ouster as police prefect precipitated the riots of Feb. 6, 1934, today was elected president of the Paris municipal council—the nearest French equivalent to mayor—and already the political pot is bubbling.

It is bubbling so vigorously that the first official act of Mayor Chiappe—whom some see as the future dictator of France—may be to fight a duel. He has already sent his seconds to Pierre Godin, former president of the municipal council, and one of his political adversaries in the recent elections, because of an open letter to Chiappe which Godin sent to a Socialist newspaper.

The letter was relatively mild for France—Godin merely accuses Chiappe of being a wartime slacker, getting himself elected by fraud, gloating over the Feb. 6 death toll, and taking bribes—but Chiappe's hot Corsican blood got the better of him, so he challenged Godin to a duel.

Once Rejected Challenge.

Godin is said to have appointed seconds today and the question of the duel is being thrashed out between them and Chiappe's seconds. Godin declares he is ready to fight, but the seconds may rule that he is not obliged to accept the challenge, since Chiappe once turned down a challenge from a Corsican newspaper editor.

The potential duel, however, is only a side aspect of the political situation created by the election. Chiappe always has been hated by the left parties and since the Feb. 6 riots has been considered by them as a symbol of French Fascism.

Edouard Daladier, former premier, fired him because he feared he might attempt a coup d'état, using the Paris police force. History will never be quite sure about what he said to Daladier in the telephone conversation on that occasion. According to Daladier he said, "I'll be down in the street tomorrow," meaning he would be in the street at the head of a mob, but Chiappe declares he merely said, "I'll be out in the street tomorrow," meaning looking for a job.

In Center of Red Ring.

In any case the left parties consider his election as president of the municipal council a provocation, all the more so because it is unprecedented for a man taking a seat as a municipal councilor for the first time to preside over the council.

Also the excitement over Chiappe adds fuel to the bitter partisan battle now going on over the existence of semi-Fascist leagues like the Fiery Cross Legionnaires. The Croix de Feu has been holding public meetings, which are really practice mobilizations, all over the country recently and the left parties are clamoring for the government to disband them.

To add to the touchiness of the situation the election of Chiappe gives Paris a nationalist if not a Fascist mayor, while the industrial suburbs which touch the city limits nearly all have communist administrations and the department of the Seine, which encloses Paris, has a country council with a left majority.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, June 24.—(AP)—Milan Stoyadinovich, Jogo-Slavia's new premier, today completed the formation of his cabinet and its members, which include representatives of former opposition factions, took the oath of office.

It was indicated that the new government will liquidate the stern dictatorship practiced under the late King Alexander and pave the way for the election of a new parliament late this autumn.

Stoyadinovich was commissioned by the regency to form the new government. The chief regent, Prince Paul, induced the Croats to coöperate. Premier Stoyadinovich, who is foreign minister, has visited the United States several times. He is president of Rotary International in Jugo-Slavia and is considered to have marked sympathies for Germany.

French Canadians Parade in Honor of Patron Saint

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., June 24.—French Canada today wound up three days of celebrating the anniversary of St. John the Baptist, patron saint, with a parade two miles long. Fifty thousand participated in the procession which was viewed by 200,000 spectators. Thousands came from the rural parts of Quebec to see the parade.

SEEK BOMBERS OF U. S. EMBASSY IN MEXICAN CLUB

MEXICO CITY, June 24. — Police, seeking to place responsibility for yesterday's bombing of the United States embassy, are tracing members of a certain club for questioning. The American embassy in Colonia Juarez, is a few blocks from the Japanese legation which was the object of a similar bombing, attributed to communists, several months ago.

The bomb explosion, which Ambassador Josephus Daniels declared was "of no importance," tore a 9 inch hole in a patio and shattered windows of the building. The missil, made of dynamite and caps, was tossed over the wall about 8 a. m. yesterday, and the incident was kept secret until a policeman reported it to headquarters. No one was hurt.

A heavy guard of police and plain clothes men remains around the embassy, and an intense search is going on, though the staf is not pressing demands for arrests and punishment. Acting Secretary of Foreign Relations Ceniceros made an early call on Ambassador Daniels and expressed his regrets.

Woman Court Reporter Ill of Sleeping Potion

Miss Helen Dillon, 25 years old, 747 North Wabash avenue, a court reporter, was said to be recovering at the Grant hospital last night from effects of an overdose of sleeping tablets taken Sunday night. Dr. Doran T. Rue of Mattoon, a friend of Miss Dillon, told Capt. William O'Brien of the Chicago avenue police that he came to Chicago on Sunday to visit Miss Dillon and she complained of "having the blues." Miss Dillon was employed by defense attorneys as stenographer in the two Insull trials in the federal court, and also reported the first trial of Attorney Louis Piquett.

CROWN QUEEN OF FETE TONIGHT AT DES PLAINES

The coronation tonight of Miss Marion Toepper, 20 years old, as "Queen of Des Plaines," will formally open the centennial celebration of that city which will continue throughout the week. Miss Toepper, a descendant of early settlers in the community, lives at 1550 Henry avenue in the suburbs. She was chosen by popular ballot.

Preceding the corronation, floats representing civic and patriotic organizations and Des Plaines business houses will be in a parade that will pass a reviewing stand at Pearson and Ellenwood streets. The parade will start at 7:30 p. m.

The feature of the celebration will be the presentation Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings of a historical pageant which will be accompanied by the community orchestra and a choir of 100 voices.

Walter C. Gehler is chairman of the centennial committee. The celebration will end next Sunday with special church services.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

KING CANUTE AND THE PRESIDENT.

When NRA was declared dead the New Deal faced the acid test. If the recovery act had been all the brain trust had cracked it up to be, disaster must certainly follow. So Richberg and the solicitor general had told the court in arguing the chicken coop case, and so other counsel for the government had told the court in the gold cases.

With NRA a nullity, the collapse the New Dealers had forecast must come or the jig was up. Naturally the administration hoped for the worst. A good swift kick in the pants would bring the country to its senses. The administration proceeded to do its durndest. New Dealers talked of the "crisis" and attempted to gather figures showing that wages were being cut and hours increased. The President spoke alarmingly and intimated at a sensational press conference he would be in favor of amending the constitution. To add to the unsettlement the silver market, which is completely in the hands of the treasury, was allowed to slide off. Some willing trade union officers coöperated at strategic moments by threatening to call large numbers out on strike. And there was considerably less than the promised activity in getting the four billion dollars rolling out of the treasury.

But the results were not what had been expected. In fact, the developments were exactly contrary to what the brain trusters had hoped. With the wiping from the statute book of the principal link in the administration's recovery program a marked improvement in sentiment swept the country, and the stock market, the most sensitive of barometers, displayed the greatest strength since the lapse from gold early in 1933.

The President was in the position of old King Canute. The king had his throne placed on the seashore and when the rising tide came near he commanded the sea to fall back. But the sea failed to recede and instead gave his feet a good wetting. But at that point the analogy of the President to King Canute ends. When the sea proved disobedient the king turned to his courtiers and said: "Let all men know how empty and worthless is the power of kings; for there is none worthy of the name but him whom the heaven and sea obey."

President Roosevelt did not accept his rebuff with the same equanimity. He was much too chagrined over the showing up the New Deal had received. Why, to have markets go up when he said they would go down put him as a forecaster in the class of Hoover, for whom the markets invariably receded when he proclaimed there would be an advance. In a blue funk the President retired to Hyde Park. Something had to be done about this. When he says there's going to be collapse there must be collapse. What kind of a dictator is this who says something is going to happen and it doesn't happen? What would the Russians say of Stalin, or the Germans of Hitler, or the Italians of Mussolini if fate were so perverse to any one of them? A spirited man nursed his pride in his ancestral home. Something had to be done about this.

And something was done. The President sent a message to congress asking that legislation be passed providing for the redistribution of the property of the country. The message will be discussed at length on this page. It is enough for now to observe what called forth the proposal. The President is a very determined man. When he says there shall be recession, a recession must be. King Canute was less obstinate. When he found that he was wet he gave up.

AMERICA AS A REFUGE.

America has traditionally maintained an open door to fugitives from political and religious persecution in the old world. But times change, and with them both the character of these European fugitives and of social conditions in America have changed. This makes it desirable that the United States reopen and reëxamine its open door policy.

Political and religious motives were a powerful influence upon the settlement of the original colonies. The protection which distance afforded to dissenting ideals of politics or religion was in numerous cases as powerful an attraction as the often doubtful economic opportunities of life in a new and wild country.

Escape from political persecution continued to be a powerful motive of immigrants through a larger part of the last century. America was wise to welcome these fugitives. They were fugitives because they held political views similar to those of the majority of Americans.

In the last few decades, however, there has been a change in the political philosophy of these dissenters from Europe. For example, Germans who fled to America after monarchism crushed their hopes in 1848 were advocates of a system of government approaching, at least, that of the United States. As such they were readily assimilable as American citizens. Political fugitives from the dictatorships in Europe may, it is true, be constitutional republicans, but are more likely to have ideas of government as repugnant to the American system of government as they are to the powers they flee from.

America now enjoys a buyer's market in the matter of immigration. There are twenty or a hundred aliens who would like to enjoy the political and economic advantages of residence in this country for every one whom we are willing to admit. In such circumstances it is only proper that we select the cream of those who ask admission, judging them according to their probable usefulness as American citizens.

If we are to apply this test, as we should, political or religious persecution abroad is no longer a sufficient passport to America. We have a right to demand other recommendations. Victims of European tyranny and persecution, wherever they may suffer it, deserve our sympathy, but not necessarily our adoption.

WHY THE WATERWAYS ARE DESERTED.

Shorn of its controversial provisions, the Eastman bill for the regulation of shipping on our inland waterways, our coastal waters, and on the Great Lakes has been favorably reported to the senate by the subcommittee appointed to examine it. The clauses in the original bill, through which burocracy had hoped to control the operations of private and contract carriers for the benefit of common carrier services, considered fundamentally more amenable to government supervision, have been stricken from the measure to insure its passage.

Those who have so far opposed the bill as inimical to the progress of transport by water should not be misled by this sugar coating. They should appreciate the full force of Senator Wheeler's expression of hope that "a start" at regulation might soon be made. Obviously the plan is to follow the history of railway regulation—first merely a hazy control, next seizure of rate making powers, and finally the establishment of government management without responsibility will ultimately bring the industry to such financial condition as will leave public ownership and operation, with its inefficiency, abuse, and corruption, as the only possible solution.

The lack of coördination in administration policies and activities is past understanding. Millions are appropriated each year for the development and improvement of waterways with visions of the most perfect system of cheap transportation in the world. Then another government bureau proposes regulations to set up the interstate commerce commission as arbiter and manager of commercial activities on these waterways and destroy the economy. Is it any wonder the fleets of our inland seas are antiquated, that we have no merchant marine worth mentioning, that inland waterways are practically deserted, and that the United States, with the longest usefully navigable coast line of all, ranks last in shipbuilding among the maritime nations of the world? With the constant threat of unreasonable and inconsistent burocratic interference it calls for superhuman courage to lay down the keel of a freighter.

JOHN OGLESBY AS A CANDIDATE.

John G. Oglesby has announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. "As things stand now," he said, "I am a candidate. My plans, however, are subject to the welfare and best interests of the Republican party."

The Oglesby family has been prominent in Illinois Republican party leadership since the days of Lincoln. Mr. Oglesby's father, Richard J. Oglesby, was governor three terms and United States senator one term. John Oglesby was lieutenant governor two terms. Father and son have been known to several generations of voters and have had part in most of the history of the party in the state.

Thus the candidate comes before the party as one experienced in the affairs of the state, identified with the agricultural interests, and competent in matters of government. Mr. Oglesby was born in March, 1878, and is now 57 years old. He is highly qualified for the office if special considerations do not favor a candidate from the young ranks of the party.

THE MELON SEASON.
[Columbus Dispatch.]

From now until frost melons will be plentiful. People fond of this food delicacy [and who isn't?] maintain that of all the products of nature the melon enjoys her most lavish talent, and who is there who can successfully dispute that claim?

As far as the cantaloupe is concerned there is always adventure in selecting it as well as palate satisfaction if the selection has been successful. Not always possible to judge what the meat may be by the outward appearance of the melon, there is always a delightful aroma to whet the anticipation of the diner. That odor, however, may be only a snare and delusion, for the inside may turn out to be flat and tasteless. But if this happens occasionally it only makes the appreciation of the good ones the greater. There is an old superstition among melon eaters that if the first cantaloupe of the season turns out to be well flavored the run of luck for the season is going to be exceptional.

We like to believe that this is true, for our first cantaloupe of the season was one of those saffron colored, deep meated fellows whose luscious juice and fiber fairly melted away on the tongue. For a while we will enjoy the melons from the desert gardens of the southwest, but these are only a prelude to the season when the native muskmelons arrive. The home grown ones are the pick of the year.

We noticed some of the hefty watermelons from Georgia the other day. Past experience has taught us that these early fellows are but a promise. The color is there and they are full bodied and well grown, but the flavor which makes the watermelon a prize article of food comes only in July, in Georgia or in any other latitude. The hot sun beating down on the melon fields is what puts the flavor into the red meat.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE PERNICIOUS ACTIVITY of the pants grabbing bandits seems to grow and grow. They robbed six citizens (or American subjects; we are waiting further word from Washington as to whether we are citizens or subjects) right here in Chicago Sunday night and after taking their money and watches also compelled them to divest themselves of their pantaloons. Which compels me to say again that perhaps it would be better for us free American citizens (or loyal subjects) to put on medieval armor such as the gallant old knights used to wear when we stroll about our pleasant city in the late evening. But gosh, the bandits are smart; you have to admit that. We wouldn't be clanking around in our armor a week before the bandits would jump on us with can openers. And if the can openers didn't work they might use acetylene torches or blow our iron pantaloons off us with high explosive. What's the use!

And the stars, and the little winds that riot
In the perfumed lilacs, and the hope that I soon
Am asleep and quiet.

Where nocturnal noises never penetrate,
And I stir not fitfully, lonely for one,
But forgetting grief, peacefully disintegrate

DENT CHANEY.

ELY sends in this quotation from one of Hal Sims' lessons on "Conquering Contract": "Robert Fulton wondered about the kettle sitting on the stove. The result was the steam engine." And Ely asks this cryptic question: "Watt is the name, please?" Well, Ely, I'll bite; watt is the name? Tom Edison? No! Galileo? No! Come on, give us a tell, watt is the name?

NOW THAT WE'RE GOING to have licensed places to lay down a bet in Chicago, I wish the bookies would offer bets on something besides horses. Whenever I bet on a horse he always turns and runs the other way when the race starts, and I've lost interest in the tracks. But it's a great puzzle as to what the Brain Trusters in Washington or congress will do next. It's a perfectly good sporting proposition. I wish the bookies would hang up some odds on Washington. I believe I'd take a chance.

IT LOOKS LIKE a busy summer. We've not only got to "swat the flies" and "swat the mosquitoes," as we've always had to do, but now the "swat the rich" campaign is on. Oh, it's going to be swat, swat, swat all over the places. "There, he's behind you," shrieks Cousin Laura, "and with the faithful swatter we turn and swat. And after we've swatted we may discover it was not a fly or a mosquito, but Mr. Junius Archibald Gotcash, the w. k. millionaire. But we needn't apologize. Flies, mosquitoes or the rich. Washington says it's all the same. Swat 'em!

WHAT, ONLY PART OF THE TIME! HIRE 'EM.

"TWO DRIVERS Involved in Fatal Accidents on Trial for Their Lives in Russia."—Headline. After all these months and years of trying, have we been able to get that drivers' license law passed by the legislature? I hope so, but it hadn't been up to the time I put the Line to bed yesterday. The point is that there are really some things they do better in Russia.

WELL, AFTER ALL maybe we'll get back to the old fashioned saloon. It'll be rather nice. There won't be so many ladies there drinking cocktails so messy that the barkeeps call them "New England Boiled Dinners," and the good old fashioned free lunch will return and once again we can pick up the forks that are as long as harpoons and spear a bologna, a section of gefülte fish, a half onion, and a slice of corned beef. And it's all free. So long as we buy beer. And on the big mirror behind the bar will again appear those talismanic words, "A Clam or an Egg with Every Drink." Oh joy!

THE OLD CABOOSE.

Trying ever with might and main
To keep abreast of the speeding load
But tagging behind on the "roaring" road.
Tardy at sidings, the last to leave,
Yet I may not complain or grieve,
Minding my own, last of the train,
Pounding out but the one refrain.
Song of the wheels in staccato notes
Clicking the rails, yet a music floats
Over the broad terrain and away,
Song of the train through the livelong day.
Dust on my wheels and weather worn,
Limping behind and a way forlorn,
But a car must fit to the place allowed
And why should an old caboose be proud?
Lumbering over the steel highway,
Rain in the sky or a blustery day,
Skirting the hills, and the desert knows,
For it has accorded me many blows.
Sand and silt and the staggering sun,
Glare on my roof till the heat is done,
Into the sunset gliding on,
Last to emerge in the paling dawn.
I must follow where engines lead,
Bending my will to an iron steed,
Every day till my frames are loose,

THE RUSTY NAIL.

WARNINGS against the rusty nail are sounded every now and then. If the great lessons of prevention can be learned, disastrous results will be minimized. Any type of injury that breaks the skin or the mucous membrane, even a hangnail or a pin prick, means potential disability. It is fortunate for all concerned that the modern treatment of minor wounds has shown improvement over that of a generation ago. Largely because of better and more accurate information the public has become wound conscious.

Nail puncture wounds may be minor. On the other hand, they may be serious, because the tissues close tightly after the nail is withdrawn and bacteria carried into the wound remain in a most favorable position for growth. A nail puncture may be half an inch or more in depth and organisms that do not require oxygen, such as tetanus or lockjaw, can hold high carnival in such wounds.

The recent experience of a large construction concern is of interest. The project involved the building of forms for the pouring of concrete. The average number of workmen employed was somewhat in excess of 2,000 and the term of employment continued for many months. During the period there were nearly 3,500 nail puncture wounds, which comprised 41 per cent of the total accidents. No loss of life resulted because strict rules relative to the prompt reporting of injuries were enforced. In only nine of the total number of cases was there loss of time—a total of 13½ days. No single case of severe disability occurred.

Wounds caused by rusty nails are no more serious than those made by clean nails except that the rusty nail is dirty and may carry more bacteria or more virulent types. Rust is caused by the action of the oxygen of the air upon iron and is really iron oxide, which is not particularly poisonous. Nails left in boards around farm yards and playgrounds gather bacteria from the soil and the air, and may be deadly if planted deeply in the tissues. It may be assumed that every wound is infected that is contaminated with dirt.

We may recall the story of the family living in a house with a leaking roof. When it is raining the roof cannot be repaired; after the rain ceases there is no need for repairs. Children may be taught to avoid injuries or, if they do occur, to seek first aid treatment.

Hot water and soap are excellent as cleansing agents and will remove most of the surface bacteria. Moist heat is probably the next most important measure. Hot wet dressings maintained over the wound area rally the defensive white cells of the blood and, in most instances, destroy the infection.

There is great difficulty in reaching the bottom of a puncture wound with a disinfecting agent such as carbolic acid or iodine. Absorption of bacteria takes place so quickly that it is doubtful if a cauterizing substance can reach every part of the wound channel. The situation is quite different, however, when the bacteria are on the surface, in which case soap and water, followed by a clean, sterile dressing which protects the wound from further infection, is the proper procedure. Cauterization with pure carbolic acid or with tincture of iodine may aid, but these measures cannot be relied upon with absolute security.

Individuals with dirty wounds made by soiled objects should always be given a dose of tetanus antitoxin sufficient to neutralize the poison of this organism should it be present. We must recall that the bacteria which cause lockjaw will not grow in the presence of air and for that reason no wound should be sealed with adhesive plaster, collodion, or other similar substances. A few layers of sterile gauze will keep out dust and afford free access to the oxygen of the air. As in many diseases the rattlesnake of bacteria—the streptococcic—is our worst injury enemy, and nail wounds may harbor both streptococci and tetanus organisms. Prompt attention to all wounds is of the highest importance.

EXERCISE CURE.

H. B. K. gives the unfortunate experience of a member of his family following the extraction of a wisdom tooth. It appears that the tooth was infected and extraction was followed by septicemia [blood poisoning].

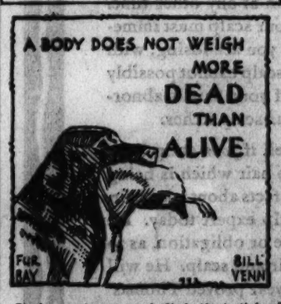
REPLY:

We had an article on the care necessary after wisdom tooth extraction a few months ago.

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the removal of impacted wisdom teeth is a major surgical procedure, and as great care should be employed as though a portion of the jaw bone were to be excised. After care following the operation is of even greater importance than the operation itself. Unless removal has been simple and easy and unaccompanied by injury to the soft parts, the patient should be put to bed and kept under competent supervision.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



It is a common belief that "dead weight" is greater than "live weight," both in animals and in human beings. The complete error of this idea is pointed out in numerous scientific documents; for there is virtually no difference between living and dead weight. Some claim that dead weight is slightly less than live weight. The idea of dead bodies being heavier seems to have originated with Stahl's celebrated doctrin of "phlogistom" [the substance of life] which was believed to have the quality of levity rather than weight, and it was supposed that the presence of life made a body lighter.

PURSUING MR. ROOSEVELT'S LINE.

Dubuque, Ia., June 19.—Because our Supreme court is the only tribunal in the world with power to sit in judgment on acts of its legislative body, our President suggests making our system more like those of the few remaining democracies by depriving the court of such privilege and duty. While this may be a splendid suggestion, we doubt the President would care to see it carried through to its logical conclusion. It could hardly be to his liking or benefit.

For our executive has powers even more extraordinary than the court's, and they would justly have to be altered as much. In no other country has an elected executive so much security in initiating and vetoing legislation. This is the only representative government, moreover, in which the administration serves for a definite term. Everywhere else a ministry depends upon a vote of confidence and tenure of office exists only from day to day. Under our system the administration is safely insulated from popular and parliamentary clamor for the duration of its term. All of which is most unusual, now that our attention has been called to it.

Does the President wish to step down the ladder and become a mere prime minister at the mercy of a vote of censure? This is what he must agree to do before we can allow him to degrade the court. We imagine he will prefer to allow things to remain as they are; to be satisfied with his present powers, second only to those of the increasingly popular dictators. He is nearly absolute over congress; it does about what he says. Without some check from the court he would be absolute over the country. This would be dictatorship, in fact a more complete rule than any constitutional monarch has ever aspired to without losing his head.

If the court is to be made subordinate to congress it will be only consistent to make the President equally a servant of that body instead of master. Will this reasonable condition meet with his approval?

THE UNIVERSITY'S BUDGET.

Champaign, Ill., June 21.—Our governor, the Hon. Henry Horner, is making one of the biggest mistakes, political and otherwise, that he ever made in his life in attempting to cut down the appropriation to the University of Illinois.

Approximately 110,000 students have attended the state university at one time or another and at the present time some 50,000 of these are living within the borders of the state. In the heart of practically every one of these alumni there is a very tender feeling for the institution that helped them gain their start in life. They will, every one, resent the attempt of the governor to deny the very reasonable request for support for the university from the board of trustees of the university. The unpopularity of Gov. Horner's stand is measured, to a certain extent, by the overwhelming vote of the state senate for the university appropriation as originally requested, in the face of Gov. Horner's opposition to it.

The demands of the university are very modest considering the great work this institution is carrying on. Its standards must be kept high for the benefit of our sons and daughters who will be its future students.

SHERMAN S. GARRETT, M. D.

ANALOGY.

Burlington, Wis., June 18.—When I hear marauding squirrels scolding poor frantic birds for protesting against the robbing of their nests I am reminded of the way the New Dealers hurl such abusive terms as defeatists, obstructionists, Tories, liars, at all who protest the destruction of their life's savings and hard fought liberties by the ruinous legislation now being passed by a servile and un-American congress.

Why can't these political marauders be brought to justice?

P. DARLING.

STRAY DOGS.

Chicago, June 19.—According to the newspapers, all stray dogs are supposed to be picked up by police or other agencies hired for that purpose.

These instructions are certainly not obeyed in the district in which I live, as in my daily walks of four blocks to and from the railroad station I invariably meet from six to twelve dogs on the loose.

SUFFERER.

SAFE AND SWEET.

Chicago, June 20.—In Paris is an Avenue Ranelagh, among the most fashionable of streets, bordering on the Bois de Boulogne and near La Muette, which has been closed to wheeled traffic and has thus become a secure playground. There are quite a few of the smaller roads in the Bois which have been closed in this way by having heavy wooden bars placed across the entrances to them.

Why not adapt the same plan to our beautiful city parks and restore them to the children and nature loving pedestrians so they may now walk, play and enjoy with safety and without the springtime air being infested with motor fumes?

SAMUEL C. MORRIS.

BOUQUET.

Chicago, June 18.—Just a few weeks ago a complaint was lodged against a group of men who congregated in the alley in the vicinity of 35th and Wood streets. The Brighton Park police were notified and immediately these undesirables were routed. It was surprising how quickly they responded and the results they obtained when they learned of the menace that threatened our community. The Brighton Park police are a credit to Chicago, and if a little of their efficiency were used where needed Chicago would be a better place to live in and would gain a better name for itself among the other cities.

NO REMEDIAL LEGISLATION NOW.

Madison, Wis., June 20.—[Friend of the People.]—I entered this country illegally as a sailor in May, 1924. In March, 1932, I married a woman of American birth. What steps are necessary for me to take in order to become a citizen?

F. S.

At present there is no remedial legislation providing for the legalization of residence of those aliens who entered the United States without inspection between June 3, 1921, and July 1, 1924. OUSTS ST. PAUL POLICE CHIEF IN BIG CRIME QUIZ

St. Paul, Minn., June 24.—[Special.]—Months of intensive investigation of the affairs of the St. Paul police department culminated today in the most drastic shakeup in the history of the city, branded a year ago by Attorney General Cummings as one of the nation's "breeding places" of crime.

Heads fell right and left as Safety Commissioner H. E. Warren made public the result of a sensational inquiry which involved the use of dictographs, telephone wire supervision, and a remarkable new invention which permitted the phonographic recording of conniving conversations between police executives and members of the underworld.

Five Ousted; 4 Told to Quit.

Resignations of four St. Paul policemen were demanded and five others, including Chief Michael Culligan, were suspended by Warren as a result of the investigations which centered on police complicity in slot machine operations, a race horse lottery, vice connections, and a tip-off system on raids.

Through the use of concealed microphones and amplifiers, Mr. Warren declared in a letter to Mayor Mark H. Gehan, there has been uncovered "surprising evidence of police ownership of slot machines" and "a sensational and illicit connection between police and criminal lawyers." Approximately 400 phonographic records were made, furnishing more than 3,000 pages of typewritten evidence.

Plan Grand Jury Action.

Policemen whose resignations were demanded are James Crumley, assistant chief of police and one of the oldest in the department; Fred W. Rassch, assistant to Crumley; Raymond D. Flanagan, plain clothes detective, and son of a former chief, and Michael McGinnis, plain clothes patrolman.

Suspended were Chief Culligan, Charles Tierney, inspector of detectives; Thomas Dahill, assistant inspector of detectives and a former chief; John J. McGowan, chauffeur, and Patrick Ridge, patrolman.

In some cases, Mr. Warren said, "flagrant neglect of duty rather than dishonesty" was the reason for the action taken.

More Dismissals Pledged.

Other dismissals and suspensions were promised. The four whose resignations were demanded announced their intention to fight instead of quitting. They had been informed that if they did not resign within twenty-four hours they would be discharged. Chief Culligan was out of the city.

Shortly after the shakeup was made known it was disclosed that Alexander Jamie, former head of the Chicago "Secret Six" group which fought crime in that city, had established residence in St. Paul. This was interpreted as meaning that Mr. Warren, who tried vainly to install Jamie as chief a year ago, might renew this effort. Warren originally sought Jamie's services to "clean up" St. Paul at a time when kidnapings and the activities of John Dillinger, Baby Face Nelson, and Homer Van Meter evoked comment by Cummings.

Jamie's appointment was blocked then by the St. Paul city council because he was not a resident.

Result of Year's Quiz.

The investigation which reached its climax Monday has been going on for a year, Mr. Warren said.

While scores of offenses are charged against some of the police executives mentioned, the case revolves around a race horse syndicate which was permitted to operate in defiance of Mr. Warren's orders.

This syndicate is supplied by wire service from a national betting organization. It had five outlets in the St. Paul loop and was headed by a group of gamblers whose names are familiar to the St. Paul underworld. Betting boards were erected and the places were crowded daily with persons anxious to place bets on races at various tracks. The profit on this enterprise is said to have been in the neighborhood of $2,000 a day and Mr. Warren will transmit information to the county attorney indicating that some of the police officials shared in this profit. A similar system of obtaining horse race data is said to be operating in Minneapolis.

In some cases numbers were assigned to members of the police department and the gambling ring and they often communicated with one another under these code designations.

There was a well organized tip-off system by which the gamblers were ordered to take down their boards and operate cautiously, particularly during grand jury sessions.

"Shortly after I became commissioner of public safety matters were brought to my attention which indicated that a number of police officers should be removed," Warren said in a letter to Mayor Mark Gehan. "At that time, however, I did not have sufficient evidence to sustain these removals if the men appealed for reinstatement before the civil service appeal board.

Puts Men in Key Spots.

"Men were placed in the department under suspicion in key positions where any illegitimate or particularly meretric activities would be more easily discernible.

"The investigators immediately started installing a monitor telephone unit—a clearing board on telephone conversations similar to that used in Milwaukee and other progressive police departments.

"Supplementing this monitor system, machines were installed to make aluminum records of actual conversations. Dictograph instruments also were made of office conversations thus obtained.

Calls Results Astounding.

"Thirty days ago the corps of investigators was enlarged and the transcribing of the records into typewritten form was begun. The results are no less than astounding.

"Conservatively, at least, 80 per cent of the conversations were damaging.

"Specifically, we found a startling connection between certain police officials and a ring of gamblers who were conducting a race horse lottery on a large scale. In addition we have surprising evidence of police ownership of slot machines, a tip-off system on raids, police connection with prostitution, police political activities, police efforts to block proper management of the department, a sensational and illicit connection between police and criminal lawyers, and many other activities.

Make 400 Records.

"Approximately 400 phonographic records were made. During the course of this investigation I have remained silent in the face of criticism in the hope that the ultimate results would convince the public that our efforts were sound."

The recording apparatus, which was instaled in a private room at police headquarters, is a highly sensitive instrument which not only recorded telephone and dictograph conversations, but also picked up the "asides"—remarks which officials would make to others in the room while using the telephone. By throwing a small switch various telephone calls could be "covered."

Voices on the 400 records that were made are said to be as clear as those over the radio.

Record All Phone Numbers.

Instruments also were installed which recorded every telephone number called and a careful check was made by the investigators of these calls. In additon, when suspicious conversations were heard a stat of investigators were detailed to follow the men concerned and to cover meetings between policemen and gamblers.

It is said that the federal government may become interested in some of the details of the wire facilities which supplied illicit racing information to the gamblers. A federal investigation of a national ring which supplied these facilities is already under way in Chicago.

RAPIST-SLAYER'S DIARY VICTIMS GIVE EVIDENCE

Make Statements as Trial Plans Are Sped.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—While keeping Gerald Thompson, confessed rapist-slayer of Mildred Hallmark, 19, hidden in an out of town jail to prevent the possibility of mob violence, police today took statements from the more than 30 victims of attacks described in Thompson's diary.

Other evidence, in addition to Thompson's confession, also was being gathered to present before the grand jury which convenes tomorrow. It is expected the jury will return a first degree murder indictment against Thompson within 24 hours after it meets.

State's Attorney E. V. Champion said the state will demand the death penalty. He announced he will ask a speedy trial as soon as the indictment is returned.

Girls Tell of Attacks.

Statements taken from Thompson's other victims are not to be used before the grand jury nor in the trial for Miss Hallmark's rape and death. Officials indicated this information is being gathered to provide a complete check on Thompson's activities and to supply the basis for court action if he escapes a penalty for the Hallmark crime.

Officials said several of the girl victims told them Thompson had thrown them nude before the headlights of his car, and taken pictures of them, threatening to use the pictures as evidence of willing compliance unless they kept silence.

Exclusive of his confession, authorities have no proof, so far as is known, of Thompson's guilt which would stand up in court, it was said. As to the confession, it was obtained partly by use of a lie detector and the sight of the slain girl's clothing, found with her battered body in a cemetery ditch a week ago today.

Youth Under Constant Guard.

Although Prosecutor Champion denied he anticipates mob violence against Thompson, he said he felt it was "better for all concerned" that the prisoner's whereabouts remain secret because of "various and good reasons." He admitted that the "Peoria citizenry is naturally resentful" of the crime.

NEST IN STATUE

Statue of Linne in Lincoln park with arrow indicating the hand where sparrows have made nest. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Carl von Linne, also known as Linnaeus, was a great naturalist and nature lover who died 157 years ago. He was the first to systematize plant life and make botany a science. To honor him for this work and to commemorate the love he bore for all nature the Swedish residents of Chicago erected a large statue at Fullerton parkway and Stockton drive in Lincoln park.

Yesterday a passerby paused at the statue. In the huge hand was proof that the kindness and nature love of Von Linne was still recognized. In the hand was a nest of straw and sticks and in this apartment sat a hen sparrow. Her mate perched saucily on one of the upraised fingers.

All day yesterday scores of park visitors peeked at the cozy home of the sparrow family. The sparrows didn't seem to mind and the face of the statue smiled kindly.

GENERAL STRIKE THREAT; TROOPS USE GAS, CLUBS

Lumber Pickets Routed by Guard in Tacoma.

Tacoma, Wash., June 24.—[Special.]—National Guardsmen and state police used tear gas and clubs today to disperse a mob of several hundred striking lumber workers who assembled in the sawmill section of the city, where the lumber mills opened tonight on a limited basis. Hundreds fled in all directions as tear gas bombs were hurled into the crowds.

The Tacoma Central Labor council was hurriedly called into session and unconfirmed reports said a general strike was under consideration as a protest against use of National Guardsmen in dispersing strikers.

Forced by the tear gas to relinquish their stand, the pickets retreated toward the business section. But as they went they shouted epithets at the troopers and frequently referred to Gov. Clarence D. Martin by name.

The governor ordered out the National Guard last night when employers asked for that protection in an attempt to resume operations. Some employers in other cities have been frustrated in efforts to open their plants in the face of the widespread lumber strike which involves some 35,000 workers.

Strike in Eighteen Bakeries.

Cleveland, O., June 24.—[Special.]—A shortage of bread and bakery goods was feared here today as a result of the labor dispute in that industry which has closed the doors of eighteen large Cleveland bakeries and thrown 2,650 persons out of work. Other bakeries speeded up operations to attempt to prevent a shortage.

Members of the Bakery and Confectionary Workers union asked President Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Perkins to mediate the trouble. The workers claim the shutdown was an attempt to break the unions by "starving out employés."

Officials of the closed plants said the dispute resulted from the attempts of the drivers' union committee to force them to agree to discharge union workers who did not pay their dues, fines, or assessments. The companies contended it was the union's job to take care of such matters.

3,000 Textile Men Out.

Providence, R. I., June 24.—[Special.]—Upward of 3,000 workers in six mills of the Uxbridge Worsted company today responded to a strike called by the United Textile Workers of America. Union leaders said they wanted a 20 per cent wage increase and equalization of the machine load.

At Uxbridge, Mass., 800 workers were on strike; at Putnam, Conn., 600; Pascoag, R. I., 400; Lowell, Mass., 300, and in two plants at Woonsocket, R. I., 750. It was the first serious trouble in the textile industry in New England since the demise of the Blue Eagle.

Woman Is Arrested.

An Idol in an Idle Moment

(From the Herald Tribune)

Miss Barrie, whose mere nineteen years may have preserved her from being tired by the journey, left the plane first, looking fresh enough and very smart, in a gray and green dress with coat to match, and a bright green picture hat of straw. She was bare-legged, and unconcerned before the large gathering of autograph hunters and inquirers who met the plane. Her mother and Miss Drake, both of them as innocent of stockings as Miss Barrie, followed her, and then Barrymore appeared at the top of the gangplank.

His face was deeply lined, and he appeared nervous. His look of exhaustion was emphasized by the thick gray stubble of none-too-recent vintage which covered his cheeks. His French blue yachting coat, and his white flannels boldly striped with green, looked as if they might be the better for a good deal of pressing, and even his green Homburg hat was bashed. He wore socks, however.

He said that he had made a property settlement of "over $75,000" on the former Dolores Costello. Asked if it was true that he had ever "become violently enraged" with her, he answered that he had "never been enraged with any of my wives before," and that he did not know why he "should start now."

Last Laugh

Detective Harry Western of the Jersey City Police headquarters picked up the receiver to hear a voice say "I think all cops are bums." Lieut. Western called softly to Lieut. O'Neill and told him to stall the man while the call was traced . . .

(From the Herald Tribune)

"Hello, you bum," said the voice. "I understand you're the guy that was supposed to get me. What's the matter with you, you mug?"

"Well," said Lieutenant O'Neill, thinking hard, "I guess you have been too smart for me. What have you been doing?"

"I've been sleeping on a boat, clown," said the voice. "I'm the guy that's wanted for knocking over a produce truck in Utica. They've been looking for me hard up there."

While the lieutenant was racking his brain to make conversation, Detective Western had traced the call to John O'Brien's Tavern, York and Hudson Streets. Within a few minutes Patrolmen Frank Le Strange and John Alfieri pulled up at the tavern. As they entered a young man in the telephone booth was laughing loudly.

"Listen, you," he said into the phone, "I'll bet I could walk up to a cop, hit him in the eye and then get away."

The young man looked out of the booth.

The young man made no attempt to carry out his eye-hitting threat, but nodded in a friendly manner and walked up to the patrolmen.

"Well," he said, "maybe I'll learn one of these days to keep my mouth shut."

The Babe Quits

(From the Herald Tribune)

As Fuchs expected, Ruth did attract the crowds—for a while. But he attracted them just as a talking dog, a trained seal or a two-headed calf might have brought them through the gates. As a baseball player he was definitely through. When his batting average fell below .200 and the Braves were deeply intrenched in the cellar, the fans didn't want to see a talking dog or a trained seal any longer. They wanted to see a ball club trying to win.

Ruth's usefulness to the Braves was at an end. He had been exhibited once in every city in the circuit and the fans couldn't be fooled again into believing he still was great. So Fuchs asked him to resign. But what about his position as vice-president? What about his job as assistant manager? What about that unwritten understanding that he was to be next year's manager?

The Babe was informed that they didn't mean a thing. He was through. It all wound up very unpleasantly. It always does when any one hires a ball player for any other reason than his ability to play ball.

Denton Leases Larger Quarters For Tailored Woman on 5th Av.

To Double Store Frontage at 735, Provide Extra Space as Business Gains

Eugene K. Denton, president of The Tailored Woman, Inc., 729 Fifth Avenue, has signed a lease for the adjoining store at 735 Fifth Avenue, which will double his frontage on the avenue, and provide additional space for a business which he said, was already too large for present quarters. The new store extends 225 feet to the rear, and includes a mezzanine and basement.

Mr. Denton said that he was most optimistic for retail trade this year. While sales up to the end of April at The Tailored Woman were about 9 per cent more than the first four months of 1934, he believed that business in May and June would show increases substantial enough to record a 20 per cent gain for the six-month period. Still better business will develop through the fall season, he believed.

Mr. Denton recalled that his 1934 gain for the first six months of that year had topped the same period of 1933 by 40.9 per cent. During the first four months of this year he said that his biggest increase had been made in suits, although coats had also been good.

Mr. Denton attributed the steady gains which his business had enjoyed to daily use of newspaper advertising. "I have used daily space in one newspaper for close to 400 consecutive issues," he said. "The response has been such that I am increasing my appropriation for newspaper advertising by 50 per cent over last year's figure," Mr. Denton said. The new store, Mr. Denton said, would be open within a day or two and would be given over to a "cotton shop" until the end of July when alterations would be made. Plans for the changes at that time include converting the entrance and include converting into a single large display window 19 feet 8 inches long and 13 inches high.

THE TAILORED WOMAN
EUGENE K. DENTON, President
729 FIFTH AVENUE AT 57TH STREET

Merchants no more than Mariners can be masters of their destinies when a capricious, autocratic public bosses them.

Therefore, when a New York merchant increases his advertising, enlarges his quarters and steps up his volume in times like these . . . and when he depends upon a great news medium to make his messages arrive, an insistent business world must know who the merchant, who his audience, how he does it.

A merchant case in point is Mr. Eugene K. Denton who heads Fifth Avenue's famous "Tailored Woman" shop. To success-story interviewers, this is the word he gives: "I have used daily space in one newspaper (*) for close to 400 consecutive issues." And the result: "response has been such that I am increasing my appropriation for newspaper advertising by 50% over last year's figures."

New York is no one-newspaper city any more than it is a one-market city. But there is one market among its many that all New York merchants prize, that all advertisers of both necessity and luxury goods want, and that merchants like Mr. Denton command. It is New York's most eager-to-buy-new-things market, and the New York Herald Tribune is the master medium of the merchants who command it.

Howard-Hilton Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucius Hilton (Charme Lee Howard) after their wedding yesterday.

Three Brides Take Vows at Church Rites

There's seldom a Monday that boasts three weddings of social interest. This was yesterday's distinction. Late in the afternoon at the altar of the Winnetka Congregational church Miss Laura Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Bartlett of Winnetka, became the bride of Francis Daniels Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wyatt Moore, also of Winnetka.

In the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapel at 4 o'clock Miss Charme Lee Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Claude Howard of Davenport, Ia., former Chicagoans, was married to Edward Lucius Hilton, the Henry Hoyt Hiltons' son.

In a third wedding last night at the Bryn Mawr Community church Miss Margery Chapline became the bride of Randall Vernon Ratcliffe.

Several hundred friends and relatives of Miss Bartlett and Mr. Moore were present at their wedding service, which was read by Dr. Samuel D. Harkness. The bride was gowned in the same lovely ivory satin dress that her mother wore on her wedding day. The dress was trimmed in hand made lace that matched the bridal veil. She carried a shower bouquet of vallcy lilies.

The bride's attendants wore pale blue chiffon with magenta sashes, hats, and slippers for contrast. Their flowers were delphinium. Miss Henrietta Boal was maid of honor and Miss Heath Horton, Miss Leslie Winslow, Miss Tayloe Hannaford, Miss Fidelia Richards, and Miss Harriet Moore, a sister of the bridegroom, were the bridesmaids.

After a reception at the Bartlett home at 710 Walden road in Winnetka Mr. Moore and his bride departed on a motor trip west. Upon their return they will go on to Boston to make their home since Mr. Moore will begin his medical course at Harvard university in the autumn.

For two reasons Miss Howard and Mr. Hilton chose to be married yesterday in Chicago rather than in Davenport. The Howards lived longer in Chicago than in Davenport and then, too, the Hilton chapel is a memorial to Mr. Hilton's late brother.

Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends heard the young couple repeat their wedding vows after Wilfred G. Davis, who only last week received his degree from the Chicago Theological seminary. The Rev. Mr. Davis is the son of the late Dr. Ozora S. Davis, who was one of the senior Mr. Hilton's best friends at Dartmouth. It was the Rev. Mr. Davis' first wedding service.

The bride was gowned in a clinging ankle length dress of gray crepe back satin. She wore a turquoise blue hat. Her flowers were violas. Her sister, Mary Howard, who was her only attendant, was gowned in dusty pink lace with a matching broad brimmed hat. Her flowers were roses and delphiniums.

Mr. Hilton was served by Luke Wilson of Washington, D. C., as best man and ushering were Lloyd Allais and Darriss Mills of Cleveland. After a reception at the Windermere East hotel Mr. Hilton and his bride left on a wedding trip, the destination of which is unannounced. The late summer they will spend at Lake Willoughby in Vermont and then return to Chicago to settle for the winter while Mr. Hilton completes his law course at the University of Chicago.

For her wedding Miss Chapline was striking in a gown of ivory chantilly lace fashioned on simple lines with long sleeves, a high cowl neck, small buttons from the neck to the waistline, and a train. Her veil of finger tip length was of ivory tulle and was held in place by a coronet braid of tulle. She carried a bouquet of white orchids combined with valley lilies.

The bridesmaids wore gowns of high-light blue mousseline de soie with matching hats. Their flowers were pink roses and delphiniums. They included Miss Gwendolyn Evans, Mrs. Donald Kerr, Mrs. Frank Howard, and Miss Truth Milner of Salt Lake City. As matron of honor Mrs. James Whitney Hall of Detroit wore dusty pink and carried a large bouquet of delphiniums.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the South Shore Country club. Then Mr. Ratcliffe and his bride left on a wedding trip to Banff, Lake Louise, and California. Upon their return they will make their home in Chicago. The bride's parents are Jesse Grant Chapline, president of the La Salle Extension university, and Mrs. Chapline, whose home is on Luella avenue.

Weddings

Dr. and Mrs. Albert Rudolph Hatcher of Wellington, Kas., announce the marriage of their daughter, Alberdine, to William John Fulton last Wednesday in Wellington. Mr. Fulton, a member of THE TRIBUNE editorial staf, is the son of Judge and Mrs. William J. Fulton of Sycamore. Judge Fulton is a Circuit judge in the 16th judicial district. Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Illinois.

The marriage of Miss Virginia Florence Sandberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stevens Sandberg of Glencoe, and David Payson Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ira Hicks, will take place at 4:30 o'clock next Saturday in the garden of the Sandberg home. The Rev. Douglas H. Cornell of Glencoe Union church will read the service.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Evelyn Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Turner of Chicago, to Phil R. Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster E. Hamilton of Wichita, Kas. The marriage took place on June 10 in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will live in Wichita.

Dr. J. H. Franklin Is Nominated as Baptist President

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 24.—(AP)—The Northern Baptist convention turned today to consideration of resolutions aimed at "evils of modern society" after it had received nominations for officers for 1936.

The other nominations included Dr. John Nuveen of Chicago, president of the American Baptist seminary, for president of the American Baptist Historical society.

To aid Dr. Franklin at the 1936 convention the Rev. Gordon M. Palmer of Claremont, Cal., was proposed as first vice president, and Miss Jessie Burrall Eubank of Cincinnati, second vice president.

The nominations were considered certain to be approved by the convention tomorrow.

The resolutions under consideration condemned motion pictures with immoral features; gambling, liquor, etforts to repress religion and child labor.

Harmony unexpectedly marked the action of the convention as it referred its controversial Christian social action report to individual churches for study.

Many Chicago Residents Will Visit Salzburg

Music and Drama Festival Is the Magnet.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ANY Chicagoan who visits Salzburg during the drama and music festival in August will feel that it is "old home week" without a doubt, for there will be so many Chicagoans there that if one were to close his eyes to the Alpine scenery, the baroque castles and the other things that make the Austrian town in which Mozart was born different from Chicago, and concentrate on the people around him, he might think he was right back at home, perhaps at the North Shore Drama festival which opened last night in Glencoe.

Almost every one who is going abroad this summer seems to be planning to visit Salzburg during the festival and one seasoned traveler who likes to leave Chicagoans as well as Chicago behind when he goes vacationing said before he left for Europe that he was cutting Salzburg off his itinerary just because he did not want to go there when it was overrun with his home-townsfolk.

Many who do not feel as he does, however, will rejoice when familiar faces are seen in Salzburg and the festival will become more of a pleasure to them because they are enjoying it with friends.

Salzburg is the goal of Mrs. Charles H. Swift and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, who sail on the Europa Saturday of this week with Mr. Goodspeed. He will have only a few days ashore, for he is going over mainly for the sea voyage and will return home after four days on land.

The Laurance H. Armours sail on the Rex on July 9; Durand Smith sails on July 17 on the Manhattan to attend a wedding in England and then to go to the festival in Salzburg; and Carleton Smith will go to Salzburg after a month in Finland.

Mrs. F. Stanley Rickcords and her daughter, Anne, and Miss Peggy Hambleton, who went abroad early this month, will be in Salzburg in August, and so will dozens of other Chicagoans who have chosen Europe as their playground this summer.

Katherine Dudley Sails July 20.

Miss Katherine Dudley is leaving Chicago the end of this week, but she is not sailing until July 20 on the Ile de France. She will spend the summer with her mother and sisters, Mrs. Emilius C. Dudley, Mrs. Joseph Deiteil, and Mrs. Henry Blodgett Harvey, at their home near Toulon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey have decided to sail on the 5th of July to spend the summer at their château in France. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, are talking of joining them later in the summer for a vacation.

Mrs. Philip Maher and her two sons will leave Friday to spend the summer in the Adirondacks. Mrs. Maher has rented a camp on Strawberry Island in Racquette lake where her sister, Mrs. John Bitter, will be spending the summer on an adjoining island at her husband's mother's camp.

The junior Byron S. Harveys will be saying "au revoir" to their Chicago friends about Aug. 1 and departing for Kansas City, Mo., which they will call home for a year at least. They are a popular and attractive young couple and will be greatly missed. Before they move they will go to southern California for a vacation, leaving right after July 4. Mrs. Harvey Sr. will leave at the same time for a stay on a ranch near Santa Fe, N. M.

Miss Laura Sprague has returned from the Foxcroft school in Virginia, where she is an instructor in riding, and has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, at their residence, 1130 Lake Shore drive.

Cable Family Going to New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Peter, Arthur Jr., and Susan will leave by motor this week for their home in New Mexico where they plan to spend the rest of the summer. "The Jail"—the original part of the house really was an old jail and some of the windows still have bars on them - will be filled with college friends of Peter's during a great part of the summer, for he has invited a number of Harvard classmates to visit him. Arthur Jr. also will have some of the boys who go to Milton academy with him at "The Jail" this summer.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. William Burry Jr. motored to town from Lake Forest to be at the station to meet her mother, Mrs. Arnold Klebs, and Dr. Klebs, who arrived from their

A FAMILY of farmers downstate recently inherited a few bags of money. One of the sons decided that now was the time to get his father, who had had an eyeless socket for some years, a glass eye.

"Pa," he said, "now that we've got some extra money why don't you go over to Peoria and see that specialist I've heard about and get yourself a glass eye?"

The old man did so and after he had been home a few days one of the boys inquired about his eye.

"It feels fine and it sure looks good, don't it?"

His family agreed, but one of the sons inquired:

"But can you see anything out of it?"

"No, by heck, I can't."

The whole family rose in indignation at this point and went to town to see a lawyer. It took the lawyer two hours to prove to them that they didn't have grounds for a suit against the doctor.

A PRETTY business girl observed reading the political news one morning last week was heard to inquire what NRA stood for, but the nominee for the hall of transitory fame this week is the stenographer who looked up from her typing to inquire:

"Joe, what's morning—a. m. or p. m.?"

THERE are innumerable things to perplex young brains and the following conversation that took place between two little girls in Glencoe is an example. One child commented to her smaller sister that last Friday, June 21, was the longest day of the year.

"I don't see how it can be," objected her sister. "I thought Friday was always a fast day."

WEEK-END memorabilia: Jean Wilhelm, coming down the flagged garden path on her father's arm, dark eyed, beautiful, serious, and her bridegroom, Daggett Harvey, waiting at the altar, never moving his eyes from her face. THE incident occurred in Muscatine, Ia.'s largest department store. A group of three lamps was offered at a bargain price and the salesman had just launched his talk to a prospective customer.

"This table lamp and this bridge lamp," he began, and at this point he was interrupted by a customer.

"O, I don't need a bridge lamp. I only play five hundred," she said.

D. A. R. Medals Are Barred at British Court

BY ANN WHITTINGHAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 24.—Miss Helen Jacobs, American tennis star, and twenty-two other American women today were preparing to be guests of Queen Mary of England, at the third and fourth courts of the jubilee year, to be held tomorrow and Wednesday. But any Americans eligible to wear Daughters of the American Revolution pins will leave them at home.

Miss Marianna Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn of Kansas City and Washington and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Laurance H. Armour of Chicago, is among the debutantes for the third court.

Another girl from the west is Miss Betty Timmons of Wichita, Kas., and from the south comes Miss Huldah Warfield Cheek of Nashville.

Mrs. Claude Leigh, who formerly was Miss Myrtle Johnson of Chicago, will present her daughter, Miss Joyce Leigh and her husband's daughter, Miss Joan Leigh. They are among the English debutantes.

The sudden burst of glorious weather has given every one the hope that the beautiful gardens of Buckingham palace will be available to the royal guests, making the occasion even more suggestive of fairyland than it usually is.

In honor of the Americans to be presented, Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, wife of the American ambassador, who will formally make the presentations, gave a tea this afternoon at which very specific instructions were given.

All the Americans will go four in a car in order to reduce the congestion in the palace courtyard. Directions about the curtsy were given and a sketchy informal rehersal of the routine of the pageant was enacted.

One question asked was about the wearing of decorations and badges. For example, should one wear a pin of the D. A. R. or Colonial Dames and such?

The embassy's rule is that the only decorations which may be worn are those conferred by our own government, such as the congressional medal or those conferred by a foreign government, such as the French Legion of Honor.

There was considerable disappointment among the debutantes when it was learned that King George will be absent. Queen Mary is holding both courts alone.

ARE SENATORS SPONSORS?
To secure the presentation of one's constituents or friends at the court of St. James's is considered among politicians a choice morsel of political patronage, but one not to be talked of in public. Accordingly it is never officially admitted that anybody sponsors anybody for the royal privilege, but since senators of the prevailing party are held responsible, the following senators would be credited for securing presentations to this month's courts:

Harry S. Truman and Bennett C. Clark of Missouri, one; George McGill of Kansas, one; Kenneth McKellar and Nathan L. Bachman of Tennessee, one; Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner, eight; George L. Radcliffe and M. E. Tydings of Maryland, four; Richard B. Russell Jr. and Walter F. George of Georgia, three; Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, one.

Barrie Play Reflects Skill of Cast, Director.

"MARY ROSE."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The North Shore Drama festival, organized as Chicago's first adventure in summer theatricals of the type that flourishes along the eastern seaboard, got off to a handsome start last night with a revival of Barrie's drama of a haunted house and an enchanted island, "Mary Rose." The play, well acted by a cast that is professional in every aspect, and staged in a manner that proves Ben Guy Phillips' skill as a director, was received with enthusiasm by a large audience of north shore residents and downtown first-nighters.

The scene of this "festival"—which will be a series of four plays, each with its guest stars, to run through the next ten weeks—is the auditorium of the Central school in Glencoe. It is, however, something more than a school auditorium; it is a well equipped and capacious theater, which makes the reconditioned barns and garages that the summer drama inhabits in the east seem decidedly shabby. Under these conditions, and under a policy which has barred ever" aspect of amateurism, this new born north shore drama festival promises to be something worthy of hearty support from the Chicagoans who profess themselves to be hungry for some satisfactory playgoing.

Ravinia's summer opera, famous in the cultural life of the north shore for many years, has been closed for four years. This drama festival of Ben Guy Phillips' leadership may easily become its successor, or at any rate may fill its place until Ravinia calls its song birds back again. Louis Eckstein, executive force who stood behind Ravinia for so many years, attended last night's opening, happy to see something new spring up that represented, in the more modest field of drama, his own ideals.

Barrie's Ghost play, telling a strange story of mysticism with the emotional relationship between the dead and the living as its theme, is now having its first revival on the American stage since 1921, when Ruth Chatterton acted the title rôle. The new Mary Rose, a character in which Barrie's sentimental touch is blended with an elusive supernaturalism, is Edith Barrett, known in Chicago for her delicate performance in "Mrs. Moonlight" and in New York for a number of similar achievements. She is an actress with a lovely face and a natural gift for the fluttering and tremulous note in shy emotions.

There is probably no better actress on the American stage at present for this slightly uncanny heroine of Barrie's—a Victorian ingénue in one act, a young wife with intimations of a tragic destiny in another, and finally a ghost, haunting the deserted home of her childhood in search of her lost baby.

Eric Dressler, so-star with Miss Barrett, able leading man of many Broadway productions, has what amounts to a dual rôle—a rough Australian soldier, back from the war, in the first and last scenes, and in the main body of the play, the young lover and husband that had been his own father. He is on the stage, in one guise or the other, for practically the entire performance, and carries off this difficult assignment with ease and charm.

Edgar Kent as the father of Mary Rose, Alice John as the mother, and J. W. Austin as the learned highland boatman—one of Barrie's best bits of racial character study—give the costars excellent support.

"Mary Rose" will remain in nightly performance through this week and the next, Sunday excepted.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

A cream mascara that is waterproof, easy to apply, and handy to carry, is ideal for the would-be mermaid. An indispensable eye make-up aid for the beach.

If you're the eye make-up addict that we are and if you are also inclined to turn amphibian in the summertime, you'll be as delighted as we were with a new cream waterproof mascara for lashes and brows. Its paramount virtue is the fact that it darkens the lashes to the ravenest of blacks without leaving them either beaded or stiff-looking. It gives the eyes a soft and luminous appearance without any hint of the boldness that accompanies an overdone mascara job.

A trick that we discovered while experimenting with it was to apply it as generously as seemed convenient, and then, after both eyelashes and brush were completely dry, brush the lashes out so that the little pairs and triplets that had banded together as a result of the operation were all neatly returned to their normal places.

Its second virtue is that it's truly easy to apply. And with complete safety, too, for it doesn't sting or smart even when the eye gets a misplaced dose. It comes in a handy little tube, with the usual tiny brush, and it requires no water for its application. All you have to do is squeeze a bit of it out onto the little brush and fire away.

The whole outfit comes tucked in a neat black satin case that fits into a corner of purse or makeup kit.

And it really is waterproof, too. Fly in and out of the water as much as you please and you'll still look as alluring as to eyes as any mermaid. Or, if you are planning a good cry on a masculine shoulder—we assure you that it's just what you'll be needing. Absolutely ideal for the purpose, in fact! M. S.

Smart, Roomy Outfits Await Tennis Players

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Specialized sports clothes greet you in every sports shop and sports department in town. They must help your game or they wouldn't be taken out into circulation so swiftly. For instance, if you're a devotee of the grand old game of tennis, take a good, long peek at the proper clothes before you hand out any more alibis.

One shop shows some of the best white tennis outfits a budding champion ever dreamed about. They are heavy silk crepe dresses made for the wildest spurts of action, sleeveless affairs, most of them with lots of trickery in the way all the necessary plaits are inserted in the skirt. These skirts are long and trim and slim when you stand still, but grand creations when you start streaking across the court to wham a net ball.

There is a particular model made with four inch wide plaits starting from the shoulders and going right down to the hemline, four of the flattest pressed plaits creased into a skirt. The backline is low and cut square with four similar plaits on each shoulder reaching only to the waistline. The front neckline is also square and moderately high. The dress is a miracle of superplaiting and simplicity. With it you can wear a bright colored sash or not.

A famous tennis star sponsors another knockout, of the same stark simplicity of silhouette and heavy silk crepe. It has three patch pockets, buttons on, down the right side with flat pearl buttons and also buttons on the right shoulder. This model also has a square cut neckline front and back.

If you like V necklines and the mere suggestion of a cleverly twisted scarf collar you'll like another all white dress made with four patch pockets, inverted kick plaits in the skirt for freedom of the knees and a medium wide belt of the silk. Don't scream for color if you would be correctly dressed for tennis. The best and smartest clothes sponsored by champions of the game are models of extreme and classic simplicity, made of white heavy silk.

The Ortega Feud

By Marie De Nervaud

SYNOPSIS.

Chris Jackson is sent by Bill Benton, new sheriff of Monterey county, to put an end to the Ortega-Alvado feud, which has resulted in numerous murders. Both families believe California to be still Spanish and want Americans kept out. Pietro Sanchez runs the general store of the Big Sur Valley. While calling there Chris encounters Guido Ortega, Ramon, his dare-devil son, and Ysabel, his beautiful sad eyed niece. He falls in love with Ysabel at first sight, and has a quarrel with Ramon and publicly spanks him. Chris outfits himself for a supposed lion hunting trip. He receives a note sent by messenger from Ysabel Ortega hinting of a mysterious danger, begging his aid, and asking him to meet her in a fortnight. Chris camps in a canyon on the northern boundary of the Alvado ranch. A shot from an unseen hand gives him warning to leave. He is saved by Rocky, an old Indian hunter, who advises him to leave the country. Next day Chris meets Francesca Alvado, flirtatious Spanish beauty, who warns him her father welcomes no strangers. Chris tells her of his encounter with Ramon Ortega. It gains him entree to the Alvado ranch. Guido Alvado invites Chris to a rodeo to be held in a week. During the rodeo the warring families hold a traditional three day truce. Ysabel Ortega is facing a forced marriage with her cousin, Ramon. Her uncle refuses to tell her the secret of her birth, as he had promised to do on her eighteenth birthday. She tries to escape from the ranch, but every road is guarded.

INSTALMENT XIV.

A PRISONER.

Pietro gave a deprecating shrug. "I am sorry, señorita, but my orders are that no one must pass."

Controling her voice with difficulty, Ysabel smiled up at him with all the nonchalance she could command.

"But naturally, that does not mean me, Pietro. What is wrong? More trouble with the Alvados?"

As she asked the question, she murmured to Estar and made as though to pass him by, but Pietro deftly caught her bridle.

"I am sorry, señorita; but it means you especially. The señor has ordered me not to let you pass; and to shoot at sight any stranger. He is keeping guard here until Padre Ignatio comes, this afternoon."

Ysabel could feel her own blood beating in her ears, but by a supreme effort of will she kept the tolerant smile on her lips.

"That is ridiculous, Pietro! You must have misunderstood my uncle. He will be very angry if he knows you have been so stupid as to stop my morning ride. Let me pass, and we will say no more about it."

Pietro stubbornly shook his head, and tightened his grip on the bridle.

"It would be as much as my life was worth, señorita; you must go back."

Realizing that she could not move him, Ysabel yielded with a well acted air of amused indifference, but her mind was seething. She hadn't a doubt now, but that her uncle had foreseen that she would try to escape, and with diabolical cruelty, he had made it all easy up to the last moment.

"The Senor has ordered me not to let you pass——"

There was just one chance that she might outwit him yet; one loophole that he might have overlooked.

This canyon she was now in was impassible save at this point and one other. That other was at the crest of the ridge. Though there was no trail there, Ysabel had heard the vaqueros tell, at times, of penetrating through its tangled underbrush. If they could do it, she could, driven by her desperate necessity.

It was unlikely that her uncle would have thought to station a guard there; she must keep Pietro from suspecting her intention, then make for the ridge and try her luck.

"You are absurd, Pietro!" Ysabel surprised herself at the natural quality of her light laugh, "I will take my ride on the range instead of the trail, but you have not heard the last of this!"

With this hollow threat, she turned abruptly, and headed Estar back up the trail. Once out of sight of Pietro, she urged him to the rim of the canyon, then set off up the range at a hard gallop.

Zigzagging along the tiny cattle trails that laced their way through the dense chemisa that lay like a dark band across the middle reaches of the hills, Ysabel strained her eyes toward the distant ridge.

With a shudder, Ysabel glanced at the brush on either side of the cattle trail that cut through it. Unless she could make her escape through the canyon, the chemisa held her a prisoner as effective as any bolts or bars. Bad as it was here, it would be infinitely worse in the canyon; yet she would rather try to force her way through, even with the dread possibility of running across a rattler, than have to go back.

At last, she came out of the chemisa, and paused for a moment to give Estar a breathing space. It was quite light now, and the sky was beginning to show streaks of pink that heralded the sunrise.

Far below the ocean lay, a heaving mass of moulten lead, still untouched by the hint of the dawn that lighted the sky and the upper reaches of the hills. On the plateau, the hacienda's white mass lay inert.

Pushing on toward her objective, Ysabel felt all her faculties, and her breath itself suspended, until she could make sure the coast was clear. There were enough difficulties ahead, heaven knew, but she felt confident she could overcome those, if she could once escape from her uncle's domain.

Straining and breathing hard, Estar reached the fringe of pines that topped the ridge and Ysabel peered through the long vistas cut by multitude of tree trunks.

Guiding Estar among them, she twined her way toward the canyon, her eyes darting from one side to the other and her every sense alert.

With a sudden gasp she reined in, and held Estar motionless. Not far from her, sat two vaqueros, lolling at ease in their saddles as they smoked and chatted together.

For a moment, all the blood seemed to drain from Ysabel's heart. Her uncle had not overlooked this last loophole of escape!

The vaqueros were facing the other way, and had not seen her as yet. Accepting the bitter fact of defeat, Ysabel silently turned Estar about, and made a strategic retreat. Glancing over her shoulder as long as the vaqueros were in sight she made sure they had not seen her or heard Estar's hoofs which were muffled in the deep bed of pine needles.

Once out of sight, Ysabel let her reins fall slack on Estar's neck, and gave him his lead with the abandon of despair.

She had no idea how long he wandered through the pines, but when she at last pulled herself back to coherent thought, the first rays of the sun were slanting through the dark green branches overhead.

With a sharp exclamation she pulled up short as her eye caught a figure striding through the pines far down the slope of the east ridge.

The next instant it disappeared over a ledge of rock, but there was no mistaking that swinging Indian tread.

"Rocky!" Ysabel breathed. "But they told me Rocky was dead!"

Without trying to reconcile these two unreconcilable facts, Ysabel slid to the ground. Realizing she could make better time than Estar could on this tricky descent, she left him and scrambled over the granite ledges, calling "Rocky! Rocky!" at the top of her lungs.

There was no reply, and after dropping down a hundred yards or so, Ysabel paused in perplexed uncertainty.

Had she really seen Rocky, or was it all an hallucination? Surely, if it had been Rocky he would have answered! There was a breeze blowing her way, so it was just possible her voice hadn't carried so far. But Rocky's hearing was so acute, it seemed incredible that having heard, he had failed to respond.

All through Ysabel's childhood, Rocky had stood out as a most thrilling and romantic character. On his sporadic appearances at the ranch he would tell her marvelous tales of adventure, and occasionally bring her out on excursions into the woods which would take on an entirely new aspect as he unfolded their secrets to her.

It had been with real grief that she had heard the report at the convent, about a year before, that he had died. And now, to have him appear when she so desperately needed him seemed little short of a miracle.

Ysabel called again and again, but there was no response, and at last she climbed back to Estar.

"Did I dream it, Estar?" she murmured, as she picked up his reins, and led him to a stump from which she could mount to her side saddle.

Abruptly changing her mind, she sat down on the stump instead, and buried her face in her hands.

What course was open now? To ignominiously go back? Or to lose herself in the mountains?

Good Morning!

This is just another movie.

It deals incompetently with the activities of newspaper men and cops, and its much ado, while hectic, is of synthetic make and failed to quicken my pulse by one—single—beat.

A murder starts the ball rolling.

Certain headlines objectionable to the police commissioner, a good and unbribable man, cause that people's choice to order that no news be given out by the police department to the boys of the press.

A master mind among the latter devises an "out" and a dumb, flat floot pavement pounder, bribed by publicity, flattery and promises of nothing short of the mayorship if he comes through, agrees to become a tipster and hand the lads of the fourth estate the low down on what's happening at headquarters. . . .

The story would have been a heap more effective if Officer Meyer had been writen in as less of an ass.

As is, he couldn't possibly have been any good to anybody. Ah well——

Things go on and on. . . . Master Mind Bob Grayson, having pulled the faux pas of collecting a fair lady in a night club whom he believes to be a murderess but who turns out to be his publisher, does some fast thinking, fast acting—and fast falling in love. . . . And if you don't think this perspicacious papa is all set to be newspaper owner's son-in-law by the time the picture's ended—why you're crazza!

There's nothing wrong with any of the playing. Roger Pryor's smart and Heather Angel's a sweet thing. And I reckon the director did all he could with his material. But——

The material! The material. . . .!

U. S. Shoos Off Intruders as Movie Is Made

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 24.—[Special.]—The United States coast guard of 1935 has had to be called in to protect his majesty's navy of 1885. So many southern California sloops, ketches, yawls, power yachts and planes were nosing around the isthmus at Catalina Island and the stretches of sea where H. M. S. Bounty, Pandora and three other replicas of old British navy vessels were trying to enact scenes of "Mutiny on the Bounty" that they ruined the authentic look of scene after scene. The studio, frantic, took it up with authorities and now a lean, low, gray revenue cutter is stationed there to chase away everything with sails or motors. It will stay until the sequences have been completed. There are two or three more weeks of the ocean camera work.

Onslow Stevens and Rosamond Pinchot have become chummy. It started on the set at Radio where he is a Ramis and she is the queen of France in "Three Musketeers."

Dancers for scenes in "She," the spectacular story of adventures in a forgotten kingdom of great antiquity, beat out the drum rhythm by dancing barefoot on the huge percussion instruments.

Zasu Pitts is back at Universal, the studio which started her to her popularity as talkie comedienne, and Zasu is being featured with Hugh O'Connell in a satire on G-men films titled "Long May She Wave." It formerly was titled "Gee Woman." Helen Twelvetrees plays the pictorial and romantic lead.

Joe von Sternberg, whose separation from the director-star team of Sternberg and Marlene Dietrich has become final, is moving to Columbia studio to become Peter Lorre's director in "Crime and Punishment." Von Sternberg more than any other director makes a mood come alive in film action and this is what Columbia wants for the imported European horror actor.

Billie Burke is to play the main feminine support rôle to Ruth Chatterton in the latter's comeback film, "A Feather in Her Hat," at Columbia. Louis Hayward will play opposite Ruth.

Mabel Forrest, whom those who remember when Chicago was a movie center will recall as the first Mrs. Bryant Washburn, is playing in Paramount's "Big Broadcast of 1935." Jack Mulhall, ex-silent star, has a subordinate rôle similar to hers.

Spencer Tracy was endeavoring to show Ronald Colman how he went through a rough and tumble scene of "The Murder Man," but pulled down part of the set scaffolding at M. G. M., was hit on the head by a falling timber and taken to the studio hospital. A stitch had to be sewed in his lip.

Baby Sybil Jason, just brought over from England, plays her first American rôle with Kay Francis in "I Found Stella Parrish." Kay also has just arrived from Europe.

Warner studio liked "Black Fury," in which Paul Muni was starred, so well that the studio has signed its director, Michael Curtiz, to a new contract that won't expire until 1942.

Sally Warns Children to Hurry Letters

Winners of Invitations to Be Selected Thursday.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Did all you boys and girls see the good news in yesterday's TRIBUNE?

We announced our first party, and it's a grand one, too! It's to be held in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman, and there's to be a special early afternoon performance of the ice carnival just for us.

The entire show takes place on the large ice rink they've erected in the center of a huge room, and it's real honest to goodness ice, too. You can watch it freeze right before your eyes, and maybe that isn't a nice sensation on a hot day!

Roy Shipstead, who is one of the headliners of the show, seems to have wings when he starts to skate. He does more tricks than a magician and if you think you can skate you ought to see him!

Then there's the funny Scotchman, Bobby MacLean, who races around the rink at top speed and does the most amazing leaps and turns without breaking his neck! Oh, and the horse, but I'm not going to tell you about him, because in the first place it's very hard to describe a skating horse, and in the second place it'll be more fun if he's a surprise to you. All of the show is accompanied by orchestra music, and Frankie Masters and his band [I'm sure you've heard them on the stage and on the radio] will also be at the inn to welcome us.

In case you missed our first announcement in yesterday's paper I'll tell you again about invitations. I want to take as my guests the fifty boys and fifty girls to whom the party will be the biggest treat, and it's up to you to tell me how much you'd like to come.

If you'll just sit down and write a letter to me, telling why you'd like to be included in the group, and have that letter on my desk by Thursday, you'll be eligible for an invitation.

On Thursday, you see, I'll read all the letters and select as winners those who really seem most anxious to come. Don't forget, though, that your note must include your name, address, and age—if it doesn't you can't possibly win an invitation. The names of the lucky boys and girls will be printed in next SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

I'll tell you more about our party tomorrow, but in the meantime you'd better put on your thinking cap and start that letter because Thursday is the deadline. Just address your note to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

For a child's quilt there is nothing quite as amusing or as impressive to the youngster as the solemnity of a wise old or young owl. The "Owl Block," shown today, is appliqued on a white ground. Green and gold are the touches, and Mr. Owl himself may be made of brown, black, gray, or blue in solid colors, or in suitable speckled prints. Bright yellow eyes further carry out the motif of the nocturnal hooter.

Watch Child Carefully on Vacation Trip

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Let's hope that you are. If you are city people, then the respite during the hot weather and the restful green of the country can give you and the children new life and interest. Even suburban families can enjoy a change to the salt water, to a farm, or to a wilder kind of country than hte suburbs afford.

In the previous articles in this summer series we discussed the journey, the food en route, and so forth. But even when we arrive at our destination neither our vigilance nor our planning can be relaxed. There are certain precautions we should take, which we might be a bit sketchy about if we had only our grownup selves to consider.

First, before deciding finally on your vacation spot, find out about the water supply, the milk supply, and the sanitary conditions. Just how much you may benefit by the change may depend on these things. Any one of them may constitute a menace.

If you are planning to stay at a hotel or to board, it is virtually impossible to get as good and as wholesome cooking as the children are used to at home. It is wise, therefore, to cut out any rich foods that may be served or those they are not used to, giving them extra quantities of vegetables, fruit, milk, and bread.

The change of drinking water even when it is absolutely pure, often affects the children's bowels until they become used to the change. Therefore, it is wise to let the children have only small quantities of water when they first arrive at a place, until the body gets used to it. The baby's drinking water should be boiled.

If you buy extra fruit to eat uncooked, be sure it is washed first.

When in woods or fields, see that the children do not eat berries unless you are sure they are edible.

Show the children the poison ivy plant, and poison sumoc [which is much rarer] so that they can steer clear of them. Many a vacation has been ruined for a child—and therefore for his mother—because of an attack of ivy poisoning. Some children are immune to it, but many are not.

Don't let your children swim in pools or streams, unless you know the water is not contaminated. Many cases of prolonged low grade fever have been due to swimming in water that is contaminated to a greater or lesser degree because it is draining some land where there is an improperly constructed septic tank, or other source of impurity.

Have a first aid booklet handy, especially if you are far from help. Always have with you certain simple first aid supplies—bandage, cotton, tape, antiseptic, sunburn lotion, and so forth.

Keep the children—and more especially the baby—as much as is possible to their usual schedule.

Accustom your children gradually [not all at once] to the exposure of the sun to prevent bad sunburn, and even windburn. This is more of a hazard at the seashore than inland or on fresh water. A bad case of sunburn is no simple matter—it can cause fever and illness. If you increase the exposure daily a gradual and wholesome burn will be achieved.

From the east comes word of the arrival of another young man who is of interest to Chicagoans. He is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Swett Jr. of Hartford, Conn., and has been named Bradford Norris Swett. Before her marriage Mrs. Swett was Catharine Carton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton.

Congratulations are also in order in the Chicago household of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Jonathan Dow Jr., for they are the parents of a second son born last Thursday at the Evanston hospital. He has been named Scott Jonathan Dow III. His older brother, now 3, is Harve Badgerow Dow, named for his maternal grandfather, but he is always called Peter. Before her marriage in 1931 Mrs. Dow was Louise Badgerow.

The Charles Breasteds and their baby son are leaving today to spend the summer in Santa Barbara. At least Mrs. Breasted and the baby will spend the summer there and Mr. Breasted will commute between the west coast and Chicago.

Mrs. Herbert Stuart Stone and children will be leaving the end of this month to spend July and August at Wellsleet on Cape Cod with her father, Daniel Randall of Baltimore, Md., who has taken a house for the season. Before returning to Chicago in the fall Mrs. Stone will visit her father in Baltimore.

Miss Anita Blair will arrive at home today from two months in California. She and her mother, Mrs. Henry A. Blair, plan to spend the summer in their apartment on Lake Shore drive with perhaps occasional short trips to break the summer.

The Fletcher M. Durbins are visiting in the Berkshires as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sherman Taylor and Miss Helen Campbell Taylor of Plumstead in Lenox.

Mrs. Warren Salisbury Opens Summer Home.

Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury has opened her beautiful place, Tor Court, in Pittsfield, Mass., for the summer. Later her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, and their children will visit her.

Another Chicagoan who has opened her summer home in the Berkshires is Miss Kate S. Buckingham, who is at Bald Head in Lenox for the season.

The Heyliger A. De Windts of Winnetka have left for three months in the east, and the Tracy Aldens have taken the De Windt house at 205 Chestnut street for the summer. The De Windts will spend most of the summer at Nantucket.

The John T. Metcalfs are other Winnetkans who have rented their house for the summer and have departed for a three months' vacation. They have gone to Camp Wipigaki, Lac du Flambeau, Wis., and Mrs. Donald Jerrems and her children, Donald Jr., and Eleanor, are occupying the Metcalf house at 649 Locust street.

Cantacuzene Children with Their Father.

Prince Michael Cantacuzene has his children, Princess Irina and Prince Rodeon, with him for the summer at his small farm in Millburn. In the early autumn they will return to Boston, where they live in the winter with their mother, Mrs. Curtis Cantacuzene.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Baker, and their son, John E. Baker Jr., have Miss Sally Gardner of Princeton, N. J., for a house guest. Miss Gardner arrived last Friday and will be here through this week. Then she will go on to Santa Fe, N. M., to spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. James L. Breeze, and Mr. Breeze.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings and their three sons have taken the Highlands, the house of Mrs. John R. Thompson at 1485 Green Bay road, Lake Forest, for the summer months. They will move into it the beginning of July. This week their three boys are going out to the Onwentsia to live until their mother and father are ready to settle in the Highlands.

Miss Garrison to Be Bride Today.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock in the garden of her mother's home, Green Farm, in Greenwich, Conn., Miss Helen Stuart Garrison will be married to William Huse Dunham Jr., professor of history at Yale university. The ceremony will be very quiet, with only relatives in attendance. Dr. Charles Little Dunham will serve his brother as best man. Following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom will motor to Montreal to sail for the North Cape cruise.

The bride, a graduate of Westover and Vassar, is the daughter of Mrs. Elisha Ely Garrison and the late Mr. Garrison, whose recent death accounts for the very quiet wedding. Mr. Dunham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dunham, and his sister, Mrs. Robert Cobb Stockton of Evanston, are in the east for the wedding.

Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. will open her residence at 1 North Stone Gate road today for a sale for the benefit of the Eli Bates Settlement house. Members of the board will assist and about a dozen of them will give luncheons, later taking their guests to the sale.

Charles Henry Hulburd II. of Lake Forest, John Sheed Reed, Gustavus F. Swift Jr., and Edgar John Uihlein Jr. climaxed their preparatory school careers yesterday when they were graduated from the Hotchkiss school.

Pedicuring Makes Femininity Conscious of Foot Loveliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

Talking with a pedicurist the other day we were informed that women who have their toes tended regularly have better feet, just as women who have their nails done regularly have better hands. It isn't the single deed of manicuring finger nails or toe nails, but the consciousness of general foot and hand care that scores for them, and the pride they have in their hands or toes.

This season pedicurists already are experiencing a rush in business as never known heretofore. Toenail tinting is quite as active as nail tinting business in certain salons. Which is a natural followup of the unprecedented sales in cut-out sandals for beach and summer resort wear. The pedicurist tells me that women who keep their toenails manicured, whether they have them tinted or not, are never the women one sees shuffling along on calloused soles, or with another foot disability.

So, whether you think the nail tinting an old pagan custom or not, you must see that the procedure has its commendable virtues. If it keeps women looking after their feet better and wearing shoes that are not going to disfigure their toes, the custom is to be recommended.

I do know that foot creams are having a large sale now. A few years ago it would have been hard work to convince a woman that cream emollients would help her feet quite as well as other much used emollients help the facial skin. But now many women take the time at night, before retiring, to give their feet a massage with one of the creams especially prescribed for the purpose. And I know one woman who, more for fun than anything else, one night massaged her feet with her high priced skin cream, and the effect she felt was so good she continued to use this cream.

So, as I say, if the cosmetic appearance of the feet is going to be improved with toe manicures, more power to the pedicurists. If it would do away with ingrown toenails for one thing alone it would be doing enough good to recommend the practice. And in the early stages just this manicure care would prevent further pain, and it would prevent ingrown nails altogether by trimming the nails straight across, as the pedicurists do.

Cool Salad for Breakfast Now Widely Favored

Cooking Editor Offers List of Suggestions.

BY MARY MEADE.

Salad for breakfast, madam? Yes, indeed, affirms the woman wise in the ways of summer cooking. In fact, she probably has a half dozen or more schemes for breakfast salads, or semi-salads, tucked away in her mind, to be brought out with a flourish when ordinary hot weather breakfasts would go a-begging.

Especially for the business man or woman are these morning salads to be recommended. If the regular cereal, muffins, and eggs lack sufficient appeal, these people are all too likely to dash off to work, fortified by little more than a swallow of fruit juice and coffee. Then, by the time the lunch hour rolls around they find themselves weary or irritable and often at the mercy of a distracting headache.

Matutinal salads offer much, much more than just the means of substituting cool foods for hot ones at breakfast time. They provide opportunities for truly tempting flavor combinations, and their color and arrangement may be just as intriguing to the sleepy eye as their taste is to the drowsy palate.

What goes into these grand breakfast dishes? Fruits, naturally; vegetables, eggs, with all of their capacities for variety, meats, and even fish. If the idea thus far hasn't sounded either plausible or appetizing to you of more conservative breakfast tastes, do let yourself be convinced by a trial of one of these suggestion combinations.

Breakfast Salad.

I.

Lettuce
6 slices minced ham
3 chilled large tomatoes
6 eggs
¼ cup cream
Salt, pepper

Cover each breakfast plate with a bed of crisp, cold lettuce. In the center of each place a slice of the minced ham, from which the rind has been removed. Cover the meat with a thick slice of ripe, peeled tomato. Beat the eggs with the cream and seasonings, scramble gently, and top each tomato slice with a creamy, golden serving of scrambled egg. Serve immediately.

II.

Lettuce
3 ounces cream cheese
½ pound sliced bacon
2 tablespoons cream

Arrange a bed of lettuce [or other crisp salad greens] on each breakfast plate. Chop two slices of the bacon into bits and cook slowly in a skillet until crisp, pouring off the excess fat as it accumulates. When the crisp bits are well drained, blend them with the cream cheese and cream. Then, allowing two pear halves for each serving, fill the center cavities with the cheese and bacon mixture and press two halves together, securing with wood pins if necessary. Stand one of these simulated whole pears upright on each plate and garnish with the remainder of the bacon, crisply broiled. Except for broiling the bacon these may be prepared the day before and kept in the refrigerator until breakfast time.

III.

12 canned apricot halves
2 cups cottage cheese
4 tablespoons orange marmalade
Lettuce
2 bananas, sliced
Lemon juice
1 cup cooked, stoned prunes

Arrange two apricot halves, for each serving, on a bed of crisp lettuce. In the center pile a generous mound of the cottage cheese, which has been lightly mixed with the marmalade, and garnish with the banana sliced, sprinkled with lemon juice, and the cooked stoned prunes.

IV.

Arrange stalks of chilled, freshly cooked or canned asparagus on lettuce leaves. Add a mound of freshly scrambled eggs, and garnish with tomato wedges and hot, frizzled dried beef.

Moping Around Home Never Is Aid to Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The boy in love is quite as much a torture victim as any girl in love and in doubt about the status of a beloved's affections, as per the following:

"I am 19 years old and have been going with the most wonderful girl in the world for nearly two years. I love her a great deal, so much that life isn't worth living without her. She is 18. I see her about twice a week, and sometimes three times a week. I tell her every time I see her that I love her, but she seems to think I am just stringing her along, although sometimes she gives me the impression that she believes me. I asked her to marry me and she said "yes." You see, I do everything I can to please her, and I would willingly give my life for her.

"But here is what drives me mad. She still goes out with other boys. I sit home nights worrying about her until I can't stand it any longer. I can't marry her, because I make only $15 a week and she is still in high school. For three months I was the only one for her, but lately she takes an interest in other fellows. She says they don't mean a thing to her, that she only goes out with them for a good time and to save me money. Now, don't tell me to give her up, because I can't and I won't. But what can I do to get her to concentrate on me solely? DICK."

No, we wouldn't tell you to give the girl up, Dick! That would be too cruel, and why should you? But we suggest that you scuttle around and appear to intrigue the interest of some other girl or girls. It's bad tactics to sit home nights and moon while your sweetheart is out having a good time. The modern maid puts one down for pretty much of a chump and stock goes down with her when she sees that the other girls aren't interested in one.

But, of course, we should caution you not to get so deadly serious over this puppy love affair. You won't believe it belongs in that category, but it does. Ask any full grown man you know about it, a favorite uncle or older friend. When you describe your symptoms he'll agree that he went through the same sort of agony once, but got over it eventually.

Four Candidates Seek 2 Offices to Be Filled by Lutherans

Cleveland, O., June 24.—(AP)—Four candidates were in the field tonight for the two remaining vice presidencies of the Missouri synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

Dr. F. J. Lankenau of Napoleon, O., and the Rev. Henry Grueber, of Milwaukee, were elected vice presidents at the triennial convention today.

The convention also voted 283 to 256 to reverse its decision of Saturday and to keep open Concordia seminary in Springfield, Ill. Delegates voted 266 to 265 Saturday to close the seminary.

Dr. Frederick Pfotenhauer of Chicago, who was defeated for the presidency after holding that office since 1911, today accepted an office of honorary president, created by the convention.

Acclaim New Opera by Strauss; Nazi Chiefs Are Absent

DRESDEN, Germany, June 24.—(AP)—Richard Strauss' latest opera, "The Silent Woman," was acclaimed at its première tonight.

Gen. Werner von Blomberg, defense chief, was present, but Dr. Paul Josef Goebbels, propaganda minister, and Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of the air force, were significantly absent.

Nazi circles have made no secret of the fact that Strauss will be retired as president of the musical chamber soon because he retained Stefan Zweig, Jewish author, to write the libretto for the new opera.

'JUSTIFY' OUSTER OF SWEITZER AND GILL'S ELECTION

Prosecutors Answer Suit for Treasurer Job.

A "plea of justification" for the ouster of Robert M. Sweitzer from the office of Cook county treasurer on June 6 was filed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorneys Jacob Shamberg and William Touhy before Chief Justice Joseph Burke of the Circuit court. The plea was the county's answer to the quo warranto proceedings brought by Sweitzer in an effort to regain his office. Joseph L. Gill, Sweitzer's successor as treasurer, is defendant in the action.

The plea, a seven page document drawn by Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell, says the county board by resolution found Sweitzer guilty of misconduct and embezzlement in the office of county clerk, which he had held for 24 years before becoming treasurer last December. The board determined, the plea sets forth, that Sweitzer was short $414,129 in his accounts as clerk, according to an audit of the office, and that $200,000 of this amount had been embezzled.

Declares Board Had Right to Act.

The plea contends that for these reasons and because Sweitzer refused to turn over the money on demand, the board had the right to remove him as treasurer and to choose Gill to fill the vacancy.

Sweitzer was not in court when the county's answer was filed. His attorney, I. Harvey Levinson, said he wished an early hearing, but needed time to study the document. Judge Burke then ordered Levinson to file an answer or demurrer to the justification plea by Friday and set July 1 as the day for arguments.

If Sweitzer answers the plea the questions of fact will be at issue and the trial will be held on them. Should he demur [that is, admit the facts, but assert that even if they are true the county board had no right to remove him] there will be further arguments and more documents filed.

Document Recounts Circumstances.

"The reasons of the board for the removal of Sweitzer," the plea reads, "were explained and strengthened by many circumstances and details, appearing in the proceedings of the board leading to the removal, among which circumstances were the following: That Sweitzer, while county clerk during March, 1922, converted to his own use and embezzled $200,000 of public funds belonging to the county as fees earned and collected by the clerk for the extension of taxes, and that on June 3, 1926, Sweitzer, as clerk, unlawfully transferred from the public funds and moneys belonging to the office of the clerk . . . and belonging to the fund of the office created by payments made by taxpayers in redemption of delinquent real properties sold for taxes and known as the redemption fund, to the fee fund in the office of clerk, to take the place of the said $200,000 embezzled from the fee fund."

The quo warranto proceeding has no bearing on the civil suit to be filed against Sweitzer to recover the $414,129, nor on the criminal proceedings against him. Sweitzer was indicted last week on a charge of failing to turn over the $414,129 to Michael J. Flynn, his successor as county clerk. He has pleaded not guilty to the indictment and the hearing of preliminary motions is set for July 22.

POLICEMAN SHOT IN BATTLE WITH GANG AT TAVERN

Policeman Henry Schmidt of the Stockyards station was shot and seriously wounded yesterday in a gun battle with four robbers who held up John C. Mousteiko, owner of a tavern at 902 West 38th place. Schmidt was taken to the Evangelical hospital.

Schmidt, who is 39 years old and lives at 8818 South Washtenaw avenue, was off duty in plain clothes yesterday and was visiting Mousteiko in the tavern. Because Mousteiko had been robbed of $800 several months ago and there have been several other holdups in the vicinity, Schmidt accompanied the tavern keeper to the Live Stock National bank, 4150 South Halsted street, where Mousteiko withdrew $700 with which to cash checks of stockyards employés who are his customers.

Schmidt and Mousteiko drove back to the tavern. As they alighted four men wearing sun glasses and brandishing pistols drove up in a car and ordered Mousteiko to hand over the money. Instead Mousteiko ran to the tavern door. One of the bandits attempted to fire at him, but his pistol jammed.

Schmidt then opened fire on the men. They returned the shots and Schmidt was wounded in the chest. The bandits escaped in their automobile.

NAME 2 SEIZED IN CAMP AS PART OF $427,000 GANG

Paterson, N. J., June 24.—[Special.]—Edward F. Gaffney and John J. Hughes, two of the eight men arrested yesterday in an armed camp at Mountain View, today were identified in police headquarters here tonight as participants in the $427,000 Rubel Ice corporation holdup staked in Brooklyn last August.

Details of the identification were concealed by the police, apparently for the purpose of shielding witnesses in the case. All they would tell was that one of the four men who witnessed the holdup, the largest cash robbery in New York history, is sure Gaffney and believed Hughes took part in it.

Gaffney, 35, is a former west side rum runner. Hughes is supposed to be a brother-in-law of Thomas Quinn, another west sider, whose speedboats were used by the holdup men for a getaway after the Rubel robbery.

She received a fifteen year term for second degree murder. The son, pleading guilty to manslaughter, got five years.

EDUCATE BUYER, HOME ECONOMICS CONVENTION TOLD

Calls Knowledge the Best Possible Protection.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Education of consumers to protect themselves against inferior merchandise was recommended, as more effective than attempts to protect them by legislative regimentation of industry, last night by Miss Effie I. Raitt, president of the American Economics association. Miss Raitt, who is dean of home economics at the University of Washington, spoke at the first general session of the association's annual convention at the Palmer house.

"Fostering legislation advantageous to homes and family life will always be one of our major concerns," said Miss Raitt. "Elimination of false and misleading advertising is on our program also. Our primary function, however, is to teach consumers to be intelligent buyers rather than to protect them.

Opposes Guardian Philosophy.

"Our obligation to the consumer is to advise, to lead, to teach him, but we should not adopt a protective attitude nor develop a guardianship philosophy. Our success will be measured not so much by the laws we may be able to place upon the statute books as by the power of educated public opinion enforcing those statutes."

Both sides of one proposal to "protect the consumer" by legislation, on grade labeling of canned goods, were presented earlier in the day to one section of the association, that on institution administration. The argument for grade labeling was presented by F. M. Shook of Easton, Md., field secretary of the Tri-State Packers' association. He pleaded that arguments in favor of it should not be labeled New Deal propaganda merely because President Roosevelt and other New Dealers have endorsed it.

Canners Oppose Move.

Frank Gerber of Fremont, Mich., past president of the National Canners association, spoke against the proposal. Under grade labeling, a particular canned food would be scored according to specifications into one of four classes, fancy, choice, standard, or substandard, and labeled as grade A, B, C, or D.

Mr. Shook pointed out that these grades are already in use in the wholesale selling of canned goods, and asserted that consumers would be protected if the same information were placed on labels. Mr. Gerber, who advocated a descriptive label, asserted that grading of canned goods in the wholesale trade is only feasible because the grade indication is subjected to the expert testing of the buyer.

Foods Not Uniform.

Foods, he said, are natural products not susceptible to the same uniformity as manufactured products. In the wholesale field, disputes arising from alleged misgrading are settled at civil law, or by arbitration. To extend protection to consumers through grade labeling, it would be necessary to apply criminal actions and it is impossible to write specifications strict enough to meet such a test, he said.

He recalled that during the world war he was a member of a canners' committee which attempted to write such specifications for canned peas, and that the effort was abandoned when it was found impossible to write enforceable specifications.

Prof. Boyd H. Bode, of the school of education at Ohio State university, addressed the evening session with a plea for complete reorganization of curriculum and teaching methods in the nation's schools. Before this change can take place, however, he declared, Americans must reinterpret their basic beliefs and rid themselves of the uncertainty that is working against progress. Basic beliefs taught the young must be taken from the present, not the past, Prof. Bode asserted.

200 RABBIS MEET TONIGHT TO HEAR REFORM ISSUES

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The questions of what the modern world is doing to Judaism and the Jew and of what that religion and people must do to meet the present day will be the primary topics at the 46th annual meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, which opens tonight in the Congress hotel.

This conference represents the minority reform group in Judaism as against the conservative and orthodox groups. More than 200 rabbis representing all sections of the country were registering last night for the sessions which will continue throughout the week.

Recall Meeting 50 Years Ago.

Announcements of the meeting point to the convention of reform rabbis at Pittsburgh 50 years ago when the late Dr. Kaufman Kohler set the doctrinal standard for reform Judaism which is said to have had widespread influence in the whole field of liberal religion, Jewish and Christian. Among points in Dr. Kohler's Pittsburgh platform was that divine revelation is continuous and not confined solely to the Bible. Levitical and rabbinic regulations were also modified in the platform.

One surviving member of the 1885 Pittsburgh meeting, Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati, O., arrived yesterday and will review the history of the Pittsburgh platform tomorrow night.

Other Speakers on Platform.

Among papers announced as being important in the entire area of liberal religion will be one by Dr. Samuel S. Cohon on "The revaluation of the idea of God," and others on the changing conception of the torah and of the position of Isreal as a people in the modern world. Dr. Cohon is professor of theology at Hebrew Union college, Cincinnati.

The other two keynote papers will be read by Dr. Felix A. Levy, 445 Melrose avenue, and Dr. Joseph Rauch of Louisville, Ky.

SPEED TYPISTS WARM UP FOR CONTEST FRIDAY

Seven speed typists began warming their typewriters yesterday in a training room at the Sherman hotel in preparation for their contest for the world title Friday night. Their one hour speed battle will be a feature of the International Commercial schools contests, in which 500 students and commercial employés are entered.

Miss Irma Wright, who arrived from Toronto yesterday, is the only woman contestant so far. Her record is 116 words a minute for an hour. The men and their records, all based on an hour, are George L. Hossfield of New Jersey, present champion, 135 words; Albert Tangora of New Jersey, former champion, 132 words; Barney Stapert of New York, 129 words; Norman Saksvig of Chicago, 130 words; Cortez W. Peters of Washington, D. C., 120 words, and Chester Soucek of Pennsylvania, 118 words.

Hossfield ascribes some of his typing knack to 8 years of piano lessons. In the contest the typists are penalized 50 strokes for each error. Disputed errors, such as letters slightly out of line or overlapping, are checked with a magnifying glass.

WHITE SOX WIN, 6-4; CUBS BEAT GIANTS, 10-9, IN 10TH

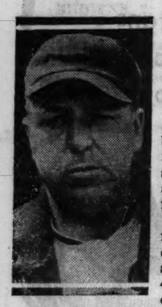
Rhodes and Grove Are Victims.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Raymond [Babe] Phelps, recently salvaged from the bull pen, turned up yesterday with another classy pitching exhibition, thereby furnishing one of several important items by which the gay White Sox slipped a beating to Boston in the final of the series. The score, arrived at as the result of the Chicagoans bursting forth to break a deadlock in the seventh, was 6 to 4, giving them an even break in the four game series and a record of seven victories and six defeats in their home defense against the successive raids of the four eastern teams.



BABE PHELPS.

Of considerable importance in Phelps' third straight win since his promotion was homer No. 13 turned loose by Zeke Bonura with two on in the opening inning off Gordon Dusty Rhodes who started because his manager had a last minute hunch that the Sox might be unduly rough on his southpaws. He finally got to the point where he could prove the hunch. He dropped Bob Grove into the struggle just after the score had been knotted in the seventh and the Chicagoans promptly nicked the famous ex-Athletic left hander for the deciding runs.

Phelps' Support Shaky.

Phelps' performance would have been far more impressive and the battle less trying on the nerves if his support hadn't wavered in one spot. The first run off him was mainly because of a fluke and the other a homer contributed by Carl Reynolds, ex-Chicago employé. But in the seventh, with the situation apparently well in hand by 4 to 2 and one out, none other than Manager Jimmy Dykes let go with a wild throw. It proved the stepping stone to Boston's last two runs, but Phelps was back in front within a few minutes, and as a matter of safety didn't yield a hit in the eighth or ninth.

The other manager actively engaged in the battle also experienced a tough afternoon. Fidgety Joe Cronin kicked one in the first inning just before Bonura gave the Sox their three run lead on his homer. Then Cronin flopped again in the seventh. He fumbled a grounder on the same batter, Mule Haas, and this let one run sneak home. The other followed a bit later on a wild toss by Mel Almada. Mixed in with these were three hits by which Rip Radcliff, Bonura, and Al Simmons displayed their lack of respect for Grove's southpawing.

Along Comes Zeke.

Arrangements for Bonura's profitable No. 13 homer in the first inning got under way when Radcliff led off with a single to center. He went to second on Hayes' bunt and to third while Manager Cronin was playing an innocent game of bounce with a roller off Haas' bat. One pitch by Rhodes to Bonura was sufficient. Zeke propelled it into the first story of left field. Radcliff and Hayes preceding him across the plate. Simmons then flied to right. Appling singled over short and Dykes was tossed out by Werber.

A run off Phelps in the second inning was due to one of those little things against which there is no de-

DEMAREE'S PINCH SINGLE, KLEIN'S HOMER WIN, 10-9

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Chuck Klein's home run with one on, coming with the score 9 to 7 against the Cubs, two out and the count three balls and two strikes, was the most vital episode today in the Chicagoans' rough and tumble, ten inning 10 to 9 victory over the Giants. But there were other high spots and other heroes aplenty.

Not the least of the other heroes was Roy Henshaw the winning pitcher, who did not allow a Giant to get to first base in the eighth, ninth or tenth innings, until Bill Terry singled with two out in the tenth and the Cubs had scored a run in their half. And then, after that Terry hit, little Roy fanned the great Mel Ott the second time, on three pitches, to end the game and give the Cubs their second victory in seven contests against the league leaders this year.

Bill Lee Blows Up.

The game was a hot and cold one throughout. The Cubs were off to a 4 to 0 lead in the first three innings as a result of a cluster of four runs in the second, three of which came in on a triple by Herman. At the end of the fourth the lead had been cut to 4 to 2.

At the end of the fifth it was 4-all on some panicky work by the Cubs. In the sixth Bill Lee blew up after a bad play by Phil Cavarretta, which should have retired the side. Before Bill could be hurried off the scene, the Giants had made five runs on five hits, two of which were homers by Hank Leiber and Travis Jackson. That made the score 9 to 4 in favor of the Giants. Fabian Kowalik replaced Lee and ended the inning by fanning Parmelee.

The Cubs had made only one single, except for those in the big fourth and hope wasn't running very high when singles by Cuyler and Jurges and a walk produced a run and made the score 9 to 5 in the eighth.

Such Goings On!

Then came the ninth with Gabby Hartnett and Klein collaborating in as pretty a tableau as ever you saw. A walk to Herman and a single by Hack put two on. Then Hartnett socked a triple to score Bill and Stan.

After Gabby's great shot, the score was New York 9, Chicago 7, and there was one out. Chagnon was sent in to relieve Parmelee. Cuyler spent a short fly to Ott for the second out and Gabby had to stay on third. Then Klein did his stuff with that No. 10 homer. Cavarretta followed with a single, but Jurges fouled out and the score was 9 to 9. Incidentally Parmelee's idea of grabbing his seventh straight over the Cubs vanished with the tie.

There was still work to be done. The Cubs did it in the tenth. With Al Smith pitching, Galan walked and

Talking It Over

THERE has been little stability to the heavyweight boxing championship since Gene Tunney vacated the title. . . . Max Schmeling, who won on a foul from Jack Sharkey in a bout recognized as a world championship contest, defended it against Young Stribling, but lost to Sharkey next time out. . . . Sharkey was knocked out by Primo Carnera the first time he elected to risk his crown. . . . A year later Carnera yielded the title to Max Baer after hitting the floor 11 times. . . . Then from obscurity rose James Braddock to win a surprising 15 round decision over Baer the first time the Californian returned to the championship wars. . . . Maybe Braddock will change all this, but there are many who feel that a young man who tonight makes his first important step toward a title claim cannot be kept away from the fistic throne much longer. . . . I refer to Joe Louis, who only a year ago was a Golden Glover. . . . Tommy Burns, heavyweight champion 30 years ago, now an insurance salesman in Texas, writes in as follows: "I am sorry to say Louis will knock out my friend, Primo Carnera." . . . Burns says Braddock can have $200,000 win, lose or draw to defend his title in a 15 round bout at the Texas Centennial next year. . . . A Texas syndicate, according to Burns, will put up the dough. . . .

Hector Garvey, Notre Dame tackle in George Gipp's day, is a bouncer in a loop hotel cocktail bar. . . . California's crew packed its food from Berkeley to Poughkeepsie and cut expenses by staying in the boathouse instead of a hotel. . . . The first six day bicycle races were held in Birmingham, England, with one man riding continuously. . . .

It was not necessary to resurvey the University of Nebraska track in preparation for the National A. A. HELEN HICKS' 79 LEADS WESTERN OPEN QUALIFIERS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The ever-grinning Helen Hicks, America's first business woman golfer, was up and doing early yesterday to lead the qualifiers in the sixth annual open tournament of the Women's Western Golf association at the Sunset Ridge Country club.

The genial New York girl had a bit of an argument on the first nine with a 42, four over par, but promptly answered that back with a 37, three under the card figures, for a 79.

That 79, eight over men's par at Sunset Ridge, enabled Miss Hicks to win the pin for the low score in the qualifying round, and to lead 31 others into the first round of match play today. Match play will continue at 18 holes a day until Saturday, when the 36 hole championship match will be played. Those in the field of 107 starters who did not gain the championship section, will be grouped in other flights, with consolation brackets for each.

Miss Williams Has 82.

Miss Hicks' card was three strokes better than that submitted by one of the Chicago district's rising lights, young Ellamae Williams, daughter of Eddie Williams, River Forest professional and runnerup in the recent state tournament at Springfield. Miss Williams came through with a pair of 41's for an 82, the first of those 41's being just enough to nose out Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, the all around girl athlete from Texas who recently became, like Miss Hicks, a business woman golfer. The Western Open is the only event in the game in which Miss Hicks and Miss Didrikson can compete.

Babe Holes Chip Shot.

It was natural that Miss Hicks, who won the women's national championship in 1931 and was runnerup to Virginia Van Wie at Exmoor two years ago, should carry a tidy gallery with her, but it was Miss Didrikson who attracted the greater interest of yesterday's sideline audience. What was more, she didn't fail them, sending them away with the idea that this wiry young Texan, who has played practically every sport in par or better, can turn in a right smart round of golf.

Babe even went so far as to add a couple of Hagen touches to her round, holing out a great chip shot from off the edge of the ninth green after a penalty stroke, and topping the round off with a birdie 4 on the 18th. From tee to green her play yesterday was well nigh flawless, despite the fact that it was only her fourth round of golf within a month, not to mention that she was working with a brand new set of clubs.

Following the three leaders in the championship flight qualifiers were

Whoever Wins, It Won't Be an Upset; Louis 6-5 Favorite

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—While advance sales of tickets for the Joe Louis-Primo Carnera bout at Yankee stadium tomorrow night indicate attendance and gate receipts at least 50 per cent larger than at the Braddock-Baer heavyweight title encounter, no such sensational pugilistic upset as occurred at Long Island City June 13 is in prospect.

Interest in the outcome is keener because in the former bout Braddock was figured as a forlorn setup for the devastating Baer. In the current fisticuffs opinion is fairly evenly divided, with a majority of the experts who were so wrong before favoring Louis, the dusky graduate from Golden Gloves ranks.

Louis Favorite at 6 to 5.

Betting on the outcome has drifted back to 6 to 5, with Louis favorite. At one time it reached 8 to 5. Some smart money lately has appeared to support the Italian, who will have about 60 pounds weight advantage. Up in Harlem, the colored settlement, Louis is 7 to 5, owing to advance arrivals from Detroit and Chicago, with little Carnera money in sight.

Just what part tactics and psychology will play tomorrow night is a topic discussed among fistic cognoscenti. Both Carnera and Louis are boxers who advance and carry the issue to their opponents. Even after Primo took his lacing from Max Baer a year ago, suffering a series of knockdowns in the first three rounds, in none of which he waited for the full count of nine, he was, in the middle rounds of the eleven session affair, moving forward in the aggressor rôle. While Baer was coasting, Carnera in several rounds actually obtained the officials' verdict on points.

Louis Keeps Marching In.

Joe Louis is more relentlessly pursuing in his attack than Carnera. He constantly presses, never allowing his rival to get set if he can prevent it. Shuffling and weaving, always forward, never backward, Louis suggests a panther or some other species of the cat family, always ready to spring, in stalking his victim.

Carnera's rights in previous bouts have not shot out with the force expected from 260 pounds of avoirdupois, but were more on the order of pushes. In fact, Primo heretofore has not shown a knockout punch until he wore down strength of his rival in clinches by hanging his weight on him. Those effective tactics are expected to be employed in this bout.

Louis' adherents maintain that if Joe can force his huge opponent to back away from terrific short hooks the issue is decided. Primo is weak enough in his blows coming forward and hopeless when going away, they maintain. Carnera sympathizers, on the other hand, hold that unless Joe wins in six or seven rounds he is beaten. Primo's tremendous recuperative powers, which he showed against Baer, and his ability to go a route which Louis never has traveled, his previous limit being ten rounds, are assets in his favor which cannot be discounted, they argue.

Primo Knows All the Tricks.

In the matter of experience, advantage is with Carnera. He has met the best of the present crop of heavyweights. Louis, despite his impressive knockout record, has faced opponents mostly of the second and third flight. Primo has been taught the tricks of the ring. Usually he is warned once or more during a bout by the referee for alleged unfair tactics. Such warnings, if present tomorrow night, might have an effect influencing the verdict, although consensus is that if the bout goes the limit of fifteen rounds Carnera will be proclaimed victor.

GOLDEN GLOVES GRADUATE GETS GOLDEN CHANCE

Expect $300,000 Gate at New York.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Joe Louis, greatest of Golden Gloves light heavyweights, undefeated in 22 professional heavyweight bouts, opens another chapter in his record book tomorrow night at the Yankee stadium. And if Joe Louis, who is just old enough to vote, can whip Primo Carnera, the Goliath of fighters, he well may vision a world championship in the near future.

JAMES J. BRADDOCK

No fighter since the days of Jack Dempsey has captured public imagination as has the brown bomber. This is his Manhattan debut, yet it is predicted that 60,000 will jam Yankee stadium. The receipts are expected to be $300,000, a sum greater by one-half than was paid for the heavyweight title bout two weeks ago when Max Baer lost his crown to Jimmy Braddock.

To New York, Louis is a rookie. He hasn't played Broadway. Despite rhapsodies of reporters, who almost without exception have named Louis the victor tomorrow night, and based their reasoning on Joe's heartless practice punching at Pompton Lakes, the Broadway "wise money" boys are picking Carnera, although Louis is 6 to 5 favorite in the general wagering.

Chicago Sends Louis Fans.

Manhattan may be populated with doubting Thomases, but Chicago, Detroit, and the central west, which saw Louis batter his way spectacularly to highest amateur honors and continue against professional foemen, are cheering for him. Thousands have made the trip to New York for this fight. They have come by automobile, by train, and by plane to see Joe Louis conquer Carnera. No bout since pre-depression days, when Dempsey reigned and all was right with the world, has held the same lure to the man in the ranks.

The foil is perfect. Carnera, 260 pounds, confident and courageous, who was knocked down 11 times by Baer but never knocked out, is Louis' rival. There is the test. Can Louis stab Carnera with his dynamite left and crash home his right to topple the Italian? Or will Louis, unable to score a knockout, falter under the tremendous physical handicap, and fall back into mediocrity?

Harlem Will Be There.

Harlem wants to see this question answered. Twenty thousand general admission tickets at $2 plus tax were laid aside by Mike Jacobs, promoter of the bout, and every fan who can save or beg the price will be at Yankee stadium tomorrow night. The black belt is seething with enthusiasm. Not even Jack Johnson, the only man of the Negro race to win the heavyweight title, can match Louis' popularity. Joe's picture looms from the windows of merchant and householder.

To complete the confusion this is an Italian Joe Louis will fight and the rabid supporters of Haile Selassie, king of kings, whose reign in Africa is threatened by Il Duce, are counting on Brother Joe to sound the tocsin.

The enthusiasm is communicable. The Twentieth Century club today reported that more than 400 press reservations had been received, a larger number than since the last Dempsey-Tunney bout on Chicago's lake front. And more telegraph wires have been stretched to the ringside than served

COLLEGE TENNIS FIELD CUT TO 32 IN 1ST DAY'S PLAY

Stanford and Georgia Tech Leading.

The fifty-first national intercollegiate tennis tournament opened on the Northwestern university courts in Evanston yesterday with all ten seeded players sweeping successfully through the first two rounds of play, in which the starting field of 85 was trimmed to 32. The survivors will swing into action again today at 1 o'clock.

Fifteen of the thirty-seven schools which were represented in the tournament were eliminated. Those who were put out were Arizona State Teachers, Armour Tech, Blackburne, Cincinnati, Georgetown, Illinois, Marietta, Michigan State, Michigan, North Carolina, North Central, Pennsylvania, Purdue, St. Louis university, Washington university, and Williams.

Stanford, Georgia Tech Lead.

Stanford, Pacific coast intercollegiate champions, and Georgia Tech, southeastern conference champions, made the best team showings. Four of the five Stanford players survived the opening day's play, while Georgia Tech lost but one of its four entrants.

Although the seeded stars won their opening matches, several were extended in doing so. Paul Guibord of Dartmouth, seeded fifth, encountered stubborn competition from Carl Smalley of the University of Texas. Guibord dropped the opening set, 4-6, but rallied to win the next two, 6-1, 6-4.

Ernest Sutter, Tulane sophomore, seeded third, was also forced into three sets to win his second round match from Andrew Pepa of Western State Teachers college, Kalamazoo, Mich., 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

Bill Schommer of Minnesota, Big Ten champion, seeded seventh, had a battle on his hands to subdue Fred Whitman of Princeton, 6-4, 7-5.

Malloys Tie for Collegiate Golf Lead with 72s

Washington, D. C., June 24.—(AP)—A pair of unrelated youngsters named Malloy, Jack of Princeton and Woodrow of Michigan, shot par 72 today to lead in the first half of the thirty-six hole qualifying test in the national intercollegiate golf tourney.

Jack, 21 year old youth from Tulsa, Okla., who failed to earn a position in this tournament last year, posted a pair of 36s. Woodrow, a year older and the Ann Arbor city champion, also had two 36s.

They were just a shot better than Fred Haas of Louisiana State, who was even par out, but dropped a stroke coming home. Lewis Johnson, Charleston college; Erwin Laxton, North Carolina, and Charles Kocsis, Michigan, were grouped with 74s. Another trio—Joe Lynch, Georgetown; H. L. Beyer, Penn State, and Tom Draper, Washington university of St. Louis—had 75s.

All of the former champions—Johnny Fischer, Michigan, Walter Emery, Oklahoma, and Charles Yates, Georgia Tech—found trouble along the route over the long, bunkered course, with Fischer reporting a 77, Yates a 78, and Emery a 79. Winfield Day of Notre Dame had 78.

The Michigan team turned in a four man score of 302, placing it 11 strokes ahead of Georgia Tech, 12 ahead of Oklahoma and 13 ahead of Georgetown.

60,000 See Carnera and Louis Tonight

the last world series game in Yankee stadium.

So much for a nation's interest and Harlem's prayers. What are the possibilities tomorrow night?

Both men are in perfect condition. Carnera never has trained more carefully or with more seriousness. He'll weigh about 260 pounds tomorrow noon when he steps on the scales at the offices of the New York athletic commission. It's all muscle. To look at him when he finished his five round workout at Lake Owasco yesterday afternoon it taxes the imagination to vision Louis scoring a knockout. Taller by six inches, heavier by 60 pounds, tested over the fifteen round route for endurance, and his courage proved beyond question one year ago by Max Baer, Carnera has every physical advantage.

None will insist, however, that Carnera can fight. He couldn't when he made his Hippodrome tours with paid hirelings tumbling from the diving boards. And he didn't have a practical punch when he won the world's championship two years ago from faint hearted Jack Sharkey.

Can He Stop Joe's Blows?

Louis can punch. But Joe never has drawn a sight on a target as sturdy as the Italian. Wiseacres concede Joe's tornado blows. One must when sparmates such as Ace Clark and Seal Harris call quits. Carnera, however, is an excellent defensive fighter. His mammoth arms ward off blows that would reach a smaller man. His phenomenal strength can swing a fighter around helpless in clinches. He is a rough boxer, perhaps unintentionally, but he cuffs, hits on breaks, uses his elbows and illegal backhand blows.

The only fear expressed for Louis is that he will not smack Carnera in the early rounds and then, gradually failing in strength, will fall from exhaustion or lose the decision.

Just Wears 'Em Down.

Ernie Schaaf was knocked out in thirteen rounds by Carnera. No one punch, you understand, but a succession of nerve sapping lefts and the crushing force of weight. Tommy Loughran, master boxer, could not withstand Carnera's power and lost a fifteen round decision. Victorio Campolo and Ray Impellittiere, rugged giants, succumbed. How can Louis succeed where these men, more experienced, failed?

The answer rests with Louis' two fists, his flat footed ruthless advance, lightning speed, and belief that he will measure Primo for a finishing touch early in the fight.

Carnera should be an ideal opponent except for excessive size. And that size makes him slower afoot. His weight makes him awkward in comparison to the shifty Negro. Primo is so big Louis can't miss, so trained to lean back and ward off rather than dodge or turn that Louis should hit him. If these blows that land have the same power Joe's shown in other bouts and in training the result will be a knockout.

Joe Takes It Easy.

Strangely enough, considering he is the center of attention, guarded in every move, Louis is most calm. His managers chose to spend today at Pompton Lakes. The party will not make the 35 mile trip to New York until tomorrow noon. Apparently this is just another fight as far as Joe is concerned.

Carnera camped out tonight en route, passing the time with a jog on the road this morning and motoring to within a short run of New York. In this fashion he stayed clear of turmoil.

Both camps have established a record by not questioning selection of officials. Knockouts, at that, do not need assistance of pencil and paper. Jack Dempsey has been suggested as referee, but only the commissioners know whom they will name to have charge in the ring or who will be in the chairs to decide the winner of each round.

Each will receive a fortune regardless of the outcome. Carnera is scheduled for 35 per cent of the net receipts, while Louis will get just half that sum. With a net of $250,000 Louis would receive $43,750, which is a fortune for a lad who, on July 4 last year, knocked out his first professional opponent for a purse of $50.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

AT TRAINING TABLE.

NEW YORK, June 24.—[Special.] This narrative is of dinner Sunday night at Joe Louis' camp training table at Pompton Lakes, where the food is prepared by Frank Sutton, a snow-haired Negro who in former years served as chef for Jack Johnson, Joe Gans, and Sam Langford.

Louis, of course, was present to talk to several newspaper men invited. Our interest at this particular time was more in Joe's use of his knife and fork than in his conversation. The meal opened with lettuce salad liberally sprinkled with mayonnaise.

"I put on the dressing so Joe will eat the lettuce," whispered Sutton as he passed.

After the salad the menu varied. To the scribes was served southern fried chicken, but before Carnera's opponent of Tuesday night was placed a huge platter entirely covered by a sirloin steak, medium well done. There were a few slices of French fried potatoes which Joe pushed aside. Side dishes were cooked fresh beans and boiled onions. On a plate were two thick slices of toasted French bread and two slices untoasted.

Louis ate every bit of the steak, which we afterward learned weighed 1½ pounds, all his cooked beans, nearly all the onions, both pieces of toasted bread, one piece of plain bread without butter, and finished with a glass of iced tea. No dessert.

During the meal Louis was ribbed about not being hungry because he ate a hearty breakfast. The main food resistance at breakfast had been six lamb chops and two eggs, but Sutton explained that was unusual, as Joe seldom consumed more than three lamb chops and two eggs, etc., for breakfast.

Following dinner Louis played a game of pool with a New York friend, then went out on the lawn to watch his camp followers at mild baseball, in which he indulged until the last week, when he stopped for fear of injury to his fingers.

Dieting Schedule.

Louis, in a general way, follows the Braddock and Baer schedule of only two full meals a day, but he is given a snack before his morning road work of five or six miles, usually taken between 6 and 7 o'clock. This snack may be tomato juice, or a dish of prunes, or apple sauce, accompanied by dry toast and a cup of tea. Sutton insists an athlete needs a "bottom" on which to do road work.

Breakfast is at 10 o'clock. That consists of fruit or some fruit sauce, lamb chops and eggs, or eggs alone, dry toast, fresh vegetables, if Joe will take them, and tea.

Then perhaps an hour with Russell Cowan of the camp, who attends to much of the correspondence and informally instructs Joe in grammar and use of correct English in conversation, any news topics of the day which suggest themselves. Following this, the colored boy, who has a tremendous capacity for sleep, indulges in a nap or rest until time for his afternoon workout.

Dinner is at 6 o'clock. It often varies from the menu heretofore mentioned by chicken or lamb instead of steak, carrots and beets instead of onions and beans, and other variations tending to keep the object of such solicitude interested in his food, although from our viewpoint there seemed little danger of ennui on Joe's part so far as food was concerned. At 9:30 Joe yawns with the exactness of a grandfather's clock and is between the sheets at 10, arising anywhere from 5:30 to 6:30, according to inclination.

Motorcade from Detroit.

Detroit newspaper men, here for the fight, tell of an unusual motorcade of 200 cars driving to the battle from the colored residential section of Detroit.

Strategy of the motorcade is to start first the flivvers and decrepit cars of the type collegians are prone to use. Then if mishap occurs occupants of these cars will be picked up en route by the secondary class of cars coming next.

Last to leave Detroit will be the new and high powered cars, expected to reach here the same time as the first two classes and probably overflowing with occupants from the misfortunes of the first and second divisions.

Sparring Partners.

Spar mates at Louis' camp had a sorry time because of his viciousness in his workouts. These big boys were paid $5 for each round they opposed Joe in addition to their board. They earned it. Manager Roxborough said he also would give them bonuses, of which they were unaware, ranging from $50 to $100, according to the manner in which they performed.

Expenses of a Camp.

Admission fees of $1.10 were charged spectators at Pompton Lakes wishing to see Louis work, of which Uncle Sam gets 10 cents. The money is proportioned between Dr. Bier, who conducts the health resort, and the Louis party. Despite this revenue, training expenses will dent the colored battler's treasury between $2,000 and $2,500.

MacSmith's 66 Leads in British Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, June 24.—MacDonald Smith of the United States played the Gullane No. 1 course in the first qualifying round today of the British open golf tournament today in 66, to set a new record for the newly altered links and equal the tournament record set at Sunningdale in 1925.

Smith spent an hour after breakfast on the practice ground, hitting balls into a strong cross wind that, having sprung up from a new quarter, had changed the character of every hole on the Gullane and Muirfield courses. Then he went out to play shots that held up perfectly into the wind.

Best at Tenth.

The only Americans in any real danger of not qualifying at the end of the first round are Lawson Little with a 78 and Robert Sweeny, who had 80.

Little started off with a drive conservatively estimated 380 yards which should have knocked any opponent, bar card and pencil, out of the championship. Then he three putted. No one was more surprised than himself and thereafter he never seemed to get going.

Cotton Takes 71.

Henry Cotton, the defending champion, posted a 71. Sid Brews, last year's runner-up, made a poor start, but after the third had got over most of his troubles and just missed a six footer for a 70 at the eighteenth.

Henry Pickard had the roughest ride of all the Americans. Soon after starting in late afternoon, a cold mist came up. Visibility at times was hardly a hundred yards, making it well nigh impossible for him to judge distance. He took a 77.

McGrath Beats Allison to Open Wimbledon Play

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—Half of the American contingent, including the No. 1 Davis cup star, Wilmer Allison, failed to survive the first round of the Wimbledon Men's Tennis tournament today.

Regarded as one of the two American singles hopes, the Texan lost to the young Australian, Vivian McGrath, in a four set match, 6-4, 6-3, 7-9, 7-5.

The other four American Davis cup players came through their first singles tests but four "free lances" from the United States joined Allison in the trek to the sidelines.

They were joined in the winning column by Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., who took the measure of Andre Lagroix of Belgium, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The other beaten Americans included William W. Robertson of San Marino, Cal., who lost to Enrique Maier, Spanish champion, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3; Henry Culley of California, beaten 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 by G. R. P. Hughes of Great Britain; and Clayton Burwell of Charlotte, N. C., who lost to L. Shaffi, 8-6, 4-6, 8-6, 7-5.

All the other seeded players came through. Fred Perry of England won handily from Marcel Rainville of Canada, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3. Gottfried von Cramm of Germany beat P. De Leon of Uruguay, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3. Jack Crawford of Australia eliminated Jacques Brugnon of France, 6-1, 6-0, 6-3; H. W. [Bunny] Austin of England defeated Edward Avory, England, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Roderich Menzel, Czechoslovakia, beat L. C. Cater, England, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-0, and Christian Boussus of France won from Ian Collins, Scotland, 1-6, 6-0, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

LAKE SHORE A. C. PLANS TO HELP IMPROVE HARBOR

The first general meeting of the Lake Shore Athletic club's yachting committee was held last night in the club Shore room, overlooking the yacht harbor.

James T. Bristol, an official of the L. S. A. C., presided at the meeting. Plans were formulated to make the harbor north of Navy pier, known as anchorage C, available to the many yachts which now are crowded out of Grant Park, Belmont, and Jackson Park harbors.

At present only the largest craft can moor in this harbor, but the club's committee decided to take steps to enclose the anchorage.

HAMPTON CARDS 69 FOR LEAD IN ILLINOIS OPEN

Williams Second; Then Comes Laffoon.

Rockford, Ill., June 24.—[Special.]—Harry Hampton, professional at the Beverly Country club, Chicago, for the last nine years, today carded a 69, two under par, for the first eighteen holes in the fifth annual Illinois open tournament over the Rockford Country club course. This gave him a stroke lead over the field of fifty-nine.

Hampton, who did not play in the national open at Pittsburgh or the western open at South Bend but who started in the $3,500 Medinah open only to encounter a knockout punch from Old Man Par after the first round, was on his game today. He went out in 34 and had a 35 for the home nine.

Williams Posts 70.

Eddie Williams, River Forest pro, posted a 70 and lost a chance to tie Hampton on the final green, where he three putted after missing holing out on his second putt by inches. Williams took 34 on the outward nine, to knock two strokes off par, and came back in 36.

Ky Laffoon, Northmoor, followed Hampton and Williams with a 36—35—71, for third place at the halfway mark. Harry Cooper, Glen Oak, the defending champion, wound up in a three way tie for fourth place, deadlocked with Horton Smith, Oak Park, and John Bulla, Big Run, with 72s.

Johnny Hane, Quincy, and Teri Johnson, Decatur, led the limited downstate contingent with 73s. In this same class were Denny Shute, Westward Ho, and Bob Stupple, Skokie; Gunnar Nelson, the Rockford Country club professional, and Sonny Rouse, Elmgate.

Four Have 74.

A stroke behind this group were Tommy Armour, Medinah, who lost to Cooper in playoffs in the state tournament the last two years; Jim Foulis, Ruth Lake; Abe Espinosa, the Chicago veteran, and George M. Smith, Onwentsia.

Hampton followed the card on the first two holes and then shot two birdie 3s through the third and fourth. Harry got his birdie on No. 3 by holing out a nineteen foot putt. He dropped a ten foot putt on the next. Hampton followed par for the rest of the outgoing nine.

Hampton was in trouble only once during his eighteen holes of play and that came on the tenth, where he sent his tee shot into a trap and wound up with a 5 on the par 3 hole. After hitting par through the next three holes Harry got himself two more birdie 3s, one on the fourteenth, where he missed an eagle when he two putted from eight feet, and another on the final green.

Johnsos Signs as Assistant Coach to Bears

Luke A. Johnsos, Chicago Bears end for seven years, signed with the club as assistant coach to George Halas yesterday.

Johnsos replaces Laurie Walquist, who accepted a similar position with Oregon State university this year. With the signing of Red Grange as backfield coach, the Bears' staf is now complete.

Johnsos still will be available as an end where he is regarded as one of the best forward pass receivers in professional football. He led the league in this department in 1931 and 1932.

Johnsos is 29 years old and, with one exception, is the youngest coach in the National league. He is a graduate of Carl Schurz High school and Northwestern.

SEVEN MICHIGAN FOOTBALL MEN ARE INELIGIBLE

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 24.—[Special.]—The ineligibility jinx struck the University of Michigan football team hard during the past semester, ruling out seven members of the squad, and forcing 13 others to enroll in the summer session, it was announced here today.

Those who definitly will be unable to compete next fall are Joe Calouette, Detroit; Paul Gleye and Harold Sears, Grand Rapids; Frank Lett, Battle Creek; Robert Schroeder, Oshkosh, Wis.; Robert Johnson, Youngstown, O., and Steven Uricek, Flint.

Sears was a reserve guard in 1934, and was counted on as a regular this fall. Lett was a reserve. Among the football men who have enrolled for the summer school are Cedric Sweet, Lansing, full back; Joe Ellis, Eagle River, Wis., half back, and Harry Wright, tackle, all of whom took a regular turn in Kipke's rotating lineup last fall.

Phelps Stops Boston as Sox Win, 6 to 4

Real Jam in Sixth.

Another piece of Phelps' lead went away in the fourth when Reynolds sent his homer drifting into the left field seats. Then in the sixth Phelps was tossed into a jam that for a few moments looked hopeless, but he escaped. Johnson looped a cheap single over Hayes and went to third on Cronin's single to right. Then the first thing Phelps did to get out of it was to induce Reynolds to pop to Hayes. R. Ferrell followed with a slow bounder to Appling, who scooped it up, ran over to touch second and threw to Bonura in time for a double play.

The Chicago Sox fabricated a run from two hits in their half of the sixth, which proved the final for Rhodes. Simmons emerged from his slump long enough to drive a two bagger into the right field corner. Dahlgren moved in on the grass in anticipation of a bunt by Appling. Luke crossed up this bit of strategy by taking a full swing and driving the ball past Dahlgren for a double, Simmons scoring. Dykes then fanned after two attempts to bunt. Shea lined to Almada and Phelps did the same thing.

Red Sox Tie It Up.

There was only one hit off Phelps in the seventh, but it had sufficient length to drive in two Red Sox and tie the score at 4 all. With one gone Dykes made a two base wild throw past Bonura on Dahlgren's grounder. Miller batted for Rhodes and Appling threw him out. Williams walked. Almada tripled into right center, Dahlgren and Williams going home with the tying runs. Johnson rolled to Bonura to conclude the inning.

As soon as Grove took over the pitching task in the home seventh he encountered trouble in the shape of Radcliff's two bagger to center. Hayes sacrificed. Haas aimed a slow roller toward Cronin, who was in such a hurry that he neglected to pick up the ball. Radcliff scored on the error. Haas overran first and was nipped on a throw from Almada. Bonura singled to right and raced to third on Simmons' single to center. Almada shot the ball to third, but his aim was bad and it rolled into the dugout, Bonura scoring and Simmons taking third. The fun stopped when Appling fanned.

PLAY DOUBLE-HEADER.

The Chicago Major Girls' Softball league will stage a double header tomorrow night at Mills stadium with the T. J. Bowlers opposing the Julian T. Fitzgeralds and the Kilmer Trees facing the Commercial Tire Supply Co-eds.

COACH MORRISON, SON KEEPING UP SHUTTLE RELAY

Dallas, Tex., June 24.—(AP)—Because Ray Morrison was football coach at Southern Methodist university, Jack Morrison, his son, enrolled at Vanderbilt in Nashville and was a star player on the freshman team. He seemed like a sure thing for the varsity.

But now Ray Morrison has been appointed coach at Vanderbilt. So Jack has decided to enroll at Southern Methodist even though he will be ineligible for varsity athletics for a year. He said it would be unfair both to himself and his father to be at the same school.

Cubs Defeat Giants, 10-9, in 10th Inning went to third when Herman fortified his hero claims with a single. Not caring to send Hack against a lefty, Vice President Grimm sent up Demaree to bat for him. Then Terry replaced Smith with Frank Gabler. Demaree singled off Gabler's first pitch and Galan came home with the winning run.

The Cubs now have won eleven games of the sixteen played since they came east, and nine of their last eleven.

Cubs Take Lead.

Lindstrom opened the second inning with a single to left and went to third on Klein's single to right. Cuyler ran for Lindstrom, who pulled a muscle in his leg. Cavarretta dropped a single in short center, scoring Cuyler, Klein stopping at second. The runners moved up on Jurges' sacrifice and held on while Parmelee was throwing out Lee. Galan walked, filling the bases, then Herman tripled to left center, scoring Klein, Cavarretta, and Galan. Hack filed to Leiber.

After the Cubs had gone out in order in the fourth inning Koenig led off the Giant half with a double to left and scored on Jackson's single to center. Mancuso singled past Cavarretta, putting Jackson on third. Parmelee fanned. Moore flied to Klein, Jackson scoring. Hack threw out Bartell.

Giants Tie Score.

Hack walked and stole second with two out in the fifth, but Hartnett ended the inning with a fly to Leiber.

Klein made a hard try for Ott's long drive with one out in the Giant fifth, but couldn't hold the ball and it went for a triple. Leiber walked after a three and two count, then Koenig dropped a Texas leaguer in short center, scoring Ott. Jackson forced Koenig, Leiber taking third. Galan and Jurges put on the Cubs' famous you-take-it stupidity play on Mancuso's fly and it dropped for a double, Leiber scoring the tying run and Jackson stopping at third. Parmelee fouled to Cavarretta.

Cuyler was hit by a pitched ball to start the sixth and was forced by Klein. Cavarretta fouled to Terry, then Jurges made the first Cub hit knocked aside from the second inning. Klein went to third on Jurges' smack, but Lee flied to Leiber.

Terry singled to left with two out in the sixth. Ott was given a hit when his easy grounder scooted right past Cavarretta, Terry reaching third. Lee obviously was distressed by the young first baseman's helplessness on the play. Leiber knocked his No. 9 homer into the upper deck of the left field stands, scoring Terry and Ott. Koenig beat out an infield single and scored on Jackson's homer, also in the upper deck of the left field stands. It was the 15th hit off Lee, who was replaced by Kowalik at this point. Mancuso singled to left and Parmelee fanned.

The Cubs added a run in the eighth on Cuyler's single, Cavarretta's walk and Jurges' single. Henshaw took over the pitching assignment in the eighth. Ott fanned and Lieber and Koenig filed out.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Tex Carleton and Larry French will pitch for the Cubs in tomorrow's double-header against the Giants. Carl Hubbell and Clyde Castleman are Manager Bill Terry's overnight selections.

that lunch will taste better after a Dubonnet"

The French know the magic with which their famous apéritif wine Dubonnet spurs the appetite—exhilarates the sense of taste. That's why Dubonnet is the favorite apéritif in France. Your lunch will taste better—your afternoon will be more pleasant—after a Dubonnet. For Dubonnet is the sensible lunch time drink*. It leaves your head clear for "business as usual". Do as the French do, ask for Dubonnet, straight, chilled but not iced.

SILVER SICKLE MAKES OWNER SAD; WINS RACE

Pays 13-1 and Handlers Said He Couldn't Win.

BY FRENCH LANE.

John Marsch, Chicago turfman, blamed it on his sea legs. He's just back from Europe. Whatever the reason, however, he did not bet on his horse, Silver Sickle, in the Hyde Park purse at Washington Park yesterday.

His trainer, Roscoe Goose, wasn't a bit more generous with himself. He also failed to bet on Silver Sickle and he charged himself with being kidded by the steed he prepared for the race.

So Owner Marsch and Trainer Goose just sat and looked on from the clubhouse as Silver Sickle trimmed the best field of the day and went galloping past the winning post to pay off at $28.08.

Were Their Faces Red?

Their faces were red all right, not so much because they had failed to bet on the son of Sickle-Gilded Easel, but because Mr. Marsch's friends were around welcoming him back from across the Atlantic and asking how his horse was going to run.

"Well, I don't see how we can beat such horses as Our Reigh and Corinto, so I'm not betting," Marsch told them.

Trainer Goose had the same message for his cronies and they are legion. So except for a few persons who think their own judgment and handicap figures are the best, no one profited on Silver Sickle's triumph at those Midas odds of 13 to 1.

Silver Sickle didn't find it a very hard job to win. He let My Blonde make the pace for nearly half a mile, then flew to the front and coasted the rest of the way, always more than a length to the good.

Hurrah for John!

Just the opposite was the happy afternoon Alderman John Coughlin put in at the track. The alderman's silks were carried to the post by his 3 year old, Official, making its first start of the year.

"We've got him ready for this one," the alderman told his constituents. "Look, I'm betting $50 on him myself."

The alderman passed out no bad information, for a few minutes later Official stepped away from the barrier in a field of eight 3 year olds. He was slightly outrun down the back stretch, but when they hit the turn, Official moved toward the front.

You can picture the joy of the alderman and his friends when the mutuel prices were hung out. Official paid $30.28 to win, $10.76 to place, and $7.70 to show. Scatter Brain was the favorite.

Top Row Gets 124 Pounds for $5,000 Stake

Top Row, from the stable of A. A. Baroni, will carry top weight in the $5,000 Washington Park Championship handicap, the final stake race of the Washington Park season to be run Saturday. His package will be 124 pounds.

Weights for the race were assigned yesterday by Racing Secretary McLennan. Head Play is the actual high weight with 130 pounds, but he will be engaged Saturday in the Detroit Challenge cup.

Horse.	Weight.	Horse.	Weight.
Riskulus	119	Dust Girl	105
Sweeping Light	115	Spicson	103
Eversold	114	Calumet Dick	102
Gusto	112	Ann O'Ruley	100
Late Date	111	Silent Shot	100
Watch Him	110	South Gallant	100
Tearout	109	Upwind	100
Count Arthur	108	Naval Cadet	99
Quatre Bras II	107	Corinto	96
Royal Blunder	107	Redress	95

Several of the participants in the Detroit Challenge cup will entrain for Arlington Park where they will be engaged in the $10,000 added Stars and Stripes handicap to be run July 4th. This will be the first important special to be renewed at Arlington.

Racing Secretary Charley McLennan was notified yesterday by Alex Wilson, representing F. M. Alger Jr., and J. Thomas Taylor, trainer of Mrs. Silas B. Mason's stable, that Azucar and Head Play would be shipped to Arlington Park over the week-end. Azucar captured the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap over a track similar to that at Arlington, and Head Play defeated Discovery and other outstanding eastern horses in the Suburban handicap. Discovery also is expected to come from Detroit Sunday.

Azucar will be accompanied by eleven other horses owned by the young Detroit sportsman, while eight in all comprise the stable handled by Taylor. Other prominent members of Mrs. Mason's string are Sun Portland, a candidate for the Arlington Classic, and Vale Victorian, a smart youngster with engagements in the $10,000 Hyde Park stakes and $60,000 Arlington futurity.

Missing from the clubhouse ring activities yesterday were James Norris Jr., Tom Nash, William Schmidt, Charley Cleary, and George Ross, who were among those to travel east for the Louis-Carnera fight.

BARNEY ROSS ON HAND TO CHEER GOLDEN GLOVER

"Had to come to root for a Golden Glover," Barney told reporters.

Ross was accompanied by his managers, Sam Plan and Art Winch, and he will be joined tomorrow by Trainer Issy Klein, who was in Elmira tonight seconding Adolph Wiater, Chicago heavyweight, against Art Sykes.

BISMARCKS PLAY MEDINAH.

BONNIE DREAM had speed from the start, raced a trifle wide and also held on courageously.

Report of Sweeping Quiz Expected This Week.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Charles Dixon, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Arthur Siourcek, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge William V. Brothers.

Windin up its widened investigation into an alleged tieup between union sluggers and Chicago police, the grand jury yesterday returned indictments against two men charged with slugging an Oak Park florist on June 12.

The grand jurors postponed making their report on the result of the investigation, indicating that it will be incorporated in the final report the June jury will make before it passes out of existence Friday.

One witness was questioned yesterday, Kirk Klausser, village president of Maywood. He was asked about a statement made several days ago by James A. Howe, village president of Oak Park, that Chicago police had stood guard in Maywood while "a hand picked union with synthetic officers, many of them with criminal records," manipulated a $150,000 Maywood business building into union control.

Transfer Two Accused Police.

Sergt. Andrew Carroll and Policeman Norman Sims, members of a police squad reported by Oak Park police to have interceded for the union sluggers after their arrest, were transferred yesterday from the labor detail of Lieut. Charles Egan back to their stations.

Carroll went to the Central station, and Sims to Woodlawn.

Lieut. Egan could not be reached last night to learn if Policeman William McCullough, third member of the squad, had also been transferred. The labor detail operates under orders from Supervising Captain Daniel Gilbert.

Bohlman and Monahan Named.

Those named in the indictments returned yesterday are Fred Bohlman and Larry Monahan, business agents of the Excavating, Grading, and Asphalt Teamsters' union. This union is an unit of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The organization enjoys the friendship of State's Attorney T[illegible] J. Courtney, whereas those loyal to the notorious Trucking and Transportation exchange [TNT] do not.

One count charges Bohlman and Monahan with assault with a deadly weapon upon Peter Javaras, 1145 North Harlem avenue, Oak Park, and fixes the men's bonds at $5,000 each. Javaras and Gus Poulos operate a cash and carry flower business at that address, and Javaras was allegedly beaten for his refusal to join the Florist Drivers' union. A second count charges Bohlman with carrying concealed weapons, setting bond at $1,000.

Immediately after the indictments were returned before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court, State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, who presented the evidence at the investigation, repeated his promise that he would urge a speedy trial for Bohlman and Monahan.

Arraignment This Week.

It is expected that they will be arraigned later in the week. The two have been at liberty in $5,000 bonds each.

Two other men arrested in connection with the Oak Park violence are to be arraigned in the Oak Park police court today. They are E. J. Price, secretary of the Florists' Drivers' union, and William Bibby, business agent of the Garage Helpers' union, charged under local ordinance with molesting Poulos for his refusal to join Price's union.

Meanwhile, the state's attorneys of Lake and Du Page counties were awaiting further complaints from florists and nurserymen who may have been forced to join the Florist Drivers' union, as several have already charged. They have promised swift justice for union sluggers.

2 EX-OFFICIALS OF CUDAHY BROS. DIE SAME DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 24.—[Special.]—Two veteran former officials of the Cudahy Brothers company, both members of pioneer Milwaukee families, died today at their homes. They were James W. Bryden, 83, former secretary of the meat packing concern, who lived at 2649 North Terrace avenue, and Peter B. Schubring, 66, former department superintendent who lived at 722 Plankinton avenue, Cudahy.

Mr. Bryden retired in 1924 after 47 years of service with the company. He entered the employ of the company as a clerk, and rose to position of secretary which he held 10 years. He was one of the founders of the Milwaukee Athletic club, and active in affairs of Immanuel Presbyterian church. A widow, Josephine, survives him. The funeral services will be Wednesday at his home. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery.

Mr. Schubring, who saw 40 years of service with the Cudahy company, had been superintendent of the cutters' department for 11 years before his retirement in 1928. He served as alderman of Cudahy for eight years, and trustee of the village before it was incorporated.

NEIGHBORS SAVE TWO BABIES AS HOME TAKES FIRE

South Bend, Ind., June 24.—[Special.]—Two babies were saved by two neighbors this afternoon when fire swept through their home. Mrs. Cleo Waters was visiting a neighbor two blocks away while her daughters, Bonnie, 2, and Gloria Dean, 8 months old, slept.

Another daughter, Dorothy, 9, gave the alarm when she noticed smoke as she came in to get a drink after playing in the yard. She ran to the home of Mrs. Clara Mossman where her mother was visiting and cried: "Our house is on fire!" Mrs. Waters and Dorothy Mossman, 16, ran to the burning home. Mrs. Waters collapsed just as she reached the porch.

Miss Mossman ran through the smoke filled house and brought the infant, Bonnie, out safely from its crib on the second floor. Mrs. Garret Parrot, another neighbor, rescued Gloria Dean. The fire was checked by firemen after it had swept through the first floor. It was believed to have started from defective wiring.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Lionel Barrymore has just put his name to a contract calling for his appearance as Scrooge in a radio version of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" each Christmas afternoon for the next five years. Thus, if your 1939 Yule plans are not already inflexibly determined, the 4 to 4:30 hour on CBS may merit your attention.

This long distance booking grew out of Barrymore's magnificent performance of the rôle last Christmas afternoon on that three hour Kenosha Motor sponsored program. But it is another sponsor—the one who has "Hollywood Hotel" on the air—who has engaged Barrymore to do Scrooge henceforth.

Alexander Woollcott, who appeared on the program with Barrymore during the last holidays, had made the reading of "A Christmas Carol" an institution on CBS. But Barrymore's interpretation of Scrooge blotted out the memory of Woollcott's work. After one rendition Barrymore's interpretation is already a classic.

When Joe Penner relinquishes his Sunday evening spot on NBC after one more appearance the sponsor will open the microphone to all comers. Under the title of "Voice of the People," informal and spontaneous interviews on timely questions will be broadcast from the sidewalks of New York.

This type of program is by no means new. Columbia has one called "The Man in the Street" and there are other similar ones. This "Voice" had its start on a Houston, Tex., station. Jerry Belcher and Parks Johnson, who operated it, will run the show in New York. Like amateur hours, this type of show is likely to be just about as good as the men in charge. Belcher and Johnson were brought to New York with the hope that their formula would be as potent in the interview business as Maj. Bowes' turned out to be with amateurs.

Tony Wons is closing his radio "House by the Side of the Road" after next Sunday and forthwith will open his cabin in the north woods for the summer. . . . Lawrence Salerno, W-G-N baritone, will be the headliner at the Rockford Music festival, a preliminary to the Chicagoland festival, on Aug. 3. . . . The Joe Louis-Primo Carnera bout tonight will not be broadcast. . . . Amos 'n' Andy will broadcast straight through the summer. If they take a vacation the microphone will follow along.

Jim Harkins, who will pinch hit for Fred Allen, was, like Pat [Charles Carroll] Flanagan, a Davenport, Ia., chiropractor before he got into radio. . . . George Frame Brown, Gus of "Tony and Gus," is broadcasting from an arm chair these days. He underwent an emergency operation last week. . . . Joe E. Brown will make one of his infrequent air appearances in Ring Lardner's "Elmer the Great," on the NBC Radio theater next Sunday afternoon.

Paul Whiteman's "Music Hall" will start its third year on the air Thursday. . . . The Victor Kolar Sunday evening concert hour will fold after next Sunday, but will return after 13 weeks. Guests already sign for fall include Heifetz, Bori, Richard Crooks, Albert Spalding, Kiraten Flagstad, Elisabeth Rethberg, Jose Iturbi, and Cyrena Van Gordon.

KEY BROTHERS NEAR MARK ON ENDURANCE HOP

Meridian, Miss., June 24.—(AP)—Favored with perfect weather, the flying Key brothers, Fred and Al, pushed their sturdy plane toward a new world's record as they completed the 482nd consecutive hour in the air at 2:32 p. m. today.

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Railroad bonds, mostly of the second grade variety, featured the bond markets today. Despite the substantial gains recorded by several groups of rail securities last week, they moved still higher from the opening of trading under the leadership of the more active New York Central obligations. New York Central refunding 5s and 4½s of 2013 advanced to new high levels for the year on a considerable turnover.

Several Southern Pacific issues also reached new high ground for the year and there was general buying at higher quotations of Southern Railway obligations, Baltimore and Ohio convertibles, Erles, Great Northerns, and some of the New Haven, and Missouri Pacific obligations.

Other Rail Issues Rise.

Others moving upward included Delaware and Hudson 4s, New York, Ontario and Western 4s, and Western Maryland 4s.

In the utility group North American Edison bonds, American Water Works 6s, Western Union 4½s, and Columbia Gas 5s were higher.

Trading in government bonds was about on the average, indicating the market suffered little as a result of the new $100,000,000 issue of 3s, bids on which were received today. Closing prices were unchanged to 4-32nds higher.

Some Issues Under Pressure.

A heavy wave of selling developed among a few bonds that had run up briskly during the last week. Three issues of International Telephone bonds lost as much as two points before steadying near the close. Most of these gained as much as 9 points last week under heavy demand stimulated by the filing of an application for reorganization by Postal Telegraph, a subsidiary. Others ending lower included Certain-teed 5½s, Kelly Springfield 6s, and Parmelee 6s.

423 Roscoe Bldg. Corp.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate having such information as you can give me regarding the Lackner-Butz first mortgage bond of 423 Roscoe Building corporation. This property is in Chicago. No statement of condition or other advice has been given since the bonds were deposited. —H. F. F.

Answer: A. R. Griffith, writing for the protective committee, informs us that the original first mortgage bond issue of $335,000 on 423 Roscoe building was paid down to $322,500 when the first default occurred on April 10, 1930.

Foreclosure proceedings were instituted in July, 1930, final decree was entered in 1932 and the sale held on Sept. 12, 1932. The committee had previously purchased the title. It effected a redemption from the foreclosure sale in December, 1932.

The property is improved with a six story furnished apartment building containing fifty-nine apartments. It is about eight years old.

The information furnished by the committee falls short of containing the information which a depositing bondholder is entitled to have. Nothing concerning occupancy, tax situation, earnings, and condition of the property is furnished, although data on these items was specifically requested. Without such information, of course, it is impossible to make any estimate as to how the committee is functioning or how bondholders are likely to fare.

Evelyn Apartments.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Evelyn apartments. I don't know the exact address. I have a relative who is dead who had a couple of bonds and I was appointed executor of the will.—P. C. J.

Answer: Evelyn apartments are at 2849 W. 58th street and 5801 S. Francisco avenue. It is a two story brick building containing twelve apartments. It is about eight or ten years old and reported to be in good physical condition. There are outstanding $35,000 of first mortgage bonds, sold by South West Trust and Savings bank, of which 99 per cent are on deposit with the committee.

All twelve apartments were rented on June 1, 1935.

Gross receipts for the nine months to Dec. 14, 1934, totaled $3,287 and operating expenses were $1,792. In addition, $200 was paid to the receiver and his attorney and $1,188 applied on unpaid bills of the previous receiver. Cash on hand was $307. Taxes for the period from 1929 to date were unpaid.

Foreclosure proceedings against the property have been concluded. The period of redemption has expired. The committee on May 29, 1935, was preparing to organize a corporation to acquire title to the property for depositing bondholders.

PLAN TO INSURE DEPOSITS ASIDE FROM BANK BILL

Glass Group to Seek Year's Extension.

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—The Glass senate subcommittee on banking and currency unanimously agreed this afternoon to recommend an extension for one year of the existing temporary federal deposit insurance as a separate piece of legislation, without regard to the administration's highly controversial banking bill.

This recommendation, which the full committee is expected to follow tomorrow, would avert the possibility of a banking crisis on July 1 and, by removing the "emergency" club from the hands of the administration, would leave Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] in a commanding position to force important changes in the banking bill.

New Plan Called Onerous.

The banking act of 1933 provides for a so-called permanent deposit insurance plan which, without further legislation, would become effective July 1. This would carry 100 per cent deposit insurance up to $10,000, 75 per cent up to $50,000, and 50 per cent above $50,000. The banks, however, would be required to subscribe to class A stock in the FDIC in the amount of one-half of one per cent of their total deposit liability and half this amount would be due July 1. This would require 160 million dollars and many banks would not be able to meet their assessments.

Under the temporary plan, as revised by the Glass subcommittee, deposits would continue to be insured 100 per cent up to $5,000. The assessment on banks for membership in the insurance fund would be fixed at one-twelfth of 1 per cent of total deposits, whereas under the existing law now in operation it is one-half of 1 per cent of insurable deposits. Also assessments would cease when the insurance fund reached $500,000,000 to be resumed when that fund was impaired by 15 per cent.

Glass Group Adopts Strategy.

Besides providing the basis for meeting the banking emergency, the action of the Glass subcommittee reveals the masterly strategy played by the senator from Virginia since hearings on the Eccles bill began early in the session. During the entire course of these hearings, which administration leaders have indulged with great impatience, there has been a story around Washington that Senator Glass was "killing the banking bill by degrees."

Today the irascible statesman, recently decorated by half a dozen LL.D.'s, was all smiles when he left the committee room and entered the senate chamber.

He can now delay the hearings as long as he chooses, for there can be no cry of "emergency," and he is in a good position to force such changes in title II the central bank part of the bill, as he desires.

May Work Out Compromise.

If a satisfactory compromise is not worked out action on the entire bill may be postponed until the next session of congress. A suggested compromise, on which Glass is said to have reached a tentative agreement with administration leaders in the senate, would divide membership on the open market committee between federal reserve bank governors and the politically dominated federal reserve board.

The bill, as written, places full control over open market operations, reserve requirements, and the rediscount rates in the hands of the federal reserve board. Witnesses before the committee have contended this would permit the government to force its own obligations upon the reserve banks without limitation and lead inevitably to uncontroled inflation.

The American Liberty league in a statement opposed enactment of any measure which centralizes control of credit policies. In attacking title II of the administration's bill, it said:

"Title II increases the authority of political officers of the national government over the federal reserve system in such a way as to furnish a potential menace to the integrity of our credit and monetary systems. Also, it skirts dangerously near the borders of unconstitutionality if it does not actually overstep them."

Trade Leaders Consider Using Japs' Methods

Sir Arthur Balfour of Great Britain told the 1,000 delegates from 35 countries that, although Japanese competition may harass individual business, he was convinced it "has great possibilities for international economic good."

Defending their country's trade policies, Japanese industrialists asserted "repression of Japan's natural growth as a competitive power is impossible." They said, however, they were anxious to see the end of cartel methods in world trade.

Japanese Defend Methods.

"The world overlooks the constructive value of Japanese competition, thus magnifying the threat of Japanese trade," said Yosaburo Ito of Japan.

American and English business leaders said after the session, in informal discussion, the only means of meeting Japan's competition was to study her methods of "rationalization of industry," whereby national coöperation turned a whole industry into a single company instead of dozens.

One American delegate said: "The United States industrialists are turning the tables by sending experts to study Japanese production methods."

Walchand Hiarchand, Indian business executive, startled the delegates by stating that India would be a powerful industrial nation if England stopped forcing India into agriculture in order to protect the mother country's industries.

Urges Ending Quota System.

Frederick Fentener Van Vlissingen of the Netherlands, president of the body, sounded the keynote by declaring the "world war of quotas and exchange" must end if economic prosperity is to return.

Striking hard at economic nationalism "which never can be made to pay," Van Vlissingen told the delegates that America has led the world in beginning a reduction of her tarif barriers by the application of President Roosevelt's powers to effect cuts up to 50 per cent in favor of countries negotiating new commercial treaties.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday announced that sales for the fifth period of the fiscal year from May 22 to June 18 amounted to $32,294,789, the highest for the period since 1929, when the record high for the fifth period was established.

The total was $7,271,396, or 29.1 per cent, above the $25,023,393 for the corresponding period of last year and compared with $32,171,804 in the preceding period of this year, when the gain over a year ago amounted to 17.1 per cent. The slight seasonal increase was in contrast with a declining trend between the fourth and fifth periods in 1934 and 1933.

For the first five periods this year the company had total sales of $148,056,923, compared with $118,997,988 in the corresponding five periods of 1934. This was an increase of $29,058,935, or 24.4 per cent.

Safeway Stores, Inc., reported sales for the four weeks ended June 15 were the best for that period in the company's history, amounting to $21,911,168, against $19,000,462 in the corresponding four weeks of last year, an increase of 15.3 per cent. In the preceding period of this year sales totaled $21,477,565, a gain of 19.4 per cent over a year ago. During the first twenty-four weeks of this year the total was $124,604,646, against $106,417,354 in the 1934 period.

CODE AUTHORITIES ENTER RECEIVERSHIP; ADMIT HELPLESSNESS

Wilmington, Del., June 24.—(AP)—Two code authorities under the late NRA entered receiverships today. They are the Men's Neckwear Code Authority, Inc., and the Cotton Garment Code Authority, Inc.

The receivership bill against the former was filed by Bachrach & Co. of New York, creditor in the amount of $3,000. Insolvency in an equity sense was alleged and it also was asserted that all the acts of the defendant have been unlawful and improper.

The receivership suit against the Cotton Garment Code Authority was filed by the D. & D. Shirt Company, Inc., of Northhampton, Pa., a $2,000 creditor. Similar allegations were made.

Orders appointing receivers for the code authorities were filed in the office of the register in chancery. Both code authorities filed answers simultaneously with the filing of the bills of compalint and consented to appointment of recievers. Answers in both cases stated that the Supreme court's recent opinion on the constitutionality of NRA rendered the code authorities unable, and without authority, to conduct their business.

Assets of both authorities exceed their liabilities. The Cotton Garment Code Authority had three funds in which about $268,000 is deposited.

C. & O. ORDERS EQUIPMENT TO COST $11,819,000

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad last night placed orders for freight service equipment which will cost approximately $11,819,000. This is one of the largest orders to be placed by any railroad in years and when the plans for the purchase were announced some weeks ago it was stated the action might be interpreted as signifying the break in the log jam holding up rail spending.

The orders are divided as follows: From the American Car and Foundry company at Huntington, W. Va., 2,000 fifty ton steel hopper coal cars; Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company at Butler, Pa., 1,500 fifty ton steel hopper coal cars; General American Car company, East Chicago, Ind., 1,500 fifty ton steel hopper coal cars. The total price for the 5,000 coal cars is $11,500,000.

In addition the following orders were placed: General American Car company, East Chicago, fifty forty ton single deck stock cars costing $130,000; Bethlehem Steel company, Johnstown, Pa., seventy-five steel underframe flat cars of fifty ton capacity to cost $189,000.

CHAIN STORES WIN TAX TILT IN LOUISIANA FIGHT

New Orleans, La., June 24.—[Special.]—A temporary decree restraining Alice Lee Grosjean, state supervisor of public accounts, and Gaston L. Porterie, attorney general, from attempting to collect the chain store tax in Louisiana was issued by a three-judge federal court here today. The law was written by Senator Huey P. Long.

The decree is effective until the suit is heard on its merits some time in October.

The chains contended the act violated the constitution of the United States, that it seized their property without due process, and that it discriminated against them in that it did not apply to chain store systems operating only in Louisiana.

Fear of Cattle Disease Stirs Treaty Protest

Fear of the dreaded hoof and mouth disease and expectation of the flooding of eastern markets with South American meat are the two leading reasons for opposing the proposed treaty with Argentina to admit chilled beef from that country, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Chicago Live Stock exchange.

"American producers of beef cattle face a grave threat in the proposal to open the ports of the United States to fresh chilled beef from Argentina," the statement said. "At present a quarantine stands against such importations, based on the fact well established by British veterinary scientists that the germs of the foot and mouth disease may be carried in chilled beef. This dread disease is prevalent in Argentine beef herds.

Declares Tariff Inadequate.

"The present tarif of 6 cents a pound on fresh beef is not adequate protection. There is every reason to believe that with the treaty in effect plenty of beef would be found qualified to be admitted to this country.

"A level of beef prices in this country affording to American producers a fair margin over cost would result in flooding our eastern centers with Argentine beef, thus demoralizing our markets."

Veteran live stock men recalled the last outbreak of this disease in this country, when the only means of checking its spread was the slaughter of entire herds of cattle.

The treaty has been sent to the senate. It has already been signed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the Argentine ambassador, Felipe A. Espil.

Growers Make Protests.

The Nebraska Stock Growers' association, in its vigorous protest against the treaty, points out that during the last 30 years there have been eight outbreaks of this disease, with an estimated cost to American cattle growers of $200,000,000, "the origin of which in every instance was traced to South America."

The South Dakota Stock Growers' association, in its condemning resolution, said, "We express our most severe condemnation of this plot to circumvent the present quarantine to protect the animal health of this country."

Federal Judge Refuses to Rule on AAA Legality

Kansas City, Mo., June 24.—(AP)—Refusing to rule on the constitutionality of the AAA program, the United States District court late today dismissed a petition of the Larrabee Mills company, asking an injunction against collection of the processing tax on wheat.

Revenues for Year Exceed Prediction.

All classifications of expenditures for the 12 months closing June 30, however, were running below official estimates. Despite its size, even the deficit was nearly $1,500,000,000 below the $4,869,000,000 total predicted.

Revenues Above Expectations.

All revenues totaled $3,743,000,000 as compared with $3,711,000,000, the year's estimated total, and the $3,053,000,000 figure for last year.

Comparing the two years, the one about to be closed showed increases in all divisions of receipts. Income tax collections were $1,033,000,000 as compared with $801,000,000 a year ago, miscellaneous internal revenue $1,628,000,000 as compared with $1,438,000,000, and customs $335,000,000 as compared with $307,000,000. Income tax collections for the full year are expected to reach $1,149,000,000.

More Than 7 Billions Spent.

General expenditures, exclusive of agricultural benefit payments, totaled $3,095,000,000, but the President had forecast an outlay of $3,321,000,000. Emergency outlays added up to $4,052,000,000 as compared with an estimate of $5,260,000,000. For the same period of last year general expenditures totaled $2,521,000,000 and emergency expenditures were $3,776,000,000.

The aggregate of all expenditures for this year was $7,148,000,000 while the budget estimates contemplated outlays totaling $8,581,000,000.

Citizens' Meat Bills Mount Steadily, 38% Above Year Ago

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The American citizen's meat bill continues to go up—not by sudden and sensational jumps, but with a steady and monotonous persistence.

The latest report on retail food prices given out by the United States department of agriculture shows that during May, while prices of other foods were declining slightly, the retail cost of meat rose another 3.3 per cent. In the two weeks from May 21 to June 4, alone, prices increased 2.1 per cent.

On June 4, the date of the last official figures, meat prices to householders throughout the country averaged 38 per cent higher than a year before and 54.5 per cent higher than two years before.

Pork chops led the June rise with a 10 per cent increase in retail prices. Sliced bacon advanced 3.1 per cent, ham 3 per cent, and round steak nearly 2 per cent.

A dollar now buys only as many pork chops as 50 cents would buy two years ago, thanks to the AAA's destruction of millions of little pigs and the corn-hog crop reduction program under which producers are given government checks for not raising hogs and corn. The department of agriculture's own figures show that pork chops on June 4 were selling for 99.5 per cent more than on June 15, 1933.

Dress Goods of Indian Jute Replaces American Cotton.

Tom Linder, commissioner of the department of agriculture of the state of Georgia, forwards a copy of a letter that he has just sent to President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in which he says that, due to the New Dealers' boosting the cost of cotton through the processing tax, dress goods made of jute grown from India is being sold in Atlanta in competition with goods made from American cotton. He incloses a sample.

While this jute sells in Atlanta stores, he says, Georgia farmers are limited in the production of cotton, and, if they keep a cow, in some instances are buying cotton seed meal and hulls from Corea to feed that cow.

Our exports of cotton, he points out, dropped from 8,916,000 bales in 1932 to 8,353,000 bales in 1934, 5,753,000 bales in 1934, and are still going down in 1935. Production of cotton in foreign countries, he adds, during the last three years has increased from 9,653,000 bales to 12,925,000 bales.

But that isn't all. Domestic consumption of American cotton has also slumped alarmingly. The amount of cotton processing taxes collected by the government is a yardstick of cotton consumption within the borders of the United States because this tax is applied only to that cotton which is sold to domestic firms.

The processing tax collections from July 1, 1933, to April 30, 1934, Linder says, totaled 122 million dollars. For the corresponding period ending April 30, 1935, such collections totaled only 83 millions.

Happy Days Coming Back to the Florists' Trade.

The great wave of consumer buying which Gen. Charles G. Dawes predicts will begin to lift this country out of the depression next month has not yet turned to steel ingots, but it seems to have been bringing back happy days to florists.

Homer Lange, Chicago florist and official of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association, reports that net sales of that group during the first four months of this year were $1,508,000, compared with $1,356,000 for the corresponding period of 1934, an increase of 11 per cent.

Compared with 1933 the showing is even better. Americans in the first four months of that year "said it with flowers" to the tune of only $1,088,000.

According to Lange the trend in Chicago and surrounding territory has closely approximated that of the nation as a whole for this luxury business.

Steel Output 37.7 Per Cent; Lowest Level This Year

New York, June 24.—(AP)—The American Iron and Steel institute today estimated steel operations for the current week at 37.7 per cent of capacity. This was the lowest rate since the week of Dec. 24, 1934, and compared with 38.3 per cent of capacity last week, 42.3 per cent a month ago, and 44.7 per cent in the corresponding week a year ago.

TAX PROGRAM LEADS TO MIXED STOCK MARKET

Bewildered Traders Sell Some Classes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 24.—Popular bewilderment over the standing of President Roosevelt's latest tax proposals brought some fresh selling into the stock market today, driving part of the list irregularly lower. A number of issues favored by special influences continued to make headway, however, some of them pushing on to the best prices for the year or movement. Trading was at a fairly brisk pace most of the time, the turnover running to 1,116,670 shares.

The market's immediate concern over the Rooseveltian tax program is primarily with the time element involved; that is, whether the chief executive will yield to the clamor to press for enactment at this session or wait until after the next election, as week-end advices indicated he was disposed to do.

View on Tax Program.

The apparent readiness of some of the President's immediate followers to have the matter passed upon at the present session led to the opinion in many quarters that the issue might be forced through regardless of Roosevelt's evident willingness to postpone serious consideration of it to the future, an attitude which caused many to believe last week that the proposal would pan out to be nothing more than a political gesture designed to head off the Long-Coughlin element.

Commentators agreed that the proposed corporation taxes at any rate would have the inevitable effect of further hampering industrial recovery and the issues of some of the leading industrial companies of the list which have been going along so well of late were among the chief losers on the day's selling. American Can, for example, sold down 3 points, Allied Chemical gave up more than $2 a share, and a number of preferred issues made an even poorer showing. On the average, however, losses were held within a point or so.

Gold and Silver Shares Quiet.

Gold and silver stocks were generally out of favor, the white metal shares especially suffering from a recession of inflationary talk and a drop in silver prices in India to the lowest level since last April. The desire of South Africa and Canada for more taxes on gold company profits are factors in keeping gold shares quiet.

Tobaccos were firm most of the day on talk of cigaret price solidarity, but met some selling in the later dealings. Oils, foods, and motors were fractionally lower.

Commercial Investment Trust rose to the highest price since 1929. Utilities made a better showing than most groups. The rails were inactive, with price movements irregular. Union Pacific was carried up, but Atchison, New York Central, and other favorites drifted lower.

72 New 1935 Highs Recorded.

The irregularity of the market was reflected in the fact although net declines for the day were recorded in 306 issues as compared with 268 advances, 72 stocks moved up to new high marks for 1935. This group included many utility stocks and several industrial issues.

Expectation of expanding stock trading was indicated by the sale of an exchange membership at the highest price since May 10, 1934, when a seat brought $110,000. Today's sale was at $108,000, a rise of $3,000 from the preceding transaction. In April of this year memberships reached a low of $65,000.

MARSHALL FIELD TRAVELING STORE DRAWS BUYERS

Finds Merchants' Trade Views Encouraging.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—[Aboard Merchandise Express.]—The second day stand of this Marshall Field & Co. traveling merchandise fair brought a big turnout here today of merchants and wholesale buyers who were interested not only in the features of this selling experiment but in placing orders as well.

Merchants in this territory are looking forward to a year of good business. This city, the second largest in Illinois, is the most prosperous that it has been in many years. Industries are active. Farmers are expecting big crops which, despite lower prices than a year ago, are regarded as a good omen for business in this territory. The caterpillar tractor plant, one of the city's largest industries, reports a good volume of business, which is a fair barometer of farmers' buying power. The city's big distilleries are booming.

Head of Big Store Optimistic.

Carl C. Block, head of Block & Kuhl, biggest department store in the state outside of Chicago, said today that both the industrial outlook and the farm prospects here are highly encouraging to business men.

The uniform approval with which merchants have received this new style of merchandising was shared by Block. The promotional value to the Chicago market and the backers of this venture will be fully realized, he predicted. The Chicago wholesale market, Block pointed out, has many natural advantages over New York.

"Where our buyers might be able to make four trips a year to New York, they can make 12 trips or more to Chicago," he said. "In recent years we have shown an increasing preference for the Chicago market. One of the obvious reasons for using the Chicago market is the expense entailed in sending buyers east. Eastern railroads have not yet reduced passenger fares to meet the reductions made by western lines."

200 Buyers Visit Train.

More than 200 buyers visited the train. Orders actually booked were substantially in excess of yesterday's sales. No figures have been released on business done, but officials said that it was measuring up to expectations. Some of the orders represented forward business.

Advance showings of fall and winter lines, including a 1935 toy display, are included in the exhibits. Summer merchandise lines, for immediate shipment, constitute an important part of the business booked in two days since the train left Chicago.

The train will be on the road for another thirty days. Sales are expected to increase as the train reaches cities more remote from Chicago, whose buyers do not visit the market as frequently as those in nearby towns.

Springfield Next Stop.

With the first lap of its 3,000 mile journey behind it, the mobile store was scheduled to depart late this evening for Springfield, Ill., where it will make a one day stop. Gov. Horner will visit the train there. From Springfield the train will go to St. Louis and then southward.

Grant S. Mears, assistant general manager of Marshall Field & Co., and H. R. Boggs, assistant sales manager, will accompany the "expedition" as far as St. Louis. President John McKinlay will join the "store" later and will spend several days with the train. Divisional sales representatives of the company will join the train while it is traveling through their territories.

BANKING FIRMS OFFER TO SETTLE KREUGER CLAIMS

New York, June 24.—[Special.]—Edward S. Greenbaum, trustee in bankruptcy of Kreuger & Toll, today submitted to a meeting of creditors an offer of settlement of claims against four banking firms, involving $4,250,000, for $765,000. Early action by the referee is expected on the proposal.

The Kreuger & Toll debenture holders' committee, headed by Col. Grayson Murphy, and the Marine Midland Trust company, trustees for the secured debentures, favored the settlement.

The settlements arise out of suits brought by Greenbaum, who claimed that Ivar Kreuger improperly used the Kreuger & Toll company's money to repurchase from the defendants securities which Kreuger had committed himself to repurchase.

The offers of settlement were made by the City Company of New York and the Guaranty company, who together put up more than $725,000 of the settlement; Clark, Dodge & Co., who offered a settlement for about $20,000, and the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh, who sought to settle a similar claim against them for $15,000.

Hear Plans to Reorganize 333 N. Michigan Building

Further evidence of a preliminary nature was introduced yesterday at the hearing on the plan to reorganize the 333 North Michigan Avenue Building corporation before Master in Chancery George E. Johnson in the Morrison hotel. There will be hearings today and tomorrow.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, June 24.—The volume of business transacted in the Boston wool market, or through Boston houses, has picked up sharply in the past week. A great deal of the business was on wools still in the country. Varied price trends were noted in the week's transactions on wool.

GRAIN MARKETS MOVE NARROWLY IN QUIET TRADE

Wheat Weakens; Corn and Oats Are Firmer.

Grain prices at the end of an extremely dull trading session on the Board of Trade yesterday showed little change from the close at the end of last week. Wheat was ¼ cent to ⅝ cent lower, corn moved up ⅛ to 1⅛ cents and oats were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Trading in all grains was reported light, with the result that transactions had a greater effect on price movements than their importance waranted.

Corn showed the greatest strength of any of the grains as a result of reported buying by commission houses that took account of the lateness of the crop, incomplete planting in many sections of the country and recent heavy rains which are preventing cultivation. The corn crop has been reported to be weedy over a wide area, especially in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and eastern Kansas.

Hedging Pressure Lacking.

Despite the fact that favorable weather conditions prevailed in a large part of the southwest territory now harvesting the new winter wheat crop and only a few cars were reported to have been received at interior markets in Kansas, the hedging pressure anticipated by the trade did not develop.

Forecasts of showers, largely of a local character, for the southwest had much to do with tempering the bearish sentiment which prevails in the local market, and short covering and a little commission house buying were reported to be effective in checking a declining tendency in the market.

The lowest prices in the wheat market were registered immediately after the opening of trade. The stronger undertone in corn and oats caused a firming up in prices in the wheat pit after the easy tendency.

Liverpool Wheat Lower.

Liverpool wheat closed at prices equal to ⅜ to ⅞ cent lower in American money. The export demand for Manitobas is again reported to be slow.

The visible supply of wheat has decreased 948,000 bushels, a situation, however, which is said to have attracted little attention. The visible supply has now been reduced to about 24,000,000 bushels, as compared with 74,000,000 bushels at this time last year. Primary receipts of wheat continue small, being estimated at 557,000 bushels, compared with 2,523,000 bushels at this time last year.

Corn also moved fractionally lower at the opening of trading, but rallied on short covering and buying by commission houses. The December future is showing a tendency to gain on the old crop deliveries owing to unfavorable weather conditions.

	Yesterday.	Saturday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .80⅛	$ .80⅜	$ .80⅜
Corn	.75⅝	.75	.74⅜
Oats	.32¾	.32¾	.32
Rye	.46⅝	.47¼	.47¼

LARD MARKET UNSETTLED; PRICES IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Lard was unsettled yesterday with the nearby deliveries somewhat easier on scattered selling, while the December future was bought by commission houses after an early dip and advanced sharply. At the close prices were 10 cents lower to 12½ cents higher with December showing the most strength. Trade in the latter delivery was light and the market was easily influenced. Cash interests were the best buyers of the nearby months. Bellies were nominally unchanged. Cash lard closed at $12.62; loose, $12.32 to $13.35; leaf, $14, and bellies at $17.25 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

OLD ADAGE ON GROWTH OF CORN IS SPOILED BY MUCH RAIN, LITTLE SUN

It's an old saying in the corn belt that corn should be "knee high by the Fourth of July." This year, however, heavy rains over a large part of the area have retarded growth greatly. James E. Bennett & Co. received a message from one of their country correspondents which is typical:

"During the last 58 days since May 1 it rained 38 days, the sun has failed to shine most of the fifteen days and the result is corn has not made its usual growth for this time of the year, considering the abundant moisture," the message reads. "In the territory surrounding Paris, Ill., about 75 per cent of the corn in the fields is not large enough to hide a rabbit."

Broomhall's advises that the market in Liverpool declined despite small world shipments, a 2,000,000 bushel decrease in floating stocks, a reduction in Liverpool stocks and smaller arrivals of wheat in the United Kingdom. It was said the most important factor in the Liverpool market was the excellent prospect for the Canadian wheat crop.

Thomson & McKinnon received a cable from Buenos Aires stating that drouth conditions continue over a large part of the wheat area in Argentina and a great reduction in wheat acreage is expected in many districts which may, in some cases, amount to 25 per cent if rainfall does not occur shortly. The message said rain is greatly needed in the southwestern part of the province of Buenos Aires, in the territory of La Pampa and in the province of Cordoba. These three provinces contain about five-sixths of the total wheat acreage of the country.

Weather conditions have been highly favorable for harvesting operations in the southwest as well as for growth of the spring crop in the northwest and Canada, reports state. Work with the combines is expected to get under way today in a large part of the southwest.

CELOTEX LOSS REPORTED LESS IN SIX MONTHS

New Reorganization Plan Supported.

Stockholders of the Celotex company yesterday were informed of a reduction in losses for the six months ended April 30 and that further support of the attempt to reorganize the company has been obtained through modification of the plan to deal more generously with the shareholders.

Net sales of $2,415,399 and a loss of $88,510 after depreciation and other charges were reported for the half year compared with sales of $1,787,168 and a deficit of $197,669 in the corresponding period of last year. A letter from the trustees said that an appraisal by Ford, Bacon & Davis showed a commercial or going value of $7,370,700 as of last April 30.

Altered Plan Gets Support.

A letter sent out by the reorganization committee said that important opponents of the plan have agreed to support reorganization with the changes made in distribution of new securities. The modified plan is to be presentd July 1 in Federal court at Wilmington, Del.

Under the revised plan, preferred stockholders not subscribing to new common stock will receive one share of new common in addition to the one new preferred for each two shares of old preferred as in the original plan.

Subscribers Get More.

Those subscribing to common stock also will obtain one common share in addition to the one new preferred and one common previously provided for each two old preferred shares and $6.66 in cash.

Non-subscribing common shareholders will obtain one new share for each three now held, as against one for four. Subscribing common stockholders are to receive 1½ shares of new common for each three old common and $3.33 cash, compared with 1-2-3 new shares for four old and $4.44 cash.

SEC GRANTS TIME EXTENSION FOR REGISTRATIONS

Deadline Set at July 15; Many Issues Not Filed.

Washington, D. C., June 24.—[Special.]—The time by which most of the securities now temporarily registered on national securities exchanges must be permanently registered was extended today by the securities and exchange commission from June 30 to July 15. Those securities with a time limitation for filing which goes beyond July 15, are not affected and registration in their case is not called for by that date.

A special ruling extended to Dec. 31, 1935, the time for permanent registration of obligations of foreign governments or their subdivisions and of other securities of foreign issuers except nationals of a North American country or Cuba which are not guaranteed by a foreign government.

Many Not Accounted For.

The action was taken when it was found that while virtually all the corporations with securities listed on the New York Stock exchange had filed for permanent registration, a considerable number of other securities could not be accounted for. Whether this was due merely to tardiness on the part of the issuers, or resulted from the fact that a considerable number on some of the smaller exchanges had been unwilling or unable to meet the requirements for registration, officials did not know.

Permanent registration calls for comprehensive information concerning the financial setup and position of issuers and must be given under oath as to accuracy.

On June 21 about 1,850 issuers had filed applications for the permanent registration of about 3,300 securities, including approximately 2,300 stocks and 1,1000 bonds. Another 900 securities yet to be registered may be accounted for by issuers who use special forms bringing the total thus accounted for to about 4,200.

Former Estimate Much Larger.

Calculations made some weeks ago, however, showed that the total of securities temporarily listed on the exchanges was 4,872, or nearly 700 larger, of which 2,933 were stocks and 1,939 bonds.

"The effect of the rule is that trading in all securities listed may continue without break after July 1," the commission said. "Before July 15 there will be published a list setting forth the status, as to registration or exemption, of the various securities, so that at that time brokers and others interested will know what securities can no longer be bought and sold on the respective exchanges. In the meantime, by virtue of the rule, all securities listed will continue to have the same loan value and the prohibitions against manipulation will be applicable."

SUGAR

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was steadier today. Spot prices advanced 4 points to 3.30c per lb, but there was no change in later shipment which was held at 3.35c. The only sale reported was 10,000 bags of Puerto Rican due July 8 to a local refiner at 3.30c, but there was a further interest at this level, with nothing offered.

Futures were generally higher, with the July position relatively firm in both contracts, due to covering and trade buying. Final prices were at the best and 3 points to 6 points net higher for old crop positions in the No. 3 and unchanged to 1 point higher for new crop months. The No. 1 was 2 points to 5 points higher. Sales in the No. 3 were 3,550 tons and 450 tons in the No. 1.

Raw sugar prices in cents per pound:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
July	2.31	2.35	2.31	2.35	2.29
September	2.36	2.38	2.36	2.37	2.37
December	2.38	2.40	2.38	2.40	2.37

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, June 24.—[Special.]—Aggressive commission house buying of hide futures disclosed a lack of pressure and prices were up to to 88 points at the close. Recent liquidation is regarded as having been severe and to have placed the market in a much better technical position. Sales aggregated 105 lots, or 4,200,000 pounds. Closing bids in cents per pound: September, 10.40c; December, 10.75c; March, 11c; June, 1936, 11.30c.

MEATS ADVANCE, BUT CATTLE, HOGS FAIL TO RECOVER

Wholesale meat prices at the principal distributing points in the east yesterday advanced substantially, recovering much of last week's losses. Beef sold steady to $1.00 higher than on Friday at most places. Gains of $1.00 to $2.00 were made in veal at New York and Philadelphia, and advances of $2.00 in lamb meat were general at these points and at Boston. Pork was steady to $2.00 higher, Philadelphia making the sharpest gains.

Meat prices in the Chicago area showed the least change compared with last week's close, but demand was improved and a smaller carryover was reported at the close of the session.

The market for cattle improved slightly after a weak opening, but some buyers complained that their killing sheets would show a higher live cost per hundred pounds of beef "on the hooks" than any time last week because of the lower yields.

Choice 1,310 pound steers reached the $12.25 top. The bulk of the day's receipts brought $8.50 to $10.75, top 1,143 pound long yearlings reaching $11.60. A string of Wyoming steers averaging 1,047 pounds sold at $11.25.

Despite the rally of pork markets demand for hogs was narrow and prices drifted lower in one of the slowest Monday markets in many months. The average price, $11.35, including the processing tax, showed 10 cents decline. Selected 210 to 220 pound light butcher hogs topped the list at $12.00, the first time the top has been that low on a Monday in five weeks.

Lamb prices rose 25 to 50 cents on the lightest Monday receipts of the year. City butchers selected ewe and wether native lambs up to $9.25, while packers sorted the new crop of natives at $9.15 and below.

Rosenbaum Stock Groups Will Not Be Increased

Federal Judge William H. Holly announced yesterday that he has decided for the time being not to increase the membership of the stockholders' committee of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation which is now under process of reorganization under section 77-b of the amended bankruptcy act. Julius Moses, attorney for a number of preferred stockholders, last Saturday asked for the appointment of two additional members to represent the preferred stockholders.
